SOME HORSE SENSE UPON PREPAREDNESS PROBLEMS

Poultney Bigelow Praises Major Chandler as a Born Soldier and Applauds Latter's Views on War as a World Disease Which We Must Plan to Combat.

The following letter from Poultney Bigelow of Malden, who is now at Miami, Florida, to The Freeman, transmitting a letter received by Mr. Bigelow from Major Chandler, explains itself fully:

To the Editor of the Kingston Freeman.
Dear Sir:

When volunteers were demanded for service on the Mexican border, among the first to enlist was one of New York's ablest surgeons, now better known as Major George F. Chandler. He threw aside a large and lucrative practice in order to throw himself heart and soul into the work that has been dear to every patriotic American ever since George Washington abandoned Mount Vernon and the joys of home for the toils of a seven years' war and the barren applause of a suspicious and grudging congress.

The letter of Major Chandler is reproduced here solely on my authority and without consulting the gallant author. It is a breach of law, custom and courtesy which nothing can justify save shortness of time and imminence of war. It is a letter that should fan into a blaze the embers of patriotism that lie dormant in millions now absorbed in mere materialism. It is a letter straight from the heart of a born soldier and will carry comfort to every American so fortunate as to understand such language.

So take this message, give it to the world, and let all the blame fall on

Faithfully yours,
POULTNEY BIGELOW.

My dear Bigelow:

There are certain fixed natural laws that govern everything. One is that war is a natural phenomenon incident to the struggle for existence among living beings. War is always with us somewhere. Only perhaps a little over two hundred years out of four thousand have been anywhere near free from war.

War is the disease of the whole world. Let us say that our body represents the world. The organs, therefore, the different races. So the white race is represented by the nerves, brain and white cell of the body. The black or dark races by dark cells, such as the liver cells; red races by muscle cells, etc.

Those cells in the body are always being changed and destroyed, just as we humans live and die. White individuals destroyed don't blot out the white race any more than white cells destroyed kill the body. The body is always fighting disease or infection or injury. it is never absolutely right. So the world. It is fighting and war is its chronic disease. There are periods of quiescence, but now there is a great period of exacerbation. Don't you see that we cannot stop it? The Hun did not bring it. Most people are so set up by his or her own importance or local success that they are blinded by unnatural laws—laws of their own making.

These laws, and among them so-called "international law" and treaties, will always be proper—everything must that is artificial and made to fit a certain case. The natural laws turn on and these little artificial laws must give way and break, or be elastic enough to stretch out of all shape.

How foolish for people to scrap about who started this war. It was here and only flamed up again like a volcano.

It is coming to us—when, I don't know. I hope it will hold off for a long time, but it is coming.

To be prepared is the thing. Just as health officers, sanitary inspectors, quarantine, etc., keep away disease, so will trained miltary men and universal training, properly done, keep away war for long periods. Will we do it?

I see that there are hundreds of meetings all over on the subject of getting ready—but always with a dinner. Alcohol to fan the flames of preparedness. Gosh! How they get themselves worked up—like a revival meeting—but next morning. Ye Gods! forgotten in trying to get over the headache and get to business.

It is funny to see the number of men who want to get on the Officers' Reserve Corps in positions of supply and ordnance—never on the firing line.

A few of us are willing to suffer, just as we are now, for a selfish nation. But why kick? It is part of the way of the world—ingratitude. Where is there a greater crime? I know of none. It was ever thus.

But it's an interesting game at that—this world. Experience is the thing. Just orient one's self and enjoy it, and don't let it "get our goat." It's a good game this way and what an interesting time to be alive.

I am lecturing on the Civil War, conduct of war, instructing in problems and tactics, and have charge of rifle practice, so you see I am busy.

Good luck to you.

GEORGE F. CHANDLER.

ROUSING GREETING TO MAJOR CHANDLER

Hundreds of Kingstonians Gathered at West Shore Station in Honor or Army Officer's Return from Mexican Border Service—Grand Army Joins in Welcome.

Some 700 friends and fellow citizens of Major George F. Chandler gathered at the West Shore station at 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon and marked the return of this gallant officer from eight months' service on the Mexican border with a hearty informal reception, one of the most impressive incidents of the kind recorded in Colonial City history for many years. The spontaneity which characterized the entire affair, the modesty of the man himself and the evident desire of all present to pay tribute to efficient and genuine patriotism combined to make Major Chandler's arrival an event in the community life which was emphasized in more formal fashion at the reception tendered in his honor at the Elks Club a few hours later.

A little knot of Grand Army men, headed by Major James H. Everett, and Old Glory prominently displayed by one of their number, formed the center of the crowd and the throat-tightening effect of the appearance of these grizzled veterans of the stormy sixties added a distinct martial note to the assemblage. There was no music. When the Continental Limited pulled in at 5 o'clock, a scattered cheer and handclapping greeted Major Chandler as he stepped down with Mrs. Chandler and a bunch of members of the Rotary Club who had gone to Newburgh to tell the Major how glad they felt at his return.

Mayor Palmer Canfield, Jr., was the first to greet Major Chandler and with him was Major Everett, Sergeant Fitzgerald and a number of business and professional men. The Major made his way with difficulty through the crowd, acknowledging salutes with upraised hat and keeping his right hand occupied in exchanging greetings with the throng which pressed tightly about him. With Mrs. Chandler, he finally made his way to his waiting automobile, escorted by the detail from Pratt Post, G. A. R., and then went on to his home in East Chestnut street.

The evident sincerity and the informality of the welcome made a deep impression on the Major. His long months' service on the border also showed their effect. He is thinner and graver but never appeared more fit than when he swung off the train and into the hands of his friends. After dinner at his home, Major Chandler went on to the Elks' Club at 8 o'clock, reviewing the Clinton Guards from his automobile as they marched up Broadway.

Took Possession of House.

The residents of Palenville were surprised a few nights ago to see smoke issuing from the chimney of Louis Deering's house in the village. The house had been closed all winter and an investigation by a posse of armed villagers disclosed two men comfortably housed before a roaring fire. The men refused to open the doors and they were broken down and the two men placed under arrest. They gave their names as John Graham and Frank Sharkey of New York. Everything in the house had been turned over and ransacked. They were taken to the Greene county jail to await trial.

Snyder Sent to Penitentiary.

John Snyder of West Saugerties, who was arrested early in the week on complaint of his wife, was sentenced to four months in the Albany penitentiary on Thursday by Judge Chidester. Snyder is an old offender in the town of Saugerties and has served time before on complaint of his wife. He was taken to Albany by Officer Reynolds of Saugerties.

Two Die Within Week.

Charles J. Schrauth, proprietor of an ice cream and confectionery establishment in Newburgh, died on Thursday of pneumonia. His father, Jacob Schrauth, head of a similar concern in Poughkeepsie died on Thursday of last week in Poughkeepsie.

New Paltz Village Caucus.

A caucus for the nomination of officers, to succeed the present board of trustees of the village of New Paltz, will be held on March 7. The village election will be held on March 20.

WRECK OF THE MERCANTILE EXPRESS. ©INTERNATIONAL
PENN. R. R. WRECK IN WHICH 18 PERSONS WERE KILLED.

Wreckage of the Pennsylvania railroad flyer, the Mercantile Express, crashed into in a dense fog at Mount Union, Pa., by a fast freight carrying food supplies for the east and making fifty-five miles an hour. Bodies of eighteen persons were recovered from the wreck. Almost every person in the last car of the express, a sleeper, perished. The terrific impact caused the sleeper to telescope the car ahead, another sleeper, and they appeared as one car when wrecking crews arrived. This is the first fatal wreck on the Pennsylvania in three years.

ELKS PAY HONOR TO EXALTED RULER

Major George Chandler's Return Occasion for Outburst of Patriotism—Clinton Guards Join in Reception and Gallant Soldier Faced Forensic Battery.

Major George Chandler's return to Kingston was made the occasion of a patriotic welcome and celebration by Kingston Lodge, No. 550, B. P. O. Elks, of which he is exalted ruler, at the Elks' Club house on Fair street Thursday evening, at which the major was told in simple but forcible terms of the high regard in which he is held not only by members of that organization but by the general public.

The decorations of the club house were of American flags, as was to be expected, and they were used profusely, every room in the building affording opportunity for the artistic skill of the decorators in giving expression to patriotic display.

The Clinton Guards which were organized since Major Chandler left Kingston for regular army service along the Mexican border, acted as honorary bodyguard. The Guards assembled at the Armory at 7:45 o'clock and then marched to the Eagle Hotel, where they waited for the signal to march to the Elks' Club house in a body and add their tribute of respect.

Major Chandler was conveyed to to the club house from his home by automobile, and his appearance at the club house was greeted with repeated cheers from the assembled Elks and their invited guests. Patriotic airs were played by the Colonial City Band and before he entered the club house Major Chandler was given an ovation by those assembled outside the building such as few citizens of Kingston ever have received.

Guards Present Arms.

After entering the club house, Major Chandler was escorted to the assembly hall, where the scene was enlivened a few minutes later by the Clinton Guards, whose members presented arms in honor of the guest of the evening. An address of welcome was made by Captain Everett Fowler at the close of which, in response to Captain Fowler's suggestion, the entire assembly arose and gave three cheers for Major Chandler. Major Chandler replied briefly, expressing his appreciation at the warmth of his welcome and complimenting the new guard upon its organization and appearance.

Following refreshments, a number of interesting talks were given, Judge Jenkins, the esteemed leading knight of the Elks' Lodge, acting as toastmaster.

Elks Exhibit Pride.

Judge Jenkins first expressed the pleasure of the Elks' Lodge in the return of the exalted ruler and the honor felt by the members in being thus permitted to welcome him home. Then he paid a glowing tribute to Major Chandler and his accomplishments.

"We think we have his philosophy," said Judge Jenkins, "in these few lines from his favorite author, Nietzsche:

"'How shall I reach the top? No time
For thus reflecting. Start to climb.'

"That is what Major Chandler has done. He lost no time in contemplation—his active nature would not permit it. Instead, he began to do things, and in doing them he wasted no energy, but made every move count; he has accomplished things. During his absence we have been only marking time.

"I say 'we.' By that term I do not mean alone the members of this brotherhood, founded on strictly American principles, but I mean the citizens of Kingston generally and the interests with which he has been long actively connected; all of them during his absence have been simply marking time, waiting for his return when we might again become active ourselves by following his command to march and go forward."

Applause Greets Major.

Judge Jenkins's tribute to Major Chandler's natural leadership and ability was received with appreciative applause, which increased as Major Chandler arose to reply. Major Chandler expressed his pleasure at his home-coming and return to the scene of his activities. His hearers, he knew, desired to have him speak on the subject which he had been studying during his absence—Preparedness. The United States, he said, was unprepared to enter any war now. War he believed to be inevitable and the United States would get in the maelstrom now sweeping the world, but if it could postpone the date of entry until it had time to prepare, it would be safer. He advised postponement of actual hostilities until we found ourselves in a condition to be hostile. War with Mexico had been averted by the present of the National Guard along the Mexican frontier, and the policy of placing the Guard there he most heartily approved because not only of what the guardsmen's presence there had accomplished but also for what their presence had prevented.

For Universal Training.

Major Chandler expressed his belief in no uncertain terms as to the value and usefulness of universal service but doubted whether this country will ever subscribe to such system for the national defense. Of the work on the border, he is firmly of the opinion that the calling out of the Guard did in effect prevent war, but that he feared many of the militiamen were returning from duty dissatisfied with a system that did not compel others to make sacrifices equal to those which they had made.

As to war, the Major expressed the hope that it would never come, stating that many of those who were demanding it did not realize the full extent of its horrors. Every man within the sound of his voice, he said, would be obliged to perform some service in the event of war and death would inevitably desolate many homes. War will mean more than mere street corner talk, he said. He urged his hearers to consider Canada and the tremendous inroads upon its manhood that the European conflict has caused. The Major paid a high tribute to President Wilson, stating his belief that the president was right in the present crisis and for that reason, the country ought strongly to support the president, and in the meantime devote its energies to a strict program of preparedness. The major's speech was warmly applauded.

Duty of Our Citizens.

Rear Admiral Francis J. Higginson, U. S. N., retired, followed Major Chandler with a brief talk along the necessity of preparedness. The United States could not control destiny, and when war became inevitable, as now seemed probable, it was the duty of every citizen to do what he could personally in adding strength to the country.

Former Assemblyman Charles T. Coutant paid a glowing tribute to the men who in the past had fought for the service of their country and those who now were serving and training themselves for a future whose mask could not be torn away until the stage was set and the actors ready to enter. Individual effort could accomplish nothing unless there was a strong government behind the individual, and strength could be given only by closely adhering to the patriotic and loyal principles on which our country was founded.

Speakers Emphasize Need.

Captain William H. Webb, U. S. N., retired, spoke also along the line of military and naval preparedness, and the need of greater efficiency in military, naval and civic life.

Jay E. Klock spoke of the apparent inevitability of war at sometime in the near future and the necessity of preparedness and efficiency in all branches of government and military and civil life. The best way to accomplish preparedness was by following the instruction of those who were in a position to know existing conditions, and in the face of what has been disclosed, to prepare for preparedness day by day.

Major James H. Everett spoke also on the necessity of preparedness as exhibited during the Civil War and since, and told of the conditions which had resulted from our unpreparedness in the past.

Pratt Post Memorial.

On behalf of Pratt Post, No. 127, G. A. R., Major Everett presented the following memorial:

Pratt Post, G. A. R., grateful to you personally for the organization of the great parade tendered by Company M, N. G., to the veterans of the civil war on the last Memorial Day, take this first opportunity to thank you and your associates for the high honor then conferred upon them.

We recognize that in a wider field you have demonstrated the value of preparedness. Your sagacity and foresight led you long ago to fit yourself to honorably and usefully perform the highest duty that a citizen can render his country.

We welcome you to your home and we wish that we could assure you a long and honored life among your friends, but, we feel that you are only on furlough and that the occasion, if not already upon us, soon will be such that you will be called to serve your country in the high position for which your past services have fitted you. Whatever the future discloses be sure that you have the confidence and good will of this community and that they stand ready to follow your lead in defense of the honor and integrity of our beloved country.

The speeches were interspersed with patriotic songs.

The dynasty of the famous outlaw in bandit-infested northern Mexico, which has been crumbling for months, has at last collapsed, the state department announced today.

On advices from government agents on the border and south of the Rio Grande itself, Secretary of State Lansing said today that he was able to state that Villa no longer can be considerad a factor in Mexican politics. The wound that has had him crippled for months has so weakened his general physical condition that he can no longer take an active part in military and guerrilla operations.

GERMANY STANDS PAT; MERCHANTMEN TO ARM

Foreign Secretary Zimmerman Tells Reichstag of Negotiations With United States---Policy of "Armed Neutrality" Only Awaits Word From President.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Berlin, via Sayville Wireless, March 2.—Germany will not back down. Maintenance of her new submarine policy must be a condition of any understanding reached with the United States to prevent a widening of the present breach.

Foreign Secretary Zimmerman made this assertion in the Reichstag in the course of his discussion of the efforts of the Swiss minister at Washington to bring the two nations into agreement.

"Obviously our wish to come to an understanding only can be accomplished so far that we do not conflict with our declaration of a barred zone which we are firmly decided to maintain against our enemies under all circumstances," the foreign secretary declared.

Secretary Zimmerman first detailed to the Reichstag the negotiations attempted by the Swiss minister at Washington.

"In the affair of our negotiations with the United States, the underlying facts are these," he said. "On February 28 we received by the good offices of the Swiss federal council a telegram of the Swiss minister at Washington, who after the breaking off of relations with the United States represents our interests there. The telegram had the following contents: 'If the German government would now show inclination to negotiate with the United States about the blockade then he (the Swiss minister) would be gladly willing to take further care of this affair.'

"All the speakers yesterday declared that the breaking off of relations with the United States was regrettable.

"No doubt it would be still more regrettable if there would be war with the United States. Between both countries there exists the old friendly relations. There is no political antagonism between both countries and in the economic domain they more or less depend on each other. One could even say that they ought to be economic allies.

"Therefore, it is easy to understand that the government took care to avoid everything which might intensify the conflict and cause war with America. From the standpoint of these considerations we examined the suggestion.

"From the very outset we were absolutely certain that our part in the submarine war ought be in no way limited by concession. Obviously our wish to come to an understanding with America only can be accomplished so far that we do not conflict with our declaration or barred zones which we are firmly decided to maintain against our enemies under all circumstances.

After Long Consideration.

"'Only after long consideration we decided to use our sharpest weapon. You know the course of our negotiations with America and our honest, sincere peace offer and the jeering rebuke by our enemies. To our attempt at reconciliation our adversaries opposed their will to annihilate and thus nothing was left us but to take the last and best weapon.

"After we took this decision, obviously no backward step was any longer possible. We regret that neutrals have to suffer by it but we can't help that. From the standpoint of these considerations, in my answer to America, I only said that Germany, now as before, is ready to negotiate under condition that the establishment of barred zones against our enemies be not impaired.

Cancellation Impossible.

"We only hinted at our readiness to enter into more detailed negotiations with America about the submission of passenger ships. The Swiss minister at Washington transmitted our communications and thereupon received from Mr. Lansing a note in very polite terms. Lansing says he is authorized by President Wilson to say that the government of the United States will negotiate with Germany very gladly if Germany cancels her decision of January 31. This being absolutely impossible, the negotiations had to be considered a failure before they really had begun."

Foreign Secretary Zimmerman's statement to the Reichstag is the first official admission that Germany did suggest to the United States the admission of passenger ships to the barred zone as a basis for further negotiations. Earlier dispatches from Berin asserted that the Swiss minister was acting on his own responsibility, and not under instructions from Berlin, when he made this proposal to Secretary Lansing.

Kaiser Suffers a Chill.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, March 2—The Kaiser has suffered a chill and is kept indoors by his physicians though he receives his ministers daily, the Amsterdam correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph wires.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, March 2.—Arrangements to put into effect the policy of "armed neutrality" against Germany wait the words of President Wilson. The plans of the navy are complete. Within half an hour after the order is issued to arm American merchantmen the Atlantic yards of the department will be at work.

Administration leaders in congress were working overtime today to expedite the legislation demanded by the chief executive. It is to be engrossed as soon as finally approved by both houses and will immediately be signed. Shortly thereafter the orders to arm American ships will issue from the White House. Then the issue will again be passed directly to Germany.

What additional steps besides furnishing guns, ammunition and experienced gunners will be taken is known only to the president and his advisors. They have worked out all of their plans behind the curtain of absolutely necessary secrecy. But it is known that nothing has been left undone to safeguard American interests.

The fact that the White House confidently announces that there will be no extra session of Congress "at this time" indicates that the president believes he can handle all expected developments. The work of general preparedness has been greatly simplified by the passage of the new revenue bill which furnished the sinews of war for all of the national defense program.

No New Plot Details.

So far as the German plot to involve the United States into war with Japan and Mexico is concerned it was stated at the state department today that there is nothing to add to Secretary Lansing's letter to the senate which confirmed the authenticity of the Zimmerman letter to the German minister at Mexico City.

The administration, it was explained, is not desirous at the present moment of permitting details of German anti-American plotting to become public. It may be that further revelations can be made, Secretary Lansing said today, but at present it would be unwise to add anything to the plot details already known.

ARMED NEUTRALITY AGITATES SENATE

Chairman Stone of Foreign Relations Committee Bewildered at Flight of Time—"Off Again, on Again Business" Denounced by Senator Jones.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, March 2.—The administration was shown to be in control of the legislative situation in the senate today when, by a vote of 64 to 15, it was decided to take up the armed neutrality bill, over Senator LaFollette's protest.

The only votes against taking up the armed neutrality bill were those of Senators Bryan, Curtis, Clapp, Cummins, Gronna, Jones, Kirby, LaFollette, Myers, Norris, Page, Sherman, Townsend, Works and Watson. This does not necessarily mean that they are opposed to the bill.

Senator Stone asked unanimous consent to lay the armed neutrality bill before the senate again at 4 o'clock but Senator Gronna objected. Senator Stone then gave notice he would move to take the bill up.

Senator Sherman of Illinois had received a letter from the Illinois Staats Zeitung condemning the Zimmerman note and tried to have read an editorial attacking W. J. Bryan. Senator Williams announced he would oppose the reading of "all unnecessary communications." The senate by a viva voce vote sustained him.

Senator Stone, chairman of the foreign relations committee, added to the confusion by asking for the second reading of the armed neutrality bill.

The vice president informed him that the bill had been read yesterday. In deep bewilderment Senator Stone sat down. Later he apologized to the vice vice president. He had forgotten it.

After voting to take up the armed neutrality bill, it was temporarily laid aside to make way for the naval bill upon which a roll call has been ordered for 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Senator Jones of Washington denounced the Democratic tactics.

"This off again, on again business absolutely demonstrates the incapacity of the organization which controls the senate," he said. "It is the cause of the congestion of legislation."

WRECK OF THE MERCANTILE EXPRESS. ©INTERNATIONAL
PENN. R. R. WRECK IN WHICH 18 PERSONS WERE KILLED.

Wreckage of the Pennsylvania railroad flyer, the Mercantile Express, crashed into in a dense fog at Mount Union, Pa., by a fast freight carrying food supplies for the east and making fifty-five miles an hour. Bodies of eighteen persons were recovered from the wreck. Almost every person in the last car of the express, a sleeper, perished. The terrific impact caused the sleeper to telescope the car ahead, another sleeper, and they appeared as one car when wrecking crews arrived. This is the first fatal wreck on the Pennsylvania in three years.

ELKS PAY HONOR TO EXALTED RULER

Major George Chandler's Return Occasion for Outburst of Patriotism—Clinton Guards Join in Reception and Gallant Soldier Faced Forensic Battery.

Major George Chandler's return to Kingston was made the occasion of a patriotic welcome and celebration by Kingston Lodge, No. 550, B. P. O. Elks, of which he is exalted ruler, at the Elks' Club house on Fair street Thursday evening, at which the major was told in simple but forcible terms of the high regard in which he is held not only by members of that organization but by the general public.

The decorations of the club house were of American flags, as was to be expected, and they were used profusely, every room in the building affording opportunity for the artistic skill of the decorators in giving expression to patriotic display.

The Clinton Guards which were organized since Major Chandler left Kingston for regular army service along the Mexican border, acted as honorary bodyguard. The Guards assembled at the Armory at 7:45 o'clock and then marched to the Eagle Hotel, where they waited for the signal to march to the Elks' Club house in a body and add their tribute of respect.

Major Chandler was conveyed to to the club house from his home by automobile, and his appearance at the club house was greeted with repeated cheers from the assembled Elks and their invited guests. Patriotic airs were played by the Colonial City Band and before he entered the club house Major Chandler was given an ovation by those assembled outside the building such as few citizens of Kingston ever have received.

Guards Present Arms.

After entering the club house, Major Chandler was escorted to the assembly hall, where the scene was enlivened a few minutes later by the Clinton Guards, whose members presented arms in honor of the guest of the evening. An address of welcome was made by Captain Everett Fowler at the close of which, in response to Captain Fowler's suggestion, the entire assembly arose and gave three cheers for Major Chandler. Major Chandler replied briefly, expressing his appreciation at the warmth of his welcome and complimenting the new guard upon its organization and appearance.

Following refreshments, a number of interesting talks were given, Judge Jenkins, the esteemed leading knight of the Elks' Lodge, acting as toastmaster.

Elks Exhibit Pride.

Judge Jenkins first expressed the pleasure of the Elks' Lodge in the return of the exalted ruler and the honor felt by the members in being thus permitted to welcome him home. Then he paid a glowing tribute to Major Chandler and his accomplishments.

"We think we have his philosophy," said Judge Jenkins, "in these few lines from his favorite author, Nietzsche:

"'How shall I reach the top? No time
For thus reflecting. Start to climb.'

"That is what Major Chandler has done. He lost no time in contemplation—his active nature would not permit it. Instead, he began to do things, and in doing them he wasted no energy, but made every move count; he has accomplished things. During his absence we have been only marking time.

"I say 'we.' By that term I do not mean alone the members of this brotherhood, founded on strictly American principles, but I mean the citizens of Kingston generally and the interests with which he has been long actively connected; all of them during his absence have been simply marking time, waiting for his return when we might again become active ourselves by following his command to march and go forward."

Applause Greets Major.

Judge Jenkins's tribute to Major Chandler's natural leadership and ability was received with appreciative applause, which increased as Major Chandler arose to reply. Major Chandler expressed his pleasure at his home-coming and return to the scene of his activities. His hearers, he knew, desired to have him speak on the subject which he had been studying during his absence—Preparedness. The United States, he said, was unprepared to enter any war now. War he believed to be inevitable and the United States would get in the maelstrom now sweeping the world, but if it could postpone the date of entry until it had time to prepare, it would be safer. He advised postponement of actual hostilities until we found ourselves in a condition to be hostile. War with Mexico had been averted by the present of the National Guard along the Mexican frontier, and the policy of placing the Guard there he most heartily approved because not only of what the guardsmen's presence there had accomplished but also for what their presence had prevented.

For Universal Training.

Major Chandler expressed his belief in no uncertain terms as to the value and usefulness of universal service but doubted whether this country will ever subscribe to such system for the national defense. Of the work on the border, he is firmly of the opinion that the calling out of the Guard did in effect prevent war, but that he feared many of the militiamen were returning from duty dissatisfied with a system that did not compel others to make sacrifices equal to those which they had made.

As to war, the Major expressed the hope that it would never come, stating that many of those who were demanding it did not realize the full extent of its horrors. Every man within the sound of his voice, he said, would be obliged to perform some service in the event of war and death would inevitably desolate many homes. War will mean more than mere street corner talk, he said. He urged his hearers to consider Canada and the tremendous inroads upon its manhood that the European conflict has caused. The Major paid a high tribute to President Wilson, stating his belief that the president was right in the present crisis and for that reason the country ought strongly to support the president, and in the meantime devote its energies to a strict program of preparedness. The major's speech was warmly applauded.

Duty of Our Citizens.

Rear Admiral Francis J. Higginson, U. S. N., retired, followed Major Chandler with a brief talk along the necessity of preparedness. The United States could not control destiny, and when war became inevitable, as now seemed probable, it was the duty of every citizen to do what he could personally in adding strength to the country.

Former Assemblyman Charles T. Coutant paid a glowing tribute to the men who in the past had fought for the service of their country and those who now were serving and training themselves for a future whose mask could not be torn away until the stage was set and the actors ready to enter. Individual effort could accomplish nothing unless there was a strong government behind the individual, and strength could be given only by closely adhering to the patriotic and loyal principles on which our country was founded.

Speakers Emphasize Need.

Captain William H. Webb, U. S. N., retired, spoke also along the line of military and naval preparedness, and the need of greater efficiency in military, naval and civic life.

Jay E. Klock spoke of the apparent inevitability of war at sometime in the near future and the necessity of preparedness and efficiency in all branches of government and military and civil life. The best way to accomplish preparedness was by following the instruction of those who were in a position to know existing conditions, and in the face of what has been disclosed, to prepare for preparedness day by day.

Major James H. Everett spoke also on the necessity of preparedness as exhibited during the Civil War and since, and told of the conditions which had resulted from our unpreparedness in the past.

Pratt Post Memorial.

On behalf of Pratt Post, No. 127, G. A. R., Major Everett presented the following memorial:

Pratt Post, G. A. R., grateful to you personally for the organization of the great parade tendered by Company M, N. G., to the veterans of the civil war on the last Memorial Day, take this first opportunity to thank you and your associates for the high honor then conferred upon them.

We recognize that in a wider field you have demonstrated the value of preparedness. Your sagacity and foresight led you long ago to fit yourself to honorably and usefully perform the highest duty that a citizen can render his country.

We welcome you to your home and we wish that we could assure you a long and honored life among your friends, but we feel that you are only on furlough and that the occasion, if not already upon us, soon will be such that you will be called to serve your country in the high position for which your past services have fitted you. Whatever the future discloses be sure that you have the confidence and good will of this community and that they stand ready to follow your lead in defense of the honor and integrity of our beloved country.

The speeches were interspersed with patriotic songs.

VILLA NOW AT END OF BLOODY TRAIL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, March 2.—Pancho Villa has reached the end of his bloody trail.

The dynasty of the famous outlaw in bandit-infested northern Mexico, which has been crumbling for months, has at last collapsed, the state department announced today.

On advices from government agents on the border and south of the Rio Grande itself, Secretary of State Lansing said today that he was able to state that Villa no longer can be considered a factor in Mexican politics. The wound that has had him crippled for months has so weakened his general physical condition that he can no longer take an active part in military and guerrilla operations.

New York, March 2.—Hundreds of applications for passage on the first ship of the American Line to sail for the "barred zone" have been received since President Wilson asked Congress for a policy of armed neutrality, according to statements of officials of the line today. GERMANY STANDS PAT; MERCHANTMEN TO ARM

Foreign Secretary Zimmerman Tells Reichstag of Negotiations With United States---Policy of "Armed Neutrality" Only Awaits Word From President.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Berlin, via Sayville Wireless, March 2.—Germany will not back down. Maintenance of her new submarine policy must be a condition of any understanding reached with the United States to prevent a widening of the present breach.

Foreign Secretary Zimmerman made this assertion in the Reichstag in the course of his discussion of the efforts of the Swiss minister at Washington to bring the two nations into agreement.

"Obviously our wish to come to an understanding only can be accomplished so far that we do not conflict with our declaration of a barred zone which we are firmly decided to maintain against our enemies under all circumstances," the foreign secretary declared.

Secretary Zimmerman first detailed to the Reichstag the negotiations attempted by the Swiss minister at Washington.

"In the affair of our negotiations with the United States, the underlying facts are these," he said. "On February 28 we received by the good offices of the Swiss federal council a telegram of the Swiss minister at Washington, who after the breaking off of relations with the United States represents our interests there. The telegram had the following contents: 'If the German government would now show inclination to negotiate with the United States about the blockade then he (the Swiss minister) would be gladly willing to take further care of this affair.'

"All the speakers yesterday declared that the breaking off of relations with the United States was regrettable.

"No doubt it would be still more regrettable if there would be war with the United States. Between both countries there exists the old friendly relations. There is no political antagonism between both countries and in the economic domain they more or less depend on each other. One could even say that they ought to be economic allies.

"Therefore, it is easy to understand that the government took care to avoid everything which might intensify the conflict and cause war with America. From the standpoint of these considerations we examined the suggestion.

"From the very outset we were absolutely certain that our part in the submarine war ought be in no way limited by concession. Obviously our wish to come to an understanding with America only can be accomplished so far that we do not conflict with our declaration or barred zones which we are firmly decided to maintain against our enemies under all circumstances.

After Long Consideration.

"Only after long consideration we decided to use our sharpest weapon. You know the course of our negotiations with America and our honest, sincere peace offer and the jeering rebuke by our enemies. To our attempt at reconciliation our adversaries opposed their will to annihilate and thus nothing was left us but to take the last and best weapon.

"After we took this decision, obviously no backward step was any longer possible. We regret that neutrals have to suffer by it but we can't help that. From the standpoint of these considerations, in my answer to America, I only said that Germany, now as before, is ready to negotiate under condition that the establishment of barred zones against our enemies be not impaired.

Cancellation Impossible.

"We only hinted at our readiness to enter into more detailed negotiations with America about the submission of passenger ships. The Swiss minister at Washington transmitted our communications and thereupon received from Mr. Lansing a note in very polite terms. Lansing says he is authorized by President Wilson to say that the government of the United States will negotiate with Germany very gladly if Germany cancels her decision of January 31. This being absolutely impossible, the negotiations had to be considered a failure before they really had begun."

Foreign Secretary Zimmerman's statement to the Reichstag is the first official admission that Germany did suggest to the United States the admission of passenger ships to the barred zone as a basis for further negotiations. Earlier dispatches from Berin asserted that the Swiss minister was acting on his own responsibility, and not under instructions from Berlin, when he made this proposal to Secretary Lansing.

Kaiser Suffers a Chill.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, March 2.—The Kaiser has suffered a chill and is kept indoors by his physicians though he receives his ministers daily, the Amsterdam correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph wires.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, March 2.—Arrangements to put into effect the policy of "armed neutrality" against Germany wait the words of President Wilson. The plans of the navy are complete. Within half an hour after the order is issued to arm American merchantmen the Atlantic yards of the department will be at work.

Administration leaders in congress were working overtime today to expedite the legislation demanded by the chief executive. It is to be engrossed as soon as finally approved by both houses and will immediately be signed. Shortly thereafter the orders to arm American ships will issue from the White House. Then the issue will again be passed directly to Germany.

What additional steps besides furnishing guns, ammunition and experienced gunners will be taken is known only to the president and his advisors. They have worked out all of their plans behind the curtain of absolutely necessary secrecy. But it is known that nothing has been left undone to safeguard American interests.

The fact that the White House confidently announces that there will be no extra session of Congress "at this time" indicates that the president believes he can handle all expected developments. The work of general preparedness has been greatly simplified by the passage of the new revenue bill which furnished the sinews of war for all of the national defense program.

No New Plot Details.

So far as the German plot to involve the United States into war with Japan and Mexico is concerned it was stated at the state department today that there is nothing to add to Secretary Lansing's letter to the senate which confirmed the authenticity of the Zimmerman letter to the German minister at Mexico City.

The administration. It was explained, is not desirous at the present moment of permitting details of German anti-American plotting to become public. It may be that further revelations can be made, Secretary Lansing said today, but at present it would be unwise to add anything to the plot details already known.

ARMED NEUTRALITY AGITATES SENATE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, March 2.—The administration was shown to be in control of the legislative situation in the senate today when, by a vote of 64 to 15, it was decided to take up the armed neutrality bill, over Senator LaFollette's protest.

The only votes against taking up the armed neutrality bill were those of Senators Bryan, Curtis, Clapp, Cummins, Gronna, Jones, Kirby, LaFollette, Myers, Norris, Page, Sherman, Townsend, Works and Watson. This does not necessarily mean that they are opposed to the bill.

Senator Stone asked unanimous consent to lay the armed neutrality bill before the senate again at 1 o'clock but Senator Gronna objected. Senator Stone then gave notice he would move to take the bill up.

Senator Sherman of Illinois had received a letter from the Illinois Staats Zeitung condemning the Zimmerman note and tried to have read an editorial attacking W. J. Bryan. Senator Williams announced he would oppose the reading of "all unnecessary communications." The senate by a viva voce vote sustained him.

Senator Stone, chairman of the foreign relations committee, added to the confusion by asking for the second reading of the armed neutrality bill.

The vice president informed him that the bill had been read yesterday. In deep bewilderment Senator Stone sat down. Later he apologized to the vice president. He had forgotten it.

After voting to take up the armed neutrality bill, it was temporarily laid aside to make way for the naval bill upon which a roll call has been ordered for 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Senator Jones of Washington denounced the Democratic tactics.

"This off again, on again business absolutely demonstrates the incapacity of the organization which controls the senate," he said. "It is the cause of the congestion of legislation."

STREET GOSSIP ABOUT TOWN

"Life is full of little tragedies," said the street corner politician, as he passed the time of day with his friend.

"What do you mean?" asked the friend.

"I was just standing here for a minute," explained the politician, "when a handsome young lady suddenly exclaimed 'There's Jack,' and she stopped a young man who was passing and as they both shook hands you could see they were surprised to meet each other."

"Nothing tragic about that," said the friend.

"No," said the politician. "Well, after they had talked a while in animated tones the young man excused himself and stepped into a store, leaving the young woman standing on the sidewalk. As time passed she amused herself by glancing at her reflection in a mirror in one of the store windows and straightening her hat and putting her hair in the way a woman has."

"Still nothing tragic," murmured the friend.

"Then she started to walk up and down the sidewak," continued the politician, "and glanced anxiously into the store the young man had entered."

"Probably she thought it took him a long time to make his purchase," interrupted the friend.

"Still he failed to make his appearance," continued the politician, not noticing the interruption, "and as five, ten, fifteen minutes passed the young woman with a downcast expression on her face gave a last look into the store and not seeing the young man turned and walked to the corner and disappeared from view."

"What then?" asked the friend.

"Nothing," said the politician, "but she probably realized the fact that the young man had deliberately given her the shake."

"How?" asked the friend.

"He had gone out the back entrance of the store," explained the politician.

"Wonder why he did it?" asked the friend.

"As both were strangers to me," said the politician, "I have not the slightest idea, but as I said before that is just another little tragedy of life."

"Another tragedy of life," said the friend vigorously, "is the Busy Street Liar."

"I agree with you there," said the politician, "and I think it would be a mighty fine thng to form an organization of the B. S. L."

"What's that?" asked the friend.

"Well, hunters and anglers have to secure a license," explained the politician, "and it would not be a bad idea to license the Busy Street Liar."

"What's the idea?" asked the friend.

"The idea would be," said the politician, "to form a B. S. L. Association and each member would have to pay a license fee to join, and then would be required to wear a button bearing the legend, 'B. S. L.'"

"Why?" queried the friend.

"In that way," explained the politician, "if a member wearing one of the buttons should stop and tell you that war had been declared all you would have to do before getting excited about it would be to glance at the lapel of his coat and see if he wore a button."

"H-m," said the friend.

"No h-m about it," retorted the politician. "It would be a mighty fine thing for then you would know whether he had the slightest foundation for making the statement he did."

"Sounds reasonable," said the friend, "with one exception."

"And that," added the politician, "is the fact that no one would like to be known as identified with such an association."

"Talking about the Busy Street Liar," said the politician, after a pause, "I think the deadliest thing in the world is gossip."

"I agree with you," said the friend.

"More reputations have been ruined and more lives dragged down through its medium than anything else in the world," continued the politician, not noticing the interruption, "and the best thing that could happen in this world would be the elimination of the gossip, foth male and female."

"Which is the worst?" asked the friend.

"There is not much difference between them," said the politician, "one is as bad as the other."

"Yes, but how are you going to wipe out gossiping?" said the friend.

"I am afraid it will never be wiped out," said the politican, "there are too many people who would not be able to exist if they could not gossip about their neighbors or friends."

Of course the horses pulled the chain apart, and the sleighs came on through, leaving the hog house stand. Mr. Greene was supervising. He must have thought the hog house would make a good spring house, for he left it stand right over the spring, but he was very much mistaken, for it is by far too large, being 12x18 feet, and Mr. Davis can neither use the building nor the spring until Mr. Greene comes and completes the moving of the building.

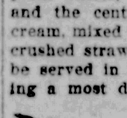
THE KITCHEN CABINET

The pleasantest things in the world are pleasant thoughts, and the great art in life is to have as many of them as possible.—Bovee.

WORK WITH ONE RECIPE.



A good reliable cake recipe has countless ways of appearing in such a variety of forms that it is never suspected of having the same foundation. By long practice and carefully eliminating every waste motion, one may become so proficient in the making and baking that the results are always reliable.

A good standby quickly made and easily juggled so that it covers many emergencies is the following: Sift two teaspoonfuls of baking powder with a pinch of salt and a cupful and a half of flour. Cream two tablespoonfuls of butter (softened, not melted) with a cupful of granulated sugar. This is quickly done by warming both sugar and butter; add a half cupful of milk and two well-beaten eggs. The eggs are added to the sugar and butter, and the milk (after rinsing out the egg bowl) is added alternately with the flour. Beat vigorously and bake, with the addition of flavoring, in a sheet. Cover with icing also flavored, and we have a good regulation cake. Nuts may be placed on top, and then the cake is served in squares. By adding orange peel, grated to the batter, and orange juice to confectioner's sugar, a change of cake is made by change of flavor.

Bake this same cake in a sheet without flavoring, cut it in slices and each slice then cut in two and put together sandwich fashion, with raspberry jam and the sandwich frosted all over, makes most delicious little company cakes. Any filling desired may be used.

Bake this recipe in two layers, flavoring as desired, and the remainder of the batter flavor with spices; add nuts and raisins and bake in small patty pans. For the layer cake use whipped cream as a filling and for the top, sweetening and flavoring the cream.

Cup cakes may be baked of the plain batter, then the tops removed and the centers filled with whipped cream, mixed with any fresh fruit, like crushed strawberries. Ice cream may be served in these small cakes, making a most dainty dessert.

SUBS DISGUISED AS FISHING BOATS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, March 2.—German submarines, disguised by means of false masts and sails as innocent fishing barks, plan to prey upon merchant shipping in the Atlantic, according to information in the hands of the state department, it was learned from authoritative sources today. A few of the disguised U-boats are already operating.

The experience of a foreign merchantman gave the state department its information. The merchantman's captain became suspicious when a sailing bark approached his craft at a high rate of speed on a calm day, and attacking with shell fire, discovered the real nature of the craft. The submarine was sunk.

SENATORS' NERVES FRAYED.

International Tension Makes for Disorder—Martine Unruly.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, March 2.—The senate's nerves became frayed today as a result of the ceaseless tension over the international situation. The senate chamber, usually calm and dignified, closely resembled an unruly and disorderly schoolroom.

Vice-president Marshall pounded for order until his gavel arm became tired. He threatened to appoint an assistant chairman to wield the gavel.

Senator Martine of New Jersey tried to get a measure before the senate.

"Sit down," ordered the vice-president.

"All right—damn it," exclaimed Senator Martine, and sat down.

EVENING SCARF.

BELLE OF THE BALL.

Soon as warm nights arrive this fetching substitute for velvets and furs will delight dancing maidens. A long chiffon scarf with deep borders of metal cloth is the idea, and in this case the color is old gold hemstitched on to a maize chiffon. Any becoming colors may be had.

EMBROIDERY CRETONNES.

How to Make Attractive Spreads by the Art of Applique.

Simple work for busy hands seems to be in demand just at present. Appliqued patch embroidery is simple and is made quickly.

To make centerpieces, cushion tops, scarfs, tidies or chair backs, clothes bags, etc., plain linen or silk is needed, preferably linen.

Circles of applique are cut from cretonne. The design should be a large single flower or small spray in order to cut three inch circles. The circles are basted to the cloth and stitched on by machine close to the edge. Chain stitch around each circle with coarse thread, then run through with a white thread in what is called the blanket stitch, or whip it straight along the last row of stitches, catching it over and over. The white rolls in with the black and is very pretty. A scroll is drawn in by cutting out a figure which looks well and then tracing it off on the cloth.

In a centerpiece six medallions are used, three in a pillow, three in each end of a scarf and three in a chair back. To finish the edge outline it as the medallions were outlined. Dots, which are often placed in the center of the scrollwork, are made of black in the satin stitch.

Fashion's Creed.

It appears that the prevailing creed in fashion is that a woman must not think of going in her shirt sleeves any more than a man would think of doing it. She wears a wash blouse beneath the jacket for purposes of cleanliness, but not publicity. So farreaching is this creed that the medieval tunic which extends only to the hip line and is fastened to the shoulder or slips over the head is worn over a blouse with a cloth skirt even in the house.

Probably the best thing to remember in buying clothes now is that the figure must be straightened out, in the medieval manner, from bust to hips. You can choose your own way of doing it, whether by a deep girdle, by the straight lines of the fabric or by a belt of suede or leather that conceals any inward curve beneath the arms toward the waist.

For Stout Women.

Becoming to the stout woman are tunics of plaited Georgette crape weighted at the edge with a band of velvet and drawn in loosely at the waist line with a knotted or buckled sash. The plaited Georgette hangs in graceful lines, and such a tunic is flattering to the figure, disguising embonpoint more successfully than a fitted tailored frock of cloth material. The skirt may be of velvet, cloth or silk, and the band at the tunic edge should be of similar material, the cuffs also to give continuity of the costume.

Sash an Important Thing.

All the French gowns are showing that the girdle or the sash will be an important feature of the spring fashions. There is no attempt to define the wrist line by any kind of belt, but it is swathed in oriental fashion with soft and stiff belts, with Chinese embroidery, with Russian handwork, including threads of old silver and colored crystals and with broad pieces of satin which are cross stitched with silver and gold thread, and on these jersey blouses there are sashes in broad peppermint candy striping.

A Dragon Blouse.

A novelty in a dressy blouse shows the Chinese influence in two wild eyed dragons which are embroidered at each side of the front. In back there is a pointed collar, a kind of variation of the capuchin hood.

LIFE OF THE WORLD.

Traditions That It Will Last Only 6,000 Years.

There is a general and widespread notion, which the curious investigator will find scattered throughout both medieval and modern literature, that the world will last 6,000 years from the date of its creation. An inscription in one of Martin Luther's books reads as follows: "Elijah, the prophet, said that the world had existed 2,000 years before the law was given (from Adam to Moses), would exist 2,000 years under the Mosaic law (from Moses to Christ) and 2,000 years under the Christian dispensation, and then it would be burned."

In the Etrurian account of the creation (by Suidas) there is a similar tradition, "The Creator spent 6,000 years in creation, and 6,000 more are allotted to the earth."

In the black letter edition of Foxe's "Acts and Monuments" (1632) there is a whole sermon given with the 6,000 year limit of the earth's duration as a text.

Some writers contend that the "six days" referred to in Holy Writ really mean 6,000 years and that the "seventh day" is a type of the coming millennium, or "Sabbath of a thousand years."

The psalmist says, "For a thousand years are in thy sight as yesterday" (Psalm xc, 4). See also II Peter iii, 8, which is even more specific.

POISON GAS BEETLES.

Fumes With Which Bombardiers Keep Their Enemies at Bay.

Most people think that the use of poison gas in warfare is a purely human, or perhaps one should say inhuman, idea. Yet the plan has been adopted by nature. Certain kinds of beetles known as bombardiers and called by scientists Brachinus make free use of poisonous fumes to keep their enemies at bay.

A typical species known as Brachinus crepitans is largely attacked by certain ground beetles. These ground beetles are very active and can easily overtake the bombardiers. Just as they get within reach, however, a very strange thing happens. The bombardier has the power of ejecting a peculiar liquid, which, when it comes into contact with the atmosphere, bursts into a sort of pale green flame. This is immediately followed by a kind of smoke.

Now, this smoke has a remarkable effect upon the pursuer. No sooner do the fumes come into contact with the ground beetle than the creature is blinded and stupefied. A strange paralysis overtakes the insect, and it seems unable to move any farther. Quite a while elapses before the ground beetle recovers. In the meantime the bombardier makes good his escape.—American Boy.

Fury of Sunstorms.

How can we, who are bewildered and appalled by the fury of our planet's cyclones and volcanic eruptions, form a conception of the terrible energy of natural operations of the sun? Newcomb suggested that if we call the solar chromosphere an ocean of fire we must remember that it is an ocean infinitely hotter than the fiercest furnace and as deep as the Atlantic is broad. If we call its movements hurricanes we must remember that our hurricanes blow only about a hundred miles an hour, while those of the chromosphere blow as far in a single second. There are such hurricanes as, coming down upon us from the north, would in thirty seconds after they had crossed the St. Lawrence river be in the gulf of Mexico, carrying with them the whole surface of the continent in a mass not simply of ruin, but of glowing vapor.

The Whole Thing.

"I suppose," said the absconding cashier to the friend who had run across him in parts unknown, "that there was a good deal of talk about me after I disappeared."

"I should think there was!" answered the friend. "Why, man, the weather wasn't mentioned at all for two weeks."

Personal?

The company marched so poorly and went through its drill so badly that the captain, who was of a somewhat excitable nature, shouted indignantly at the soldiers:

"You knockkneed, big footed idiots, you are not worthy of being drilled by a captain! What you want is a rhinoceros to drill you, you wretched lot of donkeys!"

Then, sheathing his sword indignantly, he added, "Now, lieutenant, you take charge of them!"—London Tit-Bits.

Pepys and Matrimony.

That rare old gossip, Samuel Pepys, had his own views on matrimony, as the following extract from his diary shows:

"Christmas day (1665)—To church in the morning, and there saw a wedding in the church, which I have not seen many a day, and the young people so merry with one another, and strange to see what delight we married people have to see these poor fools decoyed into our condition, every man and woman gazing and smiling at them."

Best Meats Underpriced at Messinger's Saturday Sale!

Some of these safe investments are offered in our Saturday sale. They are safe because there's no waste to GOOD meats like ours. STREET GOSSIP ABOUT TOWN

"Life is full of little tragedies," said the street corner politician, as he passed the time of day with his friend.

"What do you mean?" asked the friend.

"I was just standing here for a minute," explained the politician, "when a handsome young lady suddenly exclaimed 'There's Jack,' and she stopped a young man who was passing and as they both shook hands you could see they were surprised to meet each other."

"Nothing tragic about that," said the friend.

"No," said the politician. "Well, after they had talked a while in animated tones the young man excused himself and stepped into a store, leaving the young woman standing on the sidewalk. As time passed she amused herself by glancing at her reflection in a mirror in one of the store windows and straightening her hat and putting her hair in the way a woman has."

"Still nothing tragic," murmured the friend.

"Then she started to walk up and down the sidewalk," continued the politician, "and glanced anxiously into the store the young man had entered."

"Probably she thought it took him a long time to make his purchase," interrupted the friend.

"Still he failed to make his appearance," continued the politician, not noticing the interruption, "and as five, ten, fifteen minutes passed the young woman with a downcast expression on her face gave a last look into the store and not seeing the young man turned and walked to the corner and disappeared from view."

"What then?" asked the friend.

"Nothing," said the politician, "but she probably realized the fact that the young man had deliberately given her the shake."

"How?" asked the friend.

"He had gone out the back entrance of the store," explained the politician.

"Wonder why he did it?" asked the friend.

"As both were strangers to me," said the politician, "I have not the slightest idea, but as I said before that is just another little tragedy of life."

"Another tragedy of life," said the friend vigorously, "is the Busy Street Liar."

"I agree with you there," said the politician, "and I think it would be a mighty fine thing to form an organization of the B. S. L."

"What's that?" asked the friend.

"Well, hunters and anglers have to secure a license," explained the politician, "and it would not be a bad idea to license the Busy Street Liar."

"What's the idea?" asked the friend.

"The idea would be," said the politician, "to form a B. S. L. Association and each member would have to pay a license fee to join, and then would be required to wear a button bearing the legend, 'B. S. L.'"

"Why?" queried the friend.

"In that way," explained the politician, "if a member wearing one of the buttons should stop and tell you that war had been declared all you would have to do before getting excited about it would be to glance at the lapel of his coat and see if he wore a button."

"H-m," said the friend.

"No h-m about it," retorted the politician. "It would be a mighty fine thing for then you would know whether he had the slightest foundation for making the statement he did."

"Sounds reasonable," said the friend, "with one exception."

"And that," added the politician, "is the fact that no one would like to be known as identified with such an association."

"Talking about the Busy Street Liar," said the politician, after a pause, "I think the deadliest thing in the world is gossip."

"I agree with you," said the friend.

"More reputations have been ruined and more lives dragged down through its medium than anything else in the world," continued the politician, not noticing the interruption, "and the best thing that could happen in this world would be the elimination of the gossip, both male and female."

"Which is the worst?" asked the friend.

"There is not much difference between them," said the politician, "one is as bad as the other."

"Yes, but how are you going to wipe out gossiping?" said the friend.

"I am afraid it will never be wiped out," said the politician, "there are too many people who would not be able to exist if they could not gossip about their neighbors or friends."

They moved it about 100 yards, where Mr. Green and Mr. Davis put both teams of horses on the chain, with which it was bound to the sleighs. Of course the horses pulled the chain apart, and the sleighs came on through, leaving the hog house stand. Mr. Greene was surprising. He must have thought the hog house would make a good spring house, for he left it stand right over the spring, but he was very much mistaken, for it is by far too large, being 12x18 feet, and Mr. Davis can neither use the building nor the spring until Mr. Greene comes and completes the moving of the building.

James B. Davis and Miss Zelma Ahrens enjoyed a sleigh ride on Monday.

Mrs. Elmer Smith and daughter are spending a few days with friends at Cheshire, Conn.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

The pleasantest things in the world are pleasant thoughts, and the great art in life is to have as many of them as possible.—Hovee.

WORK WITH ONE RECIPE.

A good reliable cake recipe has countless ways of appearing in such a variety of forms that it is never suspected of having the same foundation. By long practice and carefully eliminating every waste motion, one may become so proficient in the making and baking that the results are always reliable.

A good standby quickly made and easily juggled so that it covers many emergencies is the following: Sift two teaspoonfuls of baking powder with a pinch of salt and a cupful and a half of flour. Cream two tablespoonfuls of butter (softened, not melted) with a cupful of granulated sugar. This is quickly done by warming both sugar and butter; add a half cupful of milk and two well-beaten eggs. The eggs are added to the sugar and butter, and the milk (after rinsing out the egg bowl) is added alternately with the flour. Beat vigorously and bake, with the addition of flavoring, in a sheet. Cover with icing also flavored, and we have a good regulation cake. Nuts may be placed on top, and then the cake is served in squares. By adding orange peel, grated to the batter, and orange juice to confectioner's sugar, a change of cake is made by change of flavor.

Bake this same cake in a sheet without flavoring, cut it in slices and each slice then cut in two and put together sandwich fashion, with raspberry jam and the sandwich frosted all over, makes most delicious little company cakes. Any filling desired may be used.

Bake this recipe in two layers, flavoring as desired, and the remainder of the batter flavor with spices; add nuts and raisins and bake in small patty pans. For the layer cake use whipped cream as a filling and for the top, sweetening and flavoring the cream.

Cup cakes may be baked of the plain batter, then the tops removed and the centers filled with whipped cream, mixed with any fresh fruit, like crushed strawberries. Ice cream may be served in these small cakes, making a most dainty dessert.

KINGSTON, N. Y., MARCH 2, 1917.

To few men is it given to receive, during life, such a spontaneous and unaffected tribute as fell to the lot of Major George F. Chandler at the hands of his fellow citizens upon his return home from service on the Mexican border. There were no strains of martial music, no pre-arrangement or formal program of greeting at the train, just a gathering of several hundred citizens ranging in years from Grand Army veterans who proudly carried Old Glory aloft to the tiny inmates of several baby carriages, these latter representing the most essential and foremost adjunct to preparedness. As an expression of local pride in the possession of a brigade officer who had proved himself competent and willing to perform arduous duties in his country's service, the reception served a useful purpose. In a larger sense, there was a genuine patriotic touch to the gathering of men and women at this time when the republic is facing one of the great crises in its history. The personality and popularity of the man no doubt played their part, but, for the time being, both were submerged by the fact that here was a flesh and blood representation of patriotic service, an ideal type of the man upon whom the national safety must depend in the hour of peril. It is good to have Major Chandler back again. It is better to know that Kingston appreciates the fact that the community possesses a broad-visioned, efficient and sane soldier who is at all times in readiness to respond to the call of duty. The example and influence that such a man exerts upon his fellow citizens are of inestimable value.

Prevailing prices for potatoes are having an adverse effect upon other things than the family diet. In the scramble to realize $3 a bushel or thereabouts, for their tubers, it will not be surprising if the farmers close out their home supplies and save none for the coming season's planting. This danger, while perhaps purely a matter of conjecture now, is none the less real. An insufficiency of seed potatoes means less acreage to be planted to potatoes this year, or possibly more idle land. If all of the food conservation agencies now projecting themselves into public notice could center their energes toward restriction of consumption of potatoes, much good would result. Food speculators would be compelled to come down off their high horses and farmers might, perforce, see the wisdom of withholding plenty of last year's crop to assure a sufficiency of seed potatoes. The Southern crops are not up to expectations and the same is true of the early potatoes from the Bermudas. To use foresight and avoid a repetition of war prices next year, care must be exercised in providing seed potatoes and at reasonable prices.

In a recent published report of the Prussian Ministry of Education appeared the following incidental lament: "The war has made plain to those who did not know it how terrible our ignorance of foreign thinking has been, and how bitterly we need scientific understanding of the present time." Apparently this ignorance of "foreign thinking" includes also ignorance of the thinking of the masses of transplanted Germans, especially those in the United States. Perhaps it also includes ignorance of the thinking among a great part of the population in Germany itself. What the dominating classes of Prussia appear to be in need of is not "scientific understanding" of anything, they being already scientific to a fault, but a recognition of the fact that they are out of touch and sympathy with the modern world's broad spirit of humanity, and that Germans after years of life abroad are as ready to absorb this spirit and to support free institutions based thereon as any other people.

Representative Rucker, elected to fill the unexpired term of Representative Tribble of the Eighth Georgia district, in a rambling but entertaining speech in the House the other day incidentally stated that after leaving Princeton University in 1869 he was for a time a newspaper correspondent, adding: "I sometimes wish, Mr. Speaker, I had staid in the newspaper business, because all connected with the press seem so bright. I do not know whether they are bright because they are connected with the press or connected with the press because they are bright." Whichever it may be, the press will appreciate Mr. Rucker's compliment.

According to the founder of the National Farm School, over 160 applications have been received for the services of the 17 young men who recently graduated from that institution. The obvious interpretation is that, while even ordinary farming is expected to pay better in the future than in the past, scientific farming is expected—and with good reason in such times as these—to bring rich returns. This expectation will not be disappointed in cases in which the scientific knowledge is mingled with a goodly proportion of common sense.

A WALL STREET RUMOR.

Like Most Rumors There is No Truth In it.

A rumor that the building occupied by E. T. Stelle & Son, the shoe men, on Wall street, was to be remodeled shortly, has been going around among the storekeepers in town. Dame Rumor had it that the building was to be remodeled and store fronts put in on the John street side of the building by Mr. Forman, the present owner, thus making show windows both on Wall street and John street. No such steps will be taken by Mr. Forman for the present and E. T. Stelle & Son will continue to occupy the whole store with their line of footwear.

Stelle recently discontinued the hat and glove business and has since been devoting the entire store to the shoe and footwear business. Since closing out the hat and glove line the interior of the store has been remodeled and show cases built to accommodate the large line of footwear which is handled by the firm.

Aristocratic Daughter.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

Father—"I got a number of sealed proposals at my office today." Daughter—"Oh, pa, were any of them for me?"—Puck.

He—"I never associate with my inferiors. Do you, Miss Cutting?" She—"Well, Mr. Snobson, I really can't say. I don't think I have ever met any of your inferiors."—Judge.

Adam (after a long silence)—"Say, Eve, can't you say something? It's dull here with a dumb wife." Eve—"What's a woman to talk about with no clothes and no servants?"—Life.

"Why did Maude fling that magazine from her so disgustedly just now?" "She saw an article in it headed, 'New Method of Filtration,' and she read it 'Flirtation.'"—Boston Transcript.

"You say that walking has prolonged your life?" "Yes I do. What's so queer about that?" "Nothing. Only I don't know of any roads where there are no automobiles."—Buffalo Express.

"I weigh my words," said the man of impressive assumptions. "Why trouble?" inquired Miss Cayenne. "Has anybody assured you of not making your conversation sufficiently heavy?"—Washington Star.

Aptly Named.

A bootblack was puffing at the end of a cigar when a gentleman, thinking to have a little fun at the youth's expense, asked him if he always smoked cigars. "Oh, yes, sir, pretty often," announced the youth. "What brand do you generally smoke?" asked the gentleman. "Robinson Crusoe, sir," replied the bootblack. The gentleman pondered a while. "I never heard of that brand," he said. "It's a name I've given 'em myself," said the youth. "You see, guvnor, old Crusoe was a castaway!"—Rochester Times.

Nothing in it.

A merchant was visited by a friend and customer from the country whom he entertained by a visit to the theatre, relates the Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph. When the lights were low the merchant drew forth a pair of opera glasses and handed them to his guest. A contented "Ah" slipped from the countryman, and then his arms in the air were discernible. "What's the trouble?" asked the host. The answer came in a distressingly plain whisper of disappointment: "O, nothing, only the thing's empty."

Between Two Fires.

"I educated one of my boys to be a doctor and the other to be a lawyer," said Father Corntassel. "You should be very proud of them," announced the visitors. "That seems like an excellent arrangement." "I don't know about that," replied the aged agriculturist; "it looks as though it was a-going to break up the family. I got run into by a locomotive, and one of 'em wants to cure me and the other wants me to go lame so he can sue for damages."—Ladies' Home Journal.

The Modern Slogan.

The little son of a clergyman recently appeared at breakfast with distinct evidences of a hastily made toilet. "Why, Edmund," his mother remonstrated, "I believe you forgot to brush your hair." "I was in such a hurry to get to school," he explained. "I hope you didn't forget to say your prayers?" she asked, anxiously. "No, siree!" was the emphatic assurance; "that's one thing I never forget. Safety first!"—Harper's Magazine.

Ferdinand's Rapid Rise.

For three hours the American consul in a certain Mexican town had been sitting in the hotel dining room, relates the Buffalo Commercial. At length the proprietor came to him. "Pardon sir," he said, with a low bow, "were you waiting for anything?" "Yes," replied the consul. "Yesterday I told Ferdinand, your head waiter that I would dine here at 6. It's now 9, and he hasn't appeared yet." "Ferdinand joined the army today," the proprietor informed him. "If the senor—" "Gone, has he, the scoundrel? Why didn't he let me know he was going?" "More respect, please, senor," protested the Mexican, with dignity. "Ferdinand has won steady promotion, and is now a general!"

FOOD PRICE RELIEF AT Planthaber's Saturday

The public is justly indignant over the "cornering" of foods and the hoisting of prices. The riots that are taking place in New York and elsewhere are not demonstrations of the thriftless and worthless. They are the outraged protest of the thrifty, the industrious and the frugal, who cannot meet the demands of food prices that now exist. There will be no riots in Kingston so long as a market like ours continues to do business here. Instead of keeping step with the steady price advances, we add only a fraction of them to our retail prices and cut down the profits that rightfully should come to us. We know that patrons will remember this generosity when the business horizon clears and the food situation is relieved.

BRYAN GIVEN HOT SHOT BY METCALF

Nebraska Not in Great Commoner's Vest Pocket But in Favor of Universal Military Training.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, March 2.—That part of official Washington which remembers the close relationship that has always existed between friendship and government appointments was chuckling today over an incident of the Nebraska Association banquet last night.

"The citizenship of Nebraska," declared William Jennings Bryan, one of her best known sons, "is united on the question of keeping this country out of war with Germany. My prayer is that we reserve our neutrality."

Up sprang Richard L. Metcalf, whom Mr. Bryan had appointed civil governor of the Panama Canal Zone when secretary of state. Looking straight at Mr. Bryan, Mr. Metcalf replied:

"With practical unanimity of sentiment the people of Nebraska are for military preparedness. Nebraska is for universal military training! The nation that murders my people on the deck of the Lusitania is no friend of mine."

He sat down amid a "silence that you could almost hear."

ELLENVILLE.

Ellenville, March 2.—The March meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church was held at the home of Mrs. George F. Andrews on Center street Thursday afternoon. The meeting was in charge of the first vice-president, Mrs. V. T. Wright in the absence of the president. It was the annual election of officers for ensuing year and the following were elected to office: President, Mrs. Frank J. Potter; first vice president, Mrs. V. T. Wright; second vice president, Mrs. H. W. Coons; third vice president, Mrs. George Hoornbeek; secretary, Mrs. S. M. Gould; assistant secretary, Mrs. O. H. Hartwig; treasurer, Mrs. Andrews. At the close of the business session the hostess served refreshments and these were enjoyed with a pleasant social intercourse.

The Democrats and Republicans of the village in an adjourned caucus Wednesday night at the parlors of the Mitchell House agreed upon a fusion ticket for the village. The Republicans appointed as conference committe William L. Fuller, H. S. Wells and E. F. Terwilliger and the Democrats, C. G. A. Fischer, George Mitteer and Henry F. Heath and after the conference, the committee agreed to nominate and support the following ticket: For president of the village, Louis A. Hoornbeck; trustees, Henry Canner and I. W. Millard; collector, Frank Rose; treasurer, Clark Bunting; assessor, Addison Stratton. The annual election will be held at Firemen's Hall on Tuesday, the 20th March, between the hours of 11:30 and 3:30 o'clock.

The Musical Club of which Mrs. Henry Horton is the efficient president, was entertained by Mrs. Louis A. Hoornbeck at her home on Maple avenue Thursday afternoon and one of the most interesting programs of the year was given. The subject was French opera roll call. Name of French Opera and its composer. Paper, "French Opera, Mrs. R. W. Thompson; "Tampa" overture four hands, Mrs. Horton and Mrs. J. H. Divine; "Flower Song," from Faust, Miss Demarest; violin selections from French operas, Mrs. Richard Elting; Jewel Song, from Faust, Story of Carmen, Mrs. L. A. Hoornbeek; piano, "Habanera," from Carmen, Mrs. Horton; Toreador's Song, from Carman, Mrs. Walter S. Maines; Meditation from Thais; Barcarolle, from "Tales of Hofiman," Mrs. Divine and Mrs. E. B. Kimble; Sodier's chorus, from Faust, Miss Demarest.

Mrs. Sarre has found it impossible to give her illustrated lecture on "The Chateaux of France" at the Forum meeting this Friday evening, but will give it on the evening of March 16. In the place of this lecture the Forum is very fortunate to have, through the kindness of Frank Seaman of Yama Farms, the entertainer, Ducrot the Wizard. Ellenville people are fortunate to present this artist without charge. In New York the same "Ducrot" is a guarantee that the entertainment will be "up to the minute."

Announcements have been received of the birth of a son to Dr. and Mrs. P. DuBois Bunting at Elizabeth, N. J., on February 26. Congratulations are certainly extended. Dr. Bunting was formerly of Ellenville, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Bunting.

Ulster Paint Works will continue under the same management, Edward B. Kimble. No changes to be made at this time.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur V. Hoornbeek and S. A. Van Wagener are home from the southland.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Potter are spending the week in New York.

Floyd Ackerly has returned from Grahamsville and is again at work at the Inavalle Garage.

The Wayside Inn Garage has sold to the Ellenville Meat Company a Vim truck. This garage has a car load of Overland cars on the way here.

There is a new firm running Hillman's book and stationery store, not McMullen's news store. Mr. McMullen and his efficient clerk, Miss Gallagher, are doing a hustling business at the old stand. War times make extra busy times, for the calls for newspapers are more great and greater everyday. The Kingston Freeman is eagerly waited for upon the arrival of the 5:40 p. m. train from Kingston. This paper is on sale at McMullen's news stand, and delivered within short notice to all customers.

One of the very attractive models is shown here in navy blue with odd braid trimming in blue and white. The huge cape collar corresponds in its fullness to the bouffant drapery of the hips. Smart button boots and a trim sailor add attractive finishing touches.

JACOB MARKS, 40 North Front Street

Queered Himself.

"You are saluted by most of the men you meet, Hanks, but I never notice a woman recognize you," said a friend to a prominent official.

"No; I haven't a woman friend in town," replied the politician.

"How is that?"

"I was once judge of a baby show here. The woman whose baby I gave the prize to has moved away. She was the only friend I had among the fair sex in this community. All the rest are my enemies."

How Fielding Spelled His Name.

The Fieldings are an ancient race, and the Denbigh earldom dates from 1622. By the way, there is a funny story as regards the family name and its spelling. The author of "Tom Jones" was one of the race, and the then Lord Denbigh said to his relative: "Why don't you spell your name 'Feilding,' as the rest of us do and not 'Fielding?'"

The writer made answer, "Because I am the first of the family who learned to spell."—London Standard.

SUBS DISGUISED AS FISHING BOATS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, March 2.—German submarines, disguised by means of false masts and sails as innocent fishing barks, plan to prey upon merchant shipping in the Atlantic, according to information in the hands of the state department, it was learned from authoritative sources today. A few of the disguised U-boats are already operating.

The experience of a foreign merchantman gave the state department its information. The merchantman's captain became suspicious when a sailing bark approached his craft at a high rate of speed on a calm day, and attacking with shell fire, discovered the real nature of the craft. The submarine was sunk.

SENATORS' NERVES FRAYED.

International Tension Makes for Disorder—Martine Unruly.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, March 2.—The senate's nerves became frayed today as a result of the ceaseless tension over the international situation. The senate chamber, usually calm and dignified, closely resembled an unruly and disorderly schoolroom.

Vice-president Marshall pounded for order until his gavel arm became tired. He threatened to appoint an assistant chairman to wield the gavel.

Senator Martine of New Jersey tried to get a measure before the senate.

"Sit down," ordered the vice-president.

Clean-up in John Street.

The members of the street force were busy today with the annual clean-up on John street between Wall and Fair streets removing the ice and snow. When the spring thaw comes deep ruts are cut in the ice and traveling is dangerous and difficult for automobiles and the force this year begun the job early. The ice was removed and carted away.

Atharhacton Club.

The Atharhacton Club met this week with Mrs. Winne, who had the paper for the day, her subject being, "Herman Suderman. The Drama of Compromise." Considerable discussion followed the paper. Mrs. Stelle presented the Current Events for the day. Next week the club will meet with Miss Schaeffer.

First Robin Reported.

John Costello, the well-known truant officer, is the first man to report seeing a robin this year. The robin was seen about his house on Shufeldt street Tuesday and also on Wednesday when Mr. Costello fed it with bread crumbs. This according to old weather prophets is a sign of approaching spring.

Sheriff Allowed Increase.

Governor Whitman has signed the bill providing for the audit by the board of supervisors of Ulster county of the bills of this sheriff for maintenance at a sum not to exceed $2.45 for each person each week. This is a raise of ten cents a day or 70 cents a week caused by the high cost of foodstuffs.

Dr. Cady's Installation.

The Rev. Putnam Cady, D. D., will be installed as pastor of the First Presbyterian Church on Elmendorf street on next Wednesday evening at 7:45. An interesting program with out of town speakers is being arranged and will be announced later. The people of the city are invited to attend.

A Boycott in Hudson.

Under the leadership of twenty business men a boycott has been instituted in Hudson on potatoes, onions and eggs. Housewives have been appealed to and it is said on competent authority that a heavy decrease in sales has been noted thus far.

Rev. Mr. Cole to Preach.

The Rev. Thomas Cole of Saugerties will be the visiting clergyman and special preacher at St. John's Episcopal Church this evening. As usual the Friday evening service will be at 7:30 o'clock.

Every great political party that has done this country any good has given to it some immortal ideas that have outlived all the members of that party.—Garfield.

EVENING SCARF.

What the Debutante Craves When She Discards Furs.

BELLE OF THE BALL.

Soon as warm nights arrive this fetching substitute for velvets and furs will delight dancing maidens. A long chiffon scarf with deep borders of metal cloth is the idea, and in this case the color is old gold hemstitched on to a maize chiffon. Any becoming colors may be had.

EMBROIDERY CRETONNES.

How to Make Attractive Spreads by the Art of Applique.

Simple work for busy hands seems to be in demand just at present. Appliqued patch embroidery is simple and is made quickly.

To make centerpieces, cushion tops, scarfs, tidies or chair backs, clothes bags, etc., plain linen or silk is needed, preferably linen.

Circles of applique are cut from cretonne. The design should be a large single flower or small spray in order to cut three inch circles. The circles are basted to the cloth and stitched on by machine close to the edge. Chain stitch around each circle with course thread, then run through with a white thread in what is called the blanket stitch, or whip it straight along the last row of stitches, catching it over and over. The white rolls in with the black and is very pretty. A scroll is drawn in by cutting out a figure which looks well and then tracing it off on the cloth.

In a centerpiece six medallions are used, three in a pillow, three in each end of a scarf and three in a chair back. To finish the edge outline it as the medallions were outlined. Dots, which are often placed in the center of the scrollwork, are made of black in the satin stitch.

Fashion's Creed.

It appears that the prevailing creed in fashion is that a woman must not think of going in her shirt sleeves any more than a man would think of doing it. She wears a wash blouse beneath the jacket for purposes of cleanliness, but not publicity. So farreaching is this creed that the medieval tunic which extends only to the hip line and is fastened to the shoulder or slips over the head is worn over a blouse with a cloth skirt even in the house.

Probably the best thing to remember in buying clothes now is that the figure must be straightened out. In the medieval manner, from bust to hips. You can choose your own way of doing it, whether by a deep girdle, by the straight lines of the fabric or by a belt of suede or leather that conceals any inward curve beneath the arms toward the waist.

For Stout Women.

Becoming to the stout woman are tunics of plaited Georgette crepe weighted at the edge with a band of velvet and drawn in loosely at the waist line with a knotted or buckled sash. The plaited Georgette hangs in graceful lines, and such a tunic is flattering to the figure, disguising embonpoint more successfully than a fitted tailored frock of cloth material. The skirt may be of velvet, cloth or silk, and the band at the tunic edge should be of similar material, the cuffs also to give continuity of the costume.

Sash an Important Thing.

All the French gowns are showing that the girdle or the sash will be an important feature of the spring fashions. There is no attempt to define the waist line by any kind of belt, but it is swathed in oriental fashion with soft and stiff belts, with Chinese embroidery, with Russian handwork, including threads of old silver and colored crystals and with broad pieces of satin which are cross stitched with silver and gold thread, and on these jersey blouses there are sashes in broad peppermint candy striping.

A Dragon Blouse.

A novelty in a dressy blouse shows the Chinese influence in two wild eyed dragons which are embroidered at each side of the front. In back there is a pointed collar, a kind of variation of the capuchin hood.

Had to Be Introduced Twice.

While Mabel was watching her mother making a pie, she was told it was lemon meringue. Half an hour later she came back and asked: "What was that pie's last name?"—Youth's Companion.

LIFE OF THE WORLD.

Traditions That It Will Last Only 6,000 Years.

There is a general and widespread notion, which the curious investigator will find scattered throughout both medieval and modern literature, that the world will last 6,000 years from the date of its creation. An inscription in one of Martin Luther's books reads as follows: "Elijah, the prophet, said that the world had existed 2,000 years before the law was given (from Adam to Moses), would exist 2,000 years under the Mosaic law (from Moses to Christ) and 2,000 years under the Christian dispensation, and then it would be burned."

In the Etrurian account of the creation (by Suidas) there is a similar tradition, "The Creator spent 6,000 years in creation, and 6,000 more are allotted to the earth."

In the black letter edition of Foxe's "Acts and Monuments" (1632) there is a whole sermon given with the 6,000 year limit of the earth's duration as a text.

Some writers contend that the "six days" referred to in Holy Writ really mean 6,000 years and that the "seventh day" is a type of the coming millennium, or "Sabbath of a thousand years."

The psalmist says, "For a thousand years are in thy sight as yesterday" (Psalm xc, 4). See also II Peter iii, 8, which is even more specific.

POISON GAS BEETLES.

Fumes With Which Bombardiers Keep Their Enemies at Bay.

Most people think that the use of poison gas in warfare is a purely human, or perhaps one should say inhuman, idea. Yet the plan has been adopted by nature. Certain kinds of beetles known as bombardiers and called by scientists Brachinus make free use of poisonous fumes to keep their enemies at bay.

A typical species known as Brachinus crepitans is largely attacked by certain ground beetles. These ground beetles are very active and can easily overtake the bombardiers. Just as they get within reach, however, a very strange thing happens. The bombardier has the power of ejecting a peculiar liquid, which, when it comes into contact with the atmosphere, bursts into a sort of pale green flame. This is immediately followed by a kind of smoke.

Now, this smoke has a remarkable effect upon the pursuer. No sooner do the fumes come into contact with the ground beetle than the creature is blinded and stupefied. A strange paralysis overtakes the insect, and it seems unable to move any farther. Quite a while elapses before the ground beetle recovers. In the meantime the bombardier makes good his escape.—American Boy.

Fury of Sunstorms.

How can we, who are bewildered and appalled by the fury of our planet's cyclones and volcanic eruptions, form a conception of the terrible energy of natural operations of the sun? Newcomb suggested that if we call the solar chromosphere an ocean of fire we must remember that it is an ocean infinitely hotter than the fiercest furnace and as deep as the Atlantic is broad. If we call its movements hurricanes we must remember that our hurricanes blow only about a hundred miles an hour, while those of the chromosphere blow as far in a single second. There are such hurricanes as, coming down upon us from the north, would in thirty seconds after they had crossed the St. Lawrence river be in the gulf of Mexico, carrying with them the whole surface of the continent in a mass not simply of ruin, but of glowing vapor.

The Whole Thing.

"I suppose," said the absconding cashier to the friend who had run across him in parts unknown, "that there was a good deal of talk about me after I disappeared."

"I should think there was!" answered the friend. "Why, man, the weather wasn't mentioned at all for two weeks."

Personal?

The company marched so poorly and went through its drill so badly that the captain, who was of a somewhat excitable nature, shouted indignantly at the soldiers:

"You knockkneed, big footed idiots, you are not worthy of being drilled by a captain! What you want is a rhinoceros to drill you, you wretched lot of donkeys!"

Then, sheathing his sword indignantly, he added, "Now, lieutenant, you take charge of them!"—London Tit-Bits.

Pepys and Matrimony.

That rare old gossip, Samuel Pepys, had his own views on matrimony, as the following extract from his diary shows:

"Christmas day (1665)—To church in the morning, and there saw a wedding in the church, which I have not seen many a day, and the young people so merry with one another, and strange to see what delight we married people have to see these poor fools decoyed into our condition, every man and woman gazing and smiling at them."

Best Meats Underpriced at Messinger's Saturday Sale!

The wise use of her husband's money is a subject to which the wife today gives careful thought. When buying meats for her family she does not send the money chasing shadows—she refuses to buy kinds that are "perhaps" good—but she buys at a market where her investments bring safe and sure returns. Some of these safe investments are offered in our Saturday sale. They are safe because there's no waste to GOOD meats like ours. They bring returns in satisfaction to every member of the family, a void illness because wholesome, and, as we have often said, the best best meats are always the cheapest in the end.

Reo

The Oldest Car in the Show —Yet the Most Interesting

ISN'T IT REMARKABLE how the crowds linger around that wonderful old Reo the Fifth chassis, study it point for point, inquire, admire, go away and compare—and inevitably drift back again?

ISN'T IT A TRIBUTE to Consistency of Policy—to Good Intent; to Sound Engineering; to Quality of Workmanship; and finally, to Reo service—the way they pay homage to that Reo the Fifth?

IT ISN'T NOVEL in the sense that some of the sensationally new inventions are.

THAT STRIPPED REO chassis has been a feature of every national automobile show for now eight successive seasons—in practically its present form.

JUST REFINED and improved in minor details from year to year (yes, month to month, for we Reo Folk do not make "season models" nor wait till just before Show-time to make changes. We make them any time their need is apparent—or we learn how):—

AS WE WERE SAYING: that Reo chassis has been a feature—yes, the feature—of the Show for several years—yet its popularity is greater now than ever, if crowds are any criterion.

JUST GOES TO SHOW that people are learning—that experience does teach. Experienced motorists, the seasoned Old Timers, are not looking for a car that is "different" but for one that is better.

AND THEY'VE FOUND that kind of car in Reos.

THE NEW REO SIX is beginning to rival the great Reo the Fifth in popularity. It will be a strong rival when there are as many in the hands of owners.

AS IT IS, Reo the Fifth has a tremendous advantage over the Six—more than one hundred thousand owners are singing its praises daily and hourly, while less than twenty thousand as yet know the Reo Six at first hand

BUT SHE'S GAINING—just as rapidly as we can make them.

OF COURSE WE DON'T try to make all the automobiles—only the best ones. So naturally there's always an over-demand for Reos, all Reos, trucks as well as pleasure cars.

BUT WE WILL make fully twice as many Sixes the coming year—so next show time Reo the Fifth, that "incomparable" Four, will have to look to her laurels!

BUT BLESS YOU, no other than a Reo could ever hope to match a Reo either in popularity or performance!

PAID YOUR RESPECTS YET?—you owe it to yourself to do so. See the Reos—compare—then get your Reo while the getting's good. There won't be—never has been—enough to go round.

PRESENT PRICES apply only to orders for immediate delivery—we reserve the right to increase them without notice—may be compelled to at any time.

SO DON'T DELAY. Order and get your Reo now—if you can. If you delay there will be too many ahead of you. Today won't be a minute too soon.

PORT EWEN.

Port Ewen, March 2.—William J. Kelly of New York city spent the week end at the home of his mother, Mrs. Kelly, on Minturn street.

Hope Lodge, No. 65, Knights of Pythias, will meet in their Castle Hall on Broadway this evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Kate Ronk is ill at her home on Broadway. Dr. J. A. Decker is the attending physician.

Mrs. L. A. Fronefield is ill at her home on Green street. Dr. G. W. Ross is attending her.

Miss Marie L. Conroy, who spent the week end with her mother on Tilden street, has returned to Albany.

The business done at the Port Ewen West Shore station is to be highly commended, as the agent, A. H. Short, stated that over $19,000 worth of railroad business this year above last year has been done and the auditors and inspectors are amazed at so much business at so small and yet so ancient a station. The question arises, why is it that a station doing the amount of business as this one and yet has to have a worn out shabby station that was worn out when placed here. Now is the time for the influentials to act.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Jump of Hensonville are guests if their son, Harry Jump, on Broadway.

The annual conference supper of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist Church will be held Tuesday, March 27. Further particulars regarding the supper will be announced later.

William Warner, who has been the guest of his sister, Mrs. Oswald Neher, on Bayard street, returned to Rochester Thursday.

Frank Van Wagner of South Broadway was in Poughkeepsie on business Thursday.

Mrs. John U. Gillette of Broadway is acting as substitute principal of Connelly school during the absence of C. A. Owen, the principal.

George Proper of Sleightsburgh is ill of grip. His son, Earl Proper, is taking his place as teamster for J. Sleight's Sons, coal dealers.

Mrs. Lillian Horton of Schryver street is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Clarence Craig, in Poughkeepsie.

Miss Ada Pewter of Salem street was the guest of friends in Poughkeepsie Thursday.

Mrs. John Offhouse of Poughkeepsie spent Wednesday with her sister, Mrs. John Farnbecker, on Salem street.

John Roach, who has spent his two weeks' vacation at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Roach, on Hudson street, returned to New York city Thursday.

Claude Ronk of Brooklyn is spending a few days with his mother, Mrs. Kate Ronk, on Broadway.

The Rev. F. W. Moot, pastor of the Congregational Church at Poughkeepsie, preached a wonderful sermon Thursday evening at the evangelistic service in the Reformed Church from these words, "Who his own self bore our sins in his body upon the tree, that we, having died unto sins might live unto righteousness by whose stripes ye were healed." 1st Peter 2-24. Mr. Moot pictured very plainly the loss of a human soul and the gain of eternal life. He also named what money could buy but the price of a human soul was the accepting of Christ as the Saviour of Souls. There was a good representation of Port Ewen Lodge No. 656, I. O. O. F., and Esopus Council, No. 42, Sons and Daughters of Liberty. This evening the Rev. F. W. Moot will preach especially to the young people. All are most cordially invited. The Epworth League Christian Endeavor Societies and members of both Sunday schools and the Home Department are invited to be present in a body.

American Mineral Oil

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Use of Mineral Oil.

Dr. Le Tanneur contributes to the Paris Medical some practical points in the use of mineral oil in constipation. The oil, he says, is in no way digested or even modified by the juices of the stomach and intestines. It acts as a lubricant and nothing else, though it tends to heal abrasions of the intestinal wall caused by rough particles of food.

The New York Medical Journal says mineral oil should be taken either before breakfast or after dinner, two tablespoonfuls being a dose. Its use should be continued every day for at least a fortnight, when the bowels will continue to work naturally without it, for the mineral oil is in no sense a cathartic, but it will cure constipation.—Kingston Daily Freeman, February 17, 1917.

EAT PURE BREAD !

Now-a-days it is the height of wisdom to buy bread from a baker whose reputation guarantees the use of pure ingredients. The pure bread law which the majority of bakers in this state favored, and which was defeated by the bakers' trust in the Legislature not long ago, would have compelled the elimination of present-day unwholesomeness in the production of bread. You may depend upon

BEER contains about
92 per cent. water and about
5 per cent. of extract derived from hops and cereals principally Barley malt and only about
3 to 4 per cent. alcohol.

What is Beer?

Notwithstanding the fact that beer has become the most popular beverage of the United States, a vast number of well-meaning people, who are thoroughly versed in other subjects, have little or no knowledge of beer.

Ninety per cent. of beer consists of water. Pure potable water is the first requisite in every brewery. Beer contains just enough nutritious solids to give it a food value and just enough alcohol (3 to 4 per cent.) to give it snap and zest as a beverage.

Beer, used in moderation, is both a tonic and a strength builder. It is free from disease bearing germs and is one of the few products which pass from manufacturer to consumer without coming in contact with human hands.

Physicians prescribe beer for overworked businessmen, nervous women and others whose condition indicates the need of a tonic. Famous athletic trainers the world over allow their charges to partake of beer and unhesitatingly declare that it prevents athletes from going stale. In other words, it takes off the "wire" edge so frequently acquired after weeks of hard training for athletic events

There is no substitute for beer.

ASHES BLEW ON MAYOR CANFIELD

So B. P. W. Decides to Try Out Covered Ash Cart—Getting Ready for Spring Work on Streets—Furnace Street Not to be Cut Through to St. James—Cracks in Viaduct.

The fact that recently while Mayor Canfield was hurrying to the railroad station his clothing was liberally sprinkled with dust and ashes when members of the street force uptilted an ash can dumping its contents into a wagon proved a blessing in disguise for thousands of residents of Kingston who have had a similar experience for it led to the board of public works at its regular monthly meeting Thursday afternoon to instruct Superintendent Van Keuren to equip one of the ash collecting wagons with a canvas top to eliminate this disagreeable feature of the necessary work of collecting the city's ashes. Among the important matters also taken up at the meeting was the decision not to cut Furnace street through to St. James street as had been petitioned; placing an order for 40,000 gallons more or less of Dustoline at 12 cents a gallon, and giving Superintendent Van Keuren full authority to go ahead as soon as the frost was out of the ground and clean up the city streets getting them in shape to lay the street oil. The attention of the U. & D. and the O. & W. will also be called to cracks in the Washington avenue viaduct.

Prices on Cement.

At the last meeting of the board it had instructed Clerk Linson to notify the dealers in cement in the city to submit bids for 2,200 bags of cement which it is estimated the board will need this year in street work. Only two dealers submitted bids, Richard Tappen and Walter S. Darling. They offered to supply the board with cement at $2.07 a barrel, each barrel containing four bags. The order will be divided equally between the two dealers.

Mr. Darling in Trouble.

A commmunication from Walter S. Darling was read in which he stated that there was three feet of water under his store house which ran in from the street and if his stock was damaged he would hold the city liable. The matter after some discussion was referred to superintendent and city engineer to investigate.

Darling is Daring.

During the discussion it was brought out that Mr. Darling uses the viaduct as a store house and that he had built one end of his new store house on city property as it was resting on the site of the old Washington avenue sidewalk before the viaduct was built, and that being so that board could not see where Mr. Darling had a right to raise objections to water.

City Engineer Codwise reported that the Darling building on city property was so close to the viaduct that if the building ever caught fire it would damage the concrete work of the viaduct.

This will also be taken up with Mr. Darling.

Cracks in Viaduct.

While Darling and the viaduct was under discussion the city engineer submitted a report on the cracks in the Washington avenue viaduct, which had been reported at a previous meeting. He was of the opinion that the cracks should be filled with pitch.

It was brought out that it was up to the city to keep the roadway in repair but it was up to the railroads to keep the supports in repair. After some discussion Clerk Linson was instructed to notify the U. & D. and the O. & W. of the cracks in the viaduct..

Dustoline Ordered.

Mayor Canfield reported for the committee that an order had been placed for 30,000 to 40,000 gallons of Dustoline at 12 cents a gallon to be used on the city streets this spring. The order was confirmed by the board.

Other Matters.

A communication from Calvin Tompkins offering to sell the city crushed stone at 60 cents a cubic yard delivered in boats was filed.

The question of whether it would be advisable to place a catch basin in front of the garage of Van Etten & Hozan on Pine street was referred to Superintendent Van Keuren with power.

Not to Extend Furnace St.

At a recent meeting of the board a petition was received from residents uptown in regard to extending Furnace street through to St. James street. This was referred to the city engineer who reported that an examination showed that Furnace street had been opened to the foundry lot of Hermance. If the street was continued to St. James street it would cut the present foundry lot in two and would require the removal of a brick building two stories high and 40 x 92 feet in size. This brick building is the building on St. James street occupied by the Denmark Metal Cap Company before that company went out of business.

The report was filed. It seemed to be the opinion of the board that the street would not be cut through at present at least as it would be too expensive a proposition.

Getting Ready for Street Work.

Superintendent Van Keuren called attention to the need of repairs to the street roller and the street sweeper and was authorized to have them placed in repair.

He was also given authority to go ahead when the frost is out of the ground and place the streets in condition to lay the street oil. He was also instructed to take whatever steps was necessary to make the Strand and John street in passable condition, and also to clean Broadway.

Garbage Collections.

At the last meeting of the board of health that body passed a resolution to the effect that it desired the board of public works to take charge of the matter of garbage collections in the city, and at the meeting Thursday the B. P. W. accepted complete jurisdiction of the garbage situation in the city.

City Engineer and Venus.

While Clerk Linson was reading a requisition from City Engineer Codwise he read an item regarding Venus which made the members of the board look interested and wonder what the city engineer wanted with Venus in his office until it developed that Venus in this case was the brand of a lead pencil desired by Mr. Wood the efficient draughtsman in the engineer's office.

Light on W. Chestnut St.

Commissioner Burgevin said that he thought an arc light should be installed on West Chestnut street near the residence of Mrs. G. L. McEntee and he offered a resolution that the Kingston Gas & Electric Company be authorized to install the arc. The resolution was carried.

Bought Auto Truck.

It was brought out that the board had held a special meeting the early part of February and at that time had bought an auto truck from the King concern on Prince street who had quoted a price at a previous meeting. It is said that this truck will be delivered in April.

Board Adjourns.

The superintendent and city engineer were instructed to get in touch with the Kingston Granite Tub Works whose bid to supply crushed stone to the city had been accepted some time ago, and notify the concern that the board would soon be ready to take stone.

Bills and claims against the board were also audited and several routine matters disposed of and an adjournment taken.

COCONUT LOAF CAKE

½ cupful of Baker's Fresh Grated Coconut; ½ cupful of butter; 1 cupful of granulated sugar; 2 eggs; ½ cupful of coconut milk; 2 cupfuls of flour; 2 level teaspoonfuls of baking powder.

Cream butter and sugar until light; add well-mixed yolks of eggs, coconut milk, half the sifted flour and baking powder, the coconut which has been pressed dry in fruit press or cheesecloth. Beat the whites of eggs until light; fold in and add the rest of flour. Place on bottom rack in moderate oven; bake 40 minutes. Try with darning needle. If smooth, cake is done; if not, bake five to eight minutes longer. It is hard to give exact time to bake, as there is a difference in ovens.

The cake will keep a week (if kept under lock and key); in fact, it is better in three or four days than when first baked.

KINGSTON, N. Y., MARCH 2, 1917.

To few men is it given to receive, during life, such a spontaneous and unaffected tribute as fell to the lot of Major George F. Chandler at the hands of his fellow citizens upon his return home from service on the Mexican border. There were no strains of martial music, no pre-arrangement or formal program of greeting at the train, just a gathering of several hundred citizens ranging in years from Grand Army veterans who proudly carried Old Glory aloft to the tiny inmates of several baby carriages, these latter representing the most essential and foremost adjunct to preparedness. As an expression of local pride in the possession of a brigade officer who had proved himself competent and willing to perform arduous duties in his country's service, the reception served a useful purpose. In a larger sense, there was a genuine patriotic touch to the gathering of men and women at this time when the republic is facing one of the great crises in its history. The personality and popularity of the man no doubt played their part, but, for the time being, both were submerged by the fact that here was a flesh and blood representation of patriotic service, an ideal type of the man upon whom the nation's safety must depend in the hour of peril. It is good to have Major Chandler back again. It is better to know that Kingston appreciates the fact that the community possesses a broad-visioned, efficient and sane soldier who is at all times in readiness to respond to the call of duty. The example and influence that such a man exerts upon his fellow citizens are of inestimable value.

Prevailing prices for potatoes are having an adverse effect upon other things than the family diet. In the scramble to realize $3 a bushel or thereabouts, for their tubers, it will not be surprising if the farmers close out their home supplies and save none for the coming season's planting. This danger, while perhaps purely a matter of conjecture now, is none the less real. An insufficiency of seed potatoes means less acreage to be planted to potatoes this year, or possibly more idle land. If all of the food conservation agencies now projecting themselves into public notice could center their energies toward restriction of consumption of potatoes, much good would result. Food speculators would be compelled to come down off their high horses and farmers might, perforce, see the wisdom of withholding plenty of last year's crop to assure a sufficiency of seed potatoes. The Southern crops are not up to expectations and the same is true of the early potatoes from the Bermudas. To use foresight and avoid a repetition of war prices next year, care must be exercised in providing seed potatoes and at reasonable prices.

In a recent published report of the Prussian Ministry of Education appeared the following incidental lament: "The war has made plain to those who did not know it how terrible our ignorance of foreign thinking has been, and how bitterly we need scientific understanding of the present time." Apparently this ignorance of "foreign thinking" includes also ignorance of the thinking of the masses of transplanted Germans, especially those in the United States. Perhaps it also includes ignorance of the thinking among a great part of the population in Germany itself. What the dominating classes of Prussia appear to be in need of is not "scientific understanding" of anything, they being already scientific to a fault, but a recognition of the fact that they are out of touch and sympathy with the modern world's broad spirit of humanity, and that Germans after years of life abroad are as ready to absorb this spirit and to support free institutions based thereon as any other people.

Representative Rucker, elected to fill the unexpired term of Representative Tribble of the Eighth Georgia district, in a rambling but entertaining speech in the House the other day incidentally stated that after leaving Princeton University in 1869 he was for a time a newspaper correspondent, adding: "I sometimes wish, Mr. Speaker, I had staid in the newspaper business, because all connected with the press seem so bright. I do not know whether they are bright because they are connected with the press or connected with the press because they are bright." Whichever it may be, the press will appreciate Mr. Rucker's compliment.

According to the founder of the National Farm School, over 160 applications have been received for the services of the 17 young men who recently graduated from that institution. The obvious interpretation is that, while even ordinary farming is expected to pay better in the future than in the past, scientific farming is expected—and with good reason in such times as these—to bring rich returns. This expectation will not be disappointed in cases in which the scientific knowledge is mingled with a goodly proportion of common sense.

A WALL STREET RUMOR.

Like Most Rumors There is No Truth in It.

A rumor that the building occupied by E. T. Stelle & Son, the shoe men, on Wall street, was to be remodeled shortly, has been going around among the storekeepers in town. Dame Rumor had it that the building was to be remodeled and store fronts put in on the John street side of the building by Mr. Forman, the present owner, thus making show windows both on Wall street and John street. No such steps will be taken by Mr. Forman for the present and E. T. Stelle & Son will continue to occupy the whole store with their line of footwear.

Stelle recently discontinued the hat and glove business and has since been devoting the entire store to the shoe and footwear business. Since closing out the hat and glove line the interior of the store has been remodeled and show cases built to accommodate the large line of footwear which is handled by the firm.

Aristocratic Daughter.

Little Daughter (embarrassed)—"Papa, my schoolmates were going by while you were standing on the balcony shining your shoes. May I tell them at school tomorrow that you were the servant?"—Fliegende Blaetter (Munich).

LITTLE LAUGHS.

Father—"I got a number of sealed proposals at my office today." Daughter—"Oh, pa, were any of them for me?"—Puck.

He—"I never associate with my inferiors. Do you, Miss Cutting?" She—"Well, Mr. Snobson, I really can't say. I don't think I have ever met any of your inferiors."—Judge.

Adam (after a long silence)—"Say, Eve, can't you say something? It's dull here with a dumb wife." Eve—"What's a woman to talk about with no clothes and no servants?"—Life.

"Why did Maude fling that magazine from her so disgustedly just now?" "She saw an article in it headed, 'New Method of Filtration,' and she read it 'Flirtation.'"—Boston Transcript.

"You say that walking has prolonged your life?" "Yes I do. What's so queer about that?" "Nothing. Only I don't know of any roads where there are no automobiles."—Buffalo Express.

"I weigh my words," said the man of impressive assumptions. "Why trouble?" inquired Miss Cayenne. "Has anybody assured you of not making your conversation sufficiently heavy?"—Washington Star.

Aptly Named.

A bootblack was puffing at the end of a cigar when a gentleman, thinking to have a little fun at the youth's expense, asked him if he always smoked cigars. "Oh, yes, sir, pretty often," announced the youth. "What brand do you generally smoke?" asked the gentleman. "Robinson Crusoe, sir," replied the bootblack. The gentleman pondered a while. "I never heard of that brand," he said. "It's a name I've given 'em myself," said the youth. "You see, guvnor, old Crusoe was a castaway!"—Rochester Times.

Nothing in it.

A merchant was visited by a friend and customer from the country whom he entertained by a visit to the theatre, relates the Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph. When the lights were low the merchant drew forth a pair of opera glasses and handed them to his guest. A contented "Ah" slipped from the countryman, and then his arms in the air were discernible. "What's the trouble?" asked the host. The answer came in a distressingly plain whisper of disappointment: "O, nothing, only the thing's empty."

Between Two Fires.

"I educated one of my boys to be a doctor and the other to be a lawyer," said Father Corntassel. "You should be very proud of them," announced the visitors. "That seems like an excellent arrangement." "I don't know about that," replied the aged agriculturist; "it looks as though it was a-going to break up the family. I got run into by a locomotive, and one of 'em wants to cure me and the other wants me to go home so he can sue for damages."—Ladies' Home Journal.

The Modern Slogan.

The little son of a clergyman recently appeared at breakfast with distinct evidences of a hastily made toilet. "Why, Lambert," his mother remonstrated, "I believe you forgot to brush your hair." "I was in such a hurry to get to school," he explained. "I hope you didn't forget to say your prayers?" she asked, anxiously. "No, siree!" was the emphatic assurance; "that's one thing I never forget. Safety first!"—Harper's Magazine.

Ferdinand's Rapid Rise.

For three hours the American consul in a certain Mexican town had been sitting in the hotel dining room, relates the Buffalo Commercial. At length the proprietor came to him. "Pardon sir," he said, with a low bow, "were you waiting for anything?" "Yes," replied the consul. "Yesterday I told Ferdinand, your head waiter that I would dine here at 6. It's now 9, and he hasn't appeared yet." "Ferdinand joined the army today," the proprietor informed him. "If the senor—" "Gone, has he, the scoundrel? Why didn't he let me know he was going?" "More respect, please, senor," protested the Mexican, with dignity. "Ferdinand has won steady promotion, and is now a general!"

WATER BOARD TO EXPEND $30,000

New Filters, Filter House and Main Will Cost Approximately that Sum —Would Refund Bonds Due This Summer and Apply Earnings on Improvements.

At the meeting of the board of water commissioners Thursday afternoon in the city hall, a flag was hung from the window in honor of the return of Major Chandler, who is one of the members of the board, and later some of the commissioners went over to the West Shore station to greet him. Bills were audited and routine business passed upon, the matter of the new filter plant additions being the subject of a resolution. The board wants to pay for these out of earnings if possible..

President Hauck presided and Commissioners Roach, Canfield and Harrison were present with Superintendent Harrison and Assistant Secretary Abernethy.

In the resolution providing for the filters, offered by Commissioner Harrison, it is set forth that there are $24,000 in water bonds due June 1 and $6,000 due August 1 next. In order to increase the purity and wholesomeness of the water, the resolution states that it is necessary to install four sectional horizontal pressure filters, each eight feet in diameter by 20 feet in length, with a capacity of 2,000,000 gallons, to provide for buildings and extend a third main line pipe to Esopus creek, all at a cost of $30,000. The resolution then reads "that to avoid the issuance of new bonds by application to the legislature, in order to provide for said extensions and expenditures, and in order that this board may carry on such work from its earnings, the board petition and it does hereby petition the common council of the city of Kingston to pay up and retire said bonds above mentioned by the issuance of new bonds."

It is provided in the resolution that the new bonds be issued in denominations of $1,000 each and five of them payable on June 1st of each year from 1918 to 1922 inclusive. A certified copy of the resolution will now go to the common council and, if that body approves the work will be advertised for bids at an early date.

Some discussion was held as to the freeze-ups around town which have been quite numerous in the service lines. Only one main, that in Marius street, was frozen. The electric thawing device of the Kingston Gas & Electric Company has been in almost constant use the last two weeks by plumbers with good results.

One of the board wanted to know where Marius street was located. Another volunteered the information that it used to be known as Lovers' Lane.

"But they don't need any Lovers' Lane now that they have automobiles," said a third member facetiously. Another member of the board also located Stephen street, the numerous streets of the city being confusing evidently even to native sons.

QUARRYVILLE.

Quarryville, Mar. 1.—Mrs. Joshua Post spent Sunday with her sister at Catskill.

Miss Kathryn Perry and Mrs. Bridget O'Rourke and son, James, have returned to their home here from Schenectady.

James Young and wife of Alsen spent Thursday at Henry Hallenbeck's.

Rev. G. E. Robinson and wife spent last Thursday evening at Myron Fiero's.

A few of our local talent are laying plans for a play to be given in the future for the benefit of the M. E. Church. Watch these columns for more definite arrangements later.

A large crowd of people attended service at the M. E. Church Sunday afternoon and listened to an inspiring sermon on the Bible. The congregations are increasing and it is the desire of all that our pastor, Rev. G. E. Robinson, be returned to us for another year.

Mrs. John Heaness had the misfortune to fall Sunday evening and break her arm.

Leroy Cooke has accepted a position in Catskill.

John Schaff is confined to his home by illness.

William Humphrey enjoyed a vacation last week. Russell Teetsell took his place at S. W. Teetsell's.

Mrs. Albert Brant is visiting her daughter, Mrs. William Quick.

Fred Myer is suffering from the grip.

The services at the M. E. Church are well attended with the exception of the Sunday school and that seems to be forsaken by so many of our people. They seem to have no use for it. Still we pray for the future welfare of the church. But the Sunday school, which is the organization on which to a great extent the future of the church depends, let somebody keep it going—but excuse me appears to be the attitude of too many. These few words are not written in a spirit of fault finding. But the writer hopes that you who read this will find at least one hour on Sunday to give to the school in your own interest also your children and somebody else's children.

PLATTEKILL.

Plattekill, March 1.—The scholars of School District No. 9, will give an entertainment Friday afternoon under the management of the teacher, Miss E. M. Benedict. The exercises will be in honor of Washington's Birthday.

Word was received in this village of the birth of a son to Mr. and Mrs. William Horton of Brooklyn, Sunday, Feb. 24. Being a former resident of this place congratulations are extended from their Plattekill friends.

Miss May Dayton is visiting her sister, Mrs. Edward J. Birdsall.

Charles Fowler visited his wife at the State Asylum at Middletown last week.

Mr. and Mrs. David Lockwood, who reside at Bennington, Vt., expects to move to Tampa, Fla., in the near future. Mrs. Lockwood was formerly Miss Nellie Palmer of this place.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Harcourt and son Egbert spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Harry P. Gerow.

Dr. and Mrs. E. Danielson entertained a few of their friends and neighbors Thursday evening, Feb. 22, in honor of the twenty-ninth anniversary of their marriage. A chicken supper was served to the guests and cards and dancing were enjoyed. Victrola and piano furnished music and the guests departed expressing a very pleasant time.

Miss M. A. Gerow and J. B. Palmer attended the Fruit Growers' Association meeting held in Poughkeepsie last week.

Miss Irene Birdsall is visiting her sister, Mrs. Herbert Tremper at East Coldenham, Orange county.

Volney Waite, who recently attended Spencer's Business College at Newburgh, has accepted a position as accountant in the Highland National Bank of Newburgh.

Miss Alice Crowell is at Miss M. A. Gerow's, dressmaking this week.

Miss E. Brown and J. B. Palmer each had the misfortune to lose a cow by death, the past week.

The host of friends and relatives of Harry Gerow of this place are glad to hear of his rapid improvement, after being confined to his home with rheumatism the past three months. His recovery he owes to Dr. M. E. Stephens of Gardiner, pronounced by many as the most efficient doctor in this locality or any other.

Alder World's Oldest Dye.

For the purpose of making dyes the common alder appears to have been unnoticed by the pioneers of this country, who made use of so many barks and roots. However, it was well-known to the Indians, who used it to good effect. It dyes a reddish color, and down to a few years ago was employed by natives of the northwestern Pacific coast in coloring their fish nets. Alder dye, used for the same purpose, is said to be the oldest recorded dye in the world. It is mentioned in the Kalevala of Finland, supposed to date nearly 3,000 years ago.

"HUMPTY DUMPTY" HAD A BAD FALL

Tony Denier Suffered Fractured Arm While Walking Near City Home. —Removed to Hospital Later.

Tony Denier, the original Humpty Dumpty clown, who for years traveled with a circus and delighted thousands of people with his funny antics, is confined to the Kingston City Hospital with a broken arm.

In spite of his advanced age, Tony, who has been a resident of the City Home for some time, delights in taking walks through the country and on clear days may be found walking about the fields in the neighborhood of the City Home on Flatbush avenue. On Thursday afternoon while going along a path in the rear of the barns toward the railroad track, he fell on the ice, striking upon his left arm. A man coming along the path a short time later found Tony and helped him get back to the City Home. As soon as Superintendent Edmonston was notified of the accident he had Tony removed to the Kingston City Hospital where his arm was cared for. Until time of his arrival at the hospital, Tony did not know whether his arm had been broken or not.

UNDER THE CAPITOL DOME.

(Chief William J. Flynn.)

Washington, March 2.—Are you a United States Senator or a member of the United States Supreme Court, or some other more or less unimportant public person? If you are and you are going to attend the inauguration of President Wilson on March 5, you will be grateful for the presence of William J. Flynn.

William J. Flynn is chief of the United States Secret Service, and one of the big jobs he runs up against every several years is to see that the president and the hundreds of distinguished persons who attend an inauguration are properly protected from attacks by cranks or anarchists.

For days before the inauguration Chief Flynn's men watch the arrivals at the Union Station with hawk eyes. They are familiar with the features of most of the dangerous anarchists, and the arrival of such a one would mean his almost instant apprehension. Secret Service men also circulate through the crowds and keep their eyes open for suspicious persons and persons with suspicious packages or bundles.

All in all, Chief Flynn's job is no soft snap.

Leftover Sandwiches.

Sometimes after a party there are sandwiches left over. Here is an excellent way of using them up: Make a batter exactly like you use for pancakes and add to it either sugar or salt, according to whether the sandwiches are sweet or savory. Then each sandwich is dipped in the batter and fried till a golden brown in fat from which a faint bluish smoke is rising. No matter how dry they are they are delicious done in this way.

Telltale Tommy.

Tommy—Do you go to bed very early, Mrs. Peck?

Mrs. Peck—Yes, Tommy; sometimes—when I feel tired.

"You wouldn't go so early if you were married to my father, would you?"

"Oh, Tommy, you funny boy! Why not?"

"'Cause my father told mother that if he were your husband he'd make you sit up!"—Exchange.

Guard Your Habits.

We are creatures of habit. We succeed or fail as we acquire good habits or bad ones, and we acquire good habits as easily as bad ones. That is a fact. Most people don't believe this. Only those who find it out succeed in life.—Herbert Spencer.

Sound Advice.

"Is there no way of stopping these cyclones?" asked a man of the traveler who was recounting his experiences in far countries.

"No," replied the narrator. "The best way is to go right along with 'em."—Exchange.

Whenever you can look at yourself and be satisfied you should begin to suspect yourself of moral blindness.

A GREAT SOCIAL PROBLEM.

To Get Men Rightly to Adjust Themselves to All Other Men.

Our great social problem is how to make the man at the bottom loom so large and seem so important that all other men will cease to think of him as a thing and treat him as a person. The real social problem out of which other minor problems grow and of which they are really only aggravated symptoms is the world old problem of the right relation between persons.

This is a fundamental issue and to solve it would solve all these minor manifestations. The friendly relation of men is therefore not alone the gist of the race problem, but it is the gist of all social problems.

The age long struggle has been how to get men rightly to adjust themselves to all other men.

Right adjustment to other men would mean in the economic realm that no capitalist would want to beat down below a living wage the laborer who made production possible. It would mean that no laborer would want more wages and shorter hours than the condition of production would stand.

Right adjustment between men would mean that no landlord would be willing to live easy off rents of houses which made health and happiness impossible to the occupant. It would mean in return that no tenant would demand more than that for which he gave a just return, and he would protect the interest of his landlord as he would protect his own interest.

Right adjustment would mean in all walks of life the rule of right, not the rule of might.—Southern Workman.

Greatest Saturday Food Values Are AT WASHINGTON MARKET

To perpetuate and increase the general feeling of confidence in Washington Market is the motive that drives this business forward to better service. We have done great things in value-giving in the past, but we want to do even better. It is a pleasure for use to sell the best Meats and Canned Goods at the lowest prices uptown when wholesale conditions will permit, as for Saturday we have reached our goal in price-cutting as nearly as possible under existing circumstances. You cannot equal or surpass our values anywhere within our sphere of action. Our price may be matched where cold storage goods are sold, but in real food economics Washington Market leads.

FOOD PRICE RELIEF AT Planthaber's Saturday

The public is justly indignant over the "cornering" of foods and the hoisting of prices. The riots that are taking place in New York and elsewhere are not demonstrations of the thriftless and worthless. They are the outraged protest of the thrifty, the industrious and the frugal, who cannot meet the demands of food prices that now exist. There will be no riots in Kingston so long as a market like ours continues to do business here. Instead of keeping step with the steady price advances, we add only a fraction of them to our retail prices and cut down the profits that rightfully should come to us. We know that patrons will remember this generosity when the business horizon clears and the food situation is relieved.

BRYAN GIVEN HOT SHOT BY METCALF

Nebraska Not in Great Commoner's Vest Pocket But in Favor of Universal Military Training.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, March 2.—That part of official Washington which remembers the close relationship that has always existed between friendship and government appointments was chuckling today over an incident of the Nebraska Association banquet last night.

"The citizenship of Nebraska," declared William Jennings Bryan, 'one of her best known sons, "is united on the question of keeping this country out of war with Germany. My prayer is that we reserve our neutrality."

Up sprang Richard L. Metcalf, whom Mr. Bryan had appointed civil governor of the Panama Canal Zone when secretary of state. Looking straight at Mr. Bryan, Mr. Metcalf replied:

"With practical unanimity of sentiment the people of Nebraska are for military preparedness. Nebraska is for universal military training! The nation that murders my people on the deck of the Lusitania is no friend of mine."

He sat down amid a "silence that you could almost hear."

ELLENVILLE.

Ellenville, March 2.—The March meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church was held at the home of Mrs. George F. Andrews on Center street Thursday afternoon. The meeting was in charge of the first vice-president, Mrs. V. T. Wright in the absence of the president. It was the annual election of officers for ensuing year and the following were elected to office: President, Mrs. Frank J. Potter; first vice president, Mrs. V. T. Wright; second vice president, Mrs. H. W. Coons; third vice president; Mrs. George Hoornbeek; secretary, Mrs. S. M. Gould; assistant secretary, Mrs. O. H. Hartwig; treasurer, Mrs. Andrews. The Republicans appointed as conference committe William L. Fuller, H. S. Wells and E. P. Terwilliger and the Democrats, C. G. A. Fischer, George Mittreer and Henry F. Heath and after the conference, the committee agreed to nominate and support the following ticket: For president of the village, Louis A. Hoornbeck; trustees, Henry Canner and I. W. Millard; collector, Frank Rose; treasurer, Clark Bunting; assessor, Addison Stratton. The annual election will be held at Firemen's Hall on Tuesday, the 20th March, between the hours of 11:30 and 3:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Sarre has found it impossible to give her illustrated lecture on "The Chateaux of France" at the Forum meeting this Friday evening, but will give it on the evening of March 16. In the place of this lecture the Forum is very fortunate to have, through the kindness of Frank Seaman of Yama Farms, the entertainer, Ducrot the Wizard, Ellenville people are fortunate to present this artist without charge. In New York the same "Ducrot" is a guarantee that the entertainment will be "up to the minute."

Announcements have been received of the birth of a son to Dr. and Mrs. P. DuBois Bunting at Elizabeth, N. J., on February 28. Congratulations are certainly extended. Dr. Bunting was formerly of Ellenville, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Bunting.

Quered Himself.

"You are saluted by most of the men you meet, Hanks, but I never notice a woman recognize you," said a friend to a prominent official.

"No; I haven't a woman friend in town," replied the politician.

"How is that?"

"I was once judge of a baby show here. The woman whose baby I gave the prize to has moved away. She was the only friend I had among the fair sex in this community. All the rest are my enemies."

How Fielding Spelled His Name.

The Fieldings are an ancient race, and the Denbigh earldom dates from 1622. By the way, there is a funny story as regards the family name and its spelling. The author of "Tom Jones" was one of the race, and the then Lord Denbigh said to his relative: "Why don't you spell your name 'Feilding,' as the rest of us do and not 'Fielding?'"

The writer made answer: "Because I am the first of the family who learned to spell."—London Standard.

GOVERNOR STOPS DARCY RING BOUT

Briton Styled a "Runaway Afraid to Fight" for Country—Whitman Believes Citizens Will Support his Step.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, March 2.—Taking the ground that Les Darcy, brilliant Australian fighter, is a "slacker," Governor Whitman today announced that he will not permit the Darcy-Jack Dillon fight, which was to have ben held in Madison Square Garden, New York, next Monday night.

The governor branded Darcy as a "runaway from his own country," in a statement issued today. Governor Whitman had previously declared that lionizing the Australian after he had fled his country to avoid conscription would set a bad example to the youth of America at a time when this country is faced with a serious international crisis. His statement follows:

"I have directed the boxing commission to forbid the holding of the so-called boxing exhibition at Madison Square Garden on Monday night. I am credibly informed that one, Darcy, has planned, or that his managers have planned, that the fight, contemplated, shall be what is commonly known as a fight to a finish or a 'knock out.' Darcy, so I am informed, is a runaway from his own country. In disguise and under an alias, he left his native land because he was afraid to fight in the cause for which his fellow countrymen are sacrificing their lives. He prefers to give a brutal exhibition, at some personal risk, for a purse of $30,000.

"I believe that the citizens of this state will support the governor in his insistence that this thing shall not be permitted in New York."

LAST "WET" INAUGURATION.

President to Sign Bill—Breweries to Make Soft Drinks.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, March 2—All hope that Washington will remain wet fled today when the word was quietly passed around that President Wilson will sign the Sheppard Bill, which forbids the manufacture and sale of liquor in the District after Nov. 1.

Some of the more ardent wets will continue their efforts to prevent the "drouth" until the last moment, but their efforts are admittedly forlorn. The breweries here are planning either to abandon their works, or turn them into soft drink producers.

Washington will be the first important capital of the world to go dry in peace times. The president will probably sign the bill late tomorrow or on Sunday morning.

The Law's Delays.

The celebrated Bishop Demetra will case had a run of 122 years, and not long ago the Pultney probate case, which began about 1799, was revived by an application to presume death. Recently a suit relating to market rights at Stowmarket, in Suffolk, which had been "adjourned" in Edward III.'s reign, was reopened. But the most satisfactory lawsuit for barristers was probably "Ashton versus Mumpesson," finally decided some years since by Mr. Justice Chitty after 150 years.—London Chronicle.

How the Engagement Was Broken.

"I can't make you out at all," he said angrily. "You're so fickle and changeable. You're just a riddle to me."

"Yes?" replied his fiancee. "Since you're so stupid perhaps you'd better give me up."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Mary Jones' House Party

By RICHARD MARKLEY

One morning when I had been to the store and was returning to the farm I met Mary Jones.

"Howdy, Helen," she said. "I've got an idea. I don't see why we country people shouldn't have house parties as well as city folk."

"What's a house party?" I asked.

"Why, a lot of people all go to somebody's house and stay there two or three days or a week or perhaps longer. They play games and dance, and, well, they don't do anything but amuse themselves. Father and mother are going over to spend a week with Aunt Jane pretty soon, and I'm going to have a house party. Will you come?"

"I suppose so."

"Jim Cunningham will be one of us."

Mary's house party came off, sure enough. We had the house all to ourselves, and there was every reason why we should expect a good time. The first evening we were together we had a candy pulling, and the next morning the auto was brought out, and all went for a ride, except myself. I didn't feel well and concluded to stay at home. At least, this is the reason I gave for not going, but the true reason was that Sarah Flint, one of the girls, had undertaken to appropriate Jim Cunningham to herself, and I didn't like it, because he didn't let her know she couldn't do it.

While they were gone there was a rap of the knocker on the front door. I went there and found a girl who asked for Mary. I told her that Mary had gone on a ride, and she looked very much disappointed. She said she was Mary's cousin and had come all the way from Hanover Court House to see her. I told her to come in and make herself at home. She did so, and I went back to my room.

When I went downstairs again she had gone. The auto party didn't come back till evening, and when they did I failed to get an opportunity to tell Mary about her cousin who had been to see her. We had supper and in the evening danced, I playing the piano for the others. I didn't want to dance with Jim, and I didn't want to refuse him. That's the reason I did the playing.

The next morning a change had come over the house party. Something had gone wrong. Then I noticed that the girls were giving me the cold shoulder. Later on I went to Mary and asked her what was the matter. She said that while they were gone on the ride the day before somebody had taken things from their rooms. I saw right away what it meant. I was the only one left to do the stealing, so I was the thief.

It was very stupid of me not to think of Mary's cousin, but I was so broken up by what had occurred that I was incapable of anything for awhile.

It was plain that Sarah Flint was doing all she could to fix the theft on me. I, supposing that she was turning Jim against me, didn't give him a chance to show his faith in and sympathy for me, but just turned away from him every time he approached me. I suppose this made him mad, for he kept making up to Sarah, and when he passed me he held his nose in the air.

The evening after the day of the theft I said to Mary:

"I forgot to tell you that your cousin came to see you all the way from Hanover Court House when you were out motoring."

"My cousin! I haven't any cousin at Hanover Court House."

Then I told her how the girl had gone away without saying that she was going or leaving any message.

"Why didn't you tell me that before?" said Mary. "The girl was the thief, of course."

"I never thought of that," I replied.

Mary went right away to the others and told about the girl who had pretended to be her cousin and who had had the run of the house as long as she wanted to. Of course this put a new face on the affair, and they came to me, all except Sarah Flint, and asked my pardon for suspecting me of theft, though some of them said they hadn't thought I was guilty at all. But I knew better.

Jim watched for his opportunity to speak to me, and I purposely went off by myself to give him a chance. When he came to me he seemed not to know what to say.

"Why have you treated me so shabbily?" he asked.

"I have simply treated you as you deserve. When I was wrongfully accused, instead of standing by me you sided with my bitterest enemy."

"I tried to tell you that I believed you innocent, but you wouldn't give me a chance."

"Not while you were listening to the poison of that snake."

"I was trying to get away from her, but you threw me back to her."

"If I threw you back I certainly didn't throw you back to her. You went to her of your own accord."

"And you won't make up?" he said ruefully.

"Any man who is engaged to a girl and won't stand by her when she is accused—at least till she is proved guilty—is no man for me."

He went away very much crestfallen. Soon after this interview I saw Sarah trying to coddle him. He listened to her till she had come to a stopping point, then turned and walked away from her. I noticed that he didn't join her again while we were at Mary Jones'.

Finally I forgave him.

Had Been Promoted.

Edward had just started in kindergarten. His mother took him the first morning, then an older boy a few doors away called for him. After a day or two of that Edward felt brave enough to call for the little girl across the street. One morning while his mother was getting him ready his father said: "Hurry up, here comes Frederick." Edward turned and disdainfully replied: "Ha, I don't have to go with Frederick. I'm a taker myself."

Good Health Waits on Digestion.

Cheerfulness and stoutness are generally found together. Fat is probably the result of good digestion, because food eaten is readily changed by the processes of the body into living tissues. The flesh of your body may be measured by the ability of the digestive structures to get the full measure of worth out of the food consumed.

JAPAN SAYS IDEA IS PREPOSTEROUS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Tokio, March 2.—The idea that Japan might desert the Entente and join Germany in waging war on the United States was characterized as "utterly preposterous" by a high government official today. It is reported that the foreign office is preparing a formal statement reaffirming Japan's allegiance to the Entente and assuring the United States of its friendly feeling.

Officials here at first refrained from all comment on the sensational charge of German plotting emanating from Washington because it was contained only in press dispatches. Later word reached Tokio that the administration had vouched for the authenticity of the story.

One prominent personage declared his belief that the Zimmerman note was "planted" by Germany. German diplomats he said, counted upon its discovery to create suspicion against Japan both in America and Entente countries and to frighten the American people into remaining out of the war. This view was not generally held.

"Germany may have planned such a move," said a well informed person, "but how foolish for Japan to ally herself with a waning power and brand herself a traitor in history."

BRITISH STEAMER SINKS SUBMARINE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New Orleans, La., March 2.—A German submarine which attacked the British steamship Knight Companion in the Atlantic was sunk in an exchange of shells, according to the commander of the vessel, which arrived here today.

The U-boat opened fire at a range of 7,500 yards and fired five shells at the Knight Companion, all of which went wild. The vessel's second shot hit the submarine which turned over and sank. The Knight Companion is under heavy guard at the docks here.

The Knight Companion is one of a fleet of vessels owned by the Knight Steamship Company and registered at Liverpool. She displaces 7,241 tons.

Quarter Million Fire Loss.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 2.—Fire which has already destroyed the Pranzen storehouse with an estimated loss of $250,000, threatens to spread to the buildings of the Patton Furniture Company and the International Harvester Company. The paper supply of three newspapers was stored in the burned buiding. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Radium Emanations.

The emanations from radium cannot be stopped, but as scarcely any exhaustion of the material is appreciable, despite the fact that a stream of energy is constantly passing off from it, this is of small consequence. If the rays were allowed to escape promiscuously, however, they might do considerable damage; in order to confine them, therefore, a safe has been constructed with a thick lining of lead inside the steel.

Successful Plea.

Gunther was dragging Wolfgang around the garden in his little wagon. Finally, getting tired, he said: "Now, get out. I want to take my wounded soldiers to the hospital." "But I am a wounded soldier," said Wolfgang. This settled the matter, and for another hour the little wounded soldier had a good ride.

APPEAL FOR AID FOR FAMILIES OF CO. M

To the Citizens of Kingston and of Ulster County:

Nearly one week ago, I sent out an appeal through the city newspapers and by a letter with pledge cards to each member of the Soliciting Committee, for pledges for the relief of the dependents of Company M.

In that appeal I called attention to the fact that the Executive Committee had reported that it would need the sum of $150 per week or $600 per month for the proper relief of the families of our soldier "boys."

Some have responded quickly, willingly and generously. However, those who have disclosed a financial sympathy with the cause constitute a very small minority.

A fear has arisen in the minds of some that the amount would be oversubscribed, and for that reason their "mite" would not be needed. Fear not. If that fear is the string that keeps tied your pocketbook, cut the knot; because, as yet, there is no basis for any such fear. The amount thus far given and pledged is only about one-quarter of the total amount required each month. Those who give will receive a receipt from the treasurer in due time.

To those who have failed to sign a pledge card because they are not desirous of binding themselves for an indefinite period, kindly sign for a maximum period of one year or six months or three months. Everyone should show a disposition to take a thoughtful, but yet hopeful view of matters, and we all hope that Company M will be with us again by April.

The patriotism of this community is measured by its ability to meet this impelling duty. It is a service which has to be rendered and which should be met with a spontaneous response. It is not charity but the acceptance of a civic and patriotic trust. Some one is bound by a moral, natural and patriotic obligation to perform it. Are not you that "someone?"

AMERICAN WOMAN HAILED AS LACONIA DISASTER HEROINE.

(Mrs. Frank E. Harris.)

Survivors of the Cunard liner Laconia, sunk by a German submarine off the Irish coast, were loud in their praises of Mrs. Frank E. Harris, wife of an American army officer, when they landed from the British patrol boat rescue ship at Queenstown. Mrs. Harris was the last woman to leave the Laconia and was among the ship's officers in the last boat to push off.

PERKINS'S SMELTS DRUG ON MARKET

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, March 2.—Samuel Walawitch had the courage to open up his store in Williamsburg today and displayed for sale food articles under boycott. Scarcely had Sam removed the shutters when a flying squadron of Amazonian housewives swooped down and after a few minutes police extracted Samuel from the midst of a mass of produce and placed two of the riotous leaders under arrest.

The female mob then turned on the police and it was necessary to call out additional officers to quell the disturbance.

Twenty thousand tons of Columbia river smelts are a drug on the market here today. An attempt made by George W. Perkins, food commissioner, to dispose of the fish at cost and thereby alleviate the food situation in the East Eide has met with rebuke. Housewives are leaving the fish entirely alone.

"We don't want charity, we want reduction in prices," a committee of the housewives told Perkins at a conference today. They demanded that the fish be distributed from wagons or community stores and not through dealers who make a profit on them.

Woodstock Woman's Club.

The annual parlor meeting of the Woman's Club of Woodstock was held last Tuesday evening at the M. E. Hall. About fifty people were in attendance. The business meeting was presided over by the president of the club, Mrs. Bruce Herrick. Reports from the secretary and treasurer were read. After the business meeting a social evening was spent, which was under the direction of Mrs. Oscar Mosier, Mrs. Norman Elwyn and Mrs. Charles Lasher. Much credit is due to these ladies who have worked so diligently to make the social part of the evening such a thorough success. Addresses were given by the Rev. Mr. Sherman, who spoke on the benevolent purpose of the club. An address was also given by the Rev. Mr. Kerr of the Methodist Church. Miss Alma Van Etten rendered two charming songs. A number of amusing and interesting games were also a feature of the evening. Mrs. George Riseley, Mrs. Henry Pepper and Mrs. Sarah Ricks who had the refreshments in charge served a bountiful repast. All were in good spirits and pronounced this one of the most enjoyable meetings of this kind that the club has had in many a day.

His First Golf Play.

H. Chandler Egan's first golf was played on a three hole course in a pasture back of his father's house, at Highland Park, Ill. The former champion and his brother laid out the links, then invited their cousin, Walter, to teach them the game. The latter teeing up a ball on the first, hit it straight down to the broomstick which served as a flag pole. The ball bounced along the uneven green and disappeared in the hole. Turning to his astonished gallery, he remarked:

"There, you see, it is very simple. That is the way you do it."

Chandler Egan tried, but didn't succeed, and although he won the amateur title twice, he claims he was never able to equal the wonderful drive his cousin made that day.—Golfers' Magazine.

Eyes of Rubber.

Artificial eyes of rubber are taking the place of the old style glass optic in Europe. The rubber eyes have the advantage of being unbreakable, and as they are of pneumatic construction they maintain an elastic contact between the eyelids and the back of the orbitary cavity.

To make the new rubber product a cast formed of liquid plaster is made of the orbitary cavity, and from this is constructed an eyeball, the face being of vulcanite. The front and back parts are made of soft rubber, there being a space between the two parts which is occupied by air, making the eyes pneumatic.—Popular Science Monthly.

A Metercar Race in 1895.

In 1895 a few enthusiastic "horseless carriage" manufacturers decided that the time was ripe for a race. As we look back at it now the contest was a mechanical jest. The vehicles started bravely and then stopped lamely while their drivers made repairs. One inventor followed his mechanical wonder with a team of horses. The winner of the race had averaged the mad speed of seven and one-half miles an hour. His engine, carefully tested after the feverish contest was over, was found to develop an amazing four horsepower. —Waldemar Kaempffert in Harper's Magazine.

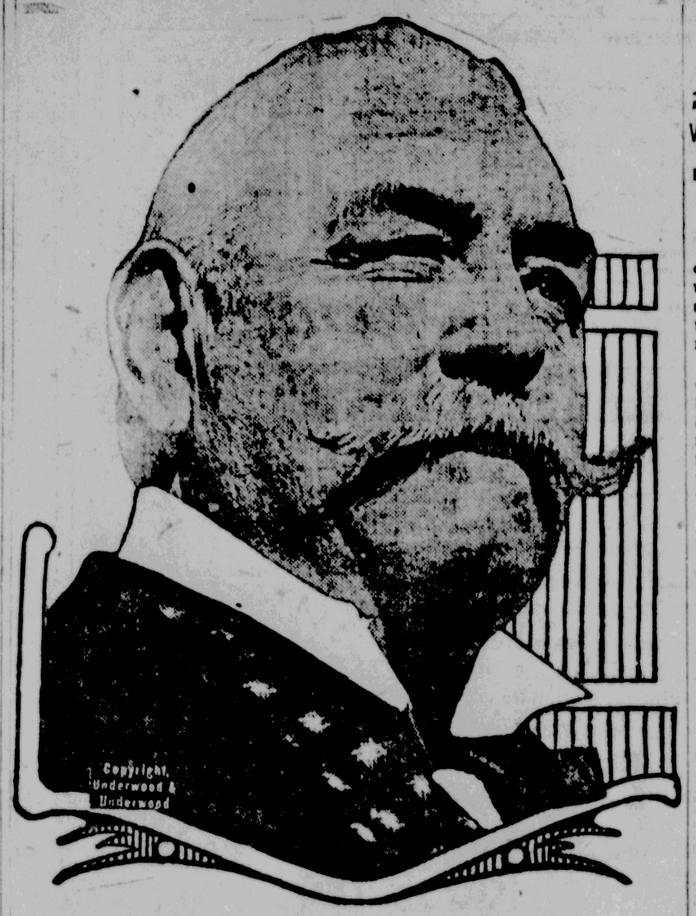
Football and Matrimony.

"Well, I wish him luck," said Mr. Jones after reading in the paper an account of the wedding of a popular member of a college football team. "But," he added in a ruminating tone, "marriage is very much like football."

"Don't talk so ridiculous!" snapped Mrs. Jones. "How can you compare football to marriage?"

"Why," replied Jones, "it looks so easy to those who haven't tried it."

SIMPLE LIFE RECOMMENDED BY JOHN L.



ONCE MIGHTY WORLD'S CHAMPION PUGILIST.

Can one imagine John L. Sullivan, the once mighty world's champion, pattering about his comfortable farm at North Abington, Mass., building pig pens, nailing up and repairing fences, painting his barn, putting electric wires in his house, milking cows, grooming and feeding his horses and being an all-around handy man on his snug, homelike estate? But that's just the way John L. amuses himself nowadays, and has been doing for the past two years, since he quit going on the road in the show business.

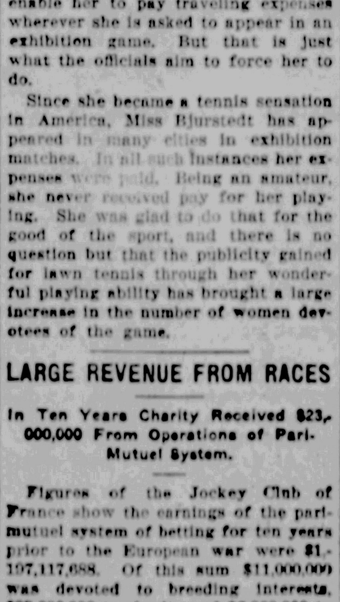
"These little jobs about the farm," said the old warhorse, "is the best exercise in the world. I never felt in better health in my life, and would be as happy as a clam at high tide if my good wife was only in as good condition as I am. Good, honest, outdoor work is the best medicine in the world and keeps a man in fine form all the year round."

MAY BAR MOLLA BJURSTEDT

Proposed Rule to Prohibit Clubs From Paying Traveling Expenses Will Keep Her Out.

The tennis officials have become so badly affected by the "amateur mania" that they probably will adopt a rule at their coming meeting which may bar Miss Molla Bjurstedt, the Scandinavian star and champion, from appearing in exhibition matches throughout the country.

The girl net wizard is comparatively poor. By profession she is a nurse.



Molla Bjurstedt.

Her income from that source is sufficient to meet her ordinary expenses of living, but not much more. Certainly it does not prove enough money to enable her to pay traveling expenses wherever she is asked to appear in an exhibition game. But that is just what the officials aim to force her to do.

Since she became a tennis sensation in America, Miss Bjurstedt has appeared in many cities in exhibition matches. In all such instances her expenses were paid. Being an amateur, she never received pay for her playing. She was glad to do that for the good of the sport, and there is no question but that the publicity gained for lawn tennis through her wonderful playing ability has brought a large increase in the number of women devotees of the game.

LARGE REVENUE FROM RACES

In Ten Years Charity Received $23,000,000 From Operations of Pari-Mutuel System.

Figures of the Jockey Club of France show the earnings of the pari-mutuel system of betting for ten years prior to the European war were $1,197,117,688. Of this sum $11,000,000 was devoted to breeding interests, $23,000,000 to charity and $6,000,000 to the payment of water taxes.

POULTRY

WINTER TONIC FOR POULTRY

Beets, Silage and Alfalfa Produce Satisfactory Results—Cabbage Also Is Excellent.

Succulent feed should be given to chickens in winter, because of its value as a tonic, asserts R. M. Sherwood, acting head of the department of poultry husbandry in the Kansas state agricultural college.

"Beets, silage, and alfalfa may be obtained on most farms," said Mr. Sherwood. "Alfalfa leaves soaked in sour milk are of great value. The milk softens the leaves, and also furnishes valuable food nutrients. It is well for the farmer to plant winter wheat or rye near his chicken house."

Cabbage is excellent as a green feed, in the opinion of Mr. Sherwood. Some persons feed turnips, potatoes, and even apples. Sprouted oats are often used for succulence, but it is not desirable that the sprouting be done in the house because of the offensive odor given off. This necessitates the use of a special sprouter with heater, and adds materially to the cost of the feed.

REPAIRS FOR THE INCUBATOR

Time to Get Machine Into Working Order—Removable Parts Should Be Thoroughly Cleaned.

(By C. B. BROWN, Poultryman, Northwest Experiment Station)

In a few days many incubators will be in operation. Whether the chicks are to be hatched early in March or not until the middle of April, it is time to look after repairs and to get the machine in shape. Repairs for the incubator may not be readily found.

If the incubator was neglected at the close of last season, it should be thoroughly cleaned. Removable parts should be taken out and washed and the entire machine should be aired and sunned. A 10 per cent solution of zenoleum should be used as a disinfectant in washing the interior of the machine.

PREPARE GEESE FOR MARKET

Use Slender-Bladed Sharp Knife, Making Cut Well Back in Order to Induce Free Bleeding.

When the birds are thoroughly fat and plump, geese may be killed in the following manner: Hang by the feet, back to the wall and insert a long slender-bladed, sharp knife into the roof of the mouth. The cut should be made well back in order to induce free bleeding. It is difficult to drypick a fat bird without tearing the skin. A better way is to loosen the feathers by scalding or steaming.

A good way is to make a small platform of laths and place it in the bottom of a barrel so that the platform will be about 4 inches above the water. Pour into the barrel boiling water until it comes within about an inch of the platform. Lay the goose on the platform, cover the barrel tightly with a heavy piece of carpet or cloth and allow it to steam for five or six minutes.

Before placing the bird in the barrel, tie a stout string to its feet, leaving one end hanging outside by which the bird may be drawn out and suspended at a convenient height for picking. Have a large bag or barrel near into which the feathers may be placed as they are picked. Care must be taken that the feathers are not soiled by blood or dirt as they will lose their value.

After the bird is thoroughly cleaned, dip in cold water and allow it to remain two or three minutes. Leave feathers on about half the neck next to the head and also on the wings above the first joint. Geese should be marketed with the heads on and undrawn. Do not lay one bird upon another when picked but wrap each in a clean cloth or paper, place it on its back and allow it to cool in that form. Never hang a bird up by the feet or head to cool as this destroys their plump appearance.

CRACKED CORN IS CHEAPEST

Fowls Get Enough Benefit From Picking Up Small Pieces to More Than Pay for Cracking.

Cracked corn is cheaper as a chicken feed than is whole corn. That is, the chickens will get enough benefit over whole corn, from the exercise required to fill their crops with an evening meal of cracked corn, to more than pay for the cracking. A sieve should be used to sift the fine portion of the corn for making mashes.

The poultry breeder should not try to save by limiting the amount of food, but by avoiding waste of food.

Kill off the rats and mice which destroy an enormous amount of grain.

Feed in clean litter. If there is any mash left after feeding, scrape it into a bucket for the next day's feed.

Record for Cake.

Often when my little cousin came to our house my mother had ginger cake, but one day she had an angel food cake and Johnnie said: "Gee, Aunty Anne, this is the cleanest cake you ever had."—Exchange.

The Oldest Car in the Show —Yet the Most Interesting

ISN'T IT REMARKABLE how the crowds linger around that wonderful old Reo the Fifth chassis, study it point for point, inquire, admire, go away and compare—and inevitably drift back again?

ISN'T IT A TRIBUTE to Consistency of Policy—to Good Intent; to Sound Engineering; to Quality of Workmanship; and finally, to Reo service—the way they pay homage to that Reo the Fifth?

IT ISN'T NOVEL in the sense that some of the sensationally new inventions are.

THAT STRIPPED REO chassis has been a feature of every national automobile show for now eight successive seasons—in practically its present form.

JUST REFINED and improved in minor details from year to year (yes, month to month, for we Reo Folk do not make "season models" nor wait till just before Show-time to make changes. We make them any time their need is apparent—or we learn how):—

AS WE WERE SAYING: that Reo chassis has been a feature—yes, the feature—of the Show for several years—yet its popularity is greater now than ever, if crowds are any criterion.

JUST GOES TO SHOW that people are learning—that experience does teach. Experienced motorists, the seasoned Old Timers, are not looking for a car that is "different" but for one that is better.

AND THEY'VE FOUND that kind of car in Reos.

THE NEW REO SIX is beginning to rival the great Reo the Fifth in popularity. It will be a strong rival when there are as many in the hands of owners.

AS IT IS, Reo the Fifth has a tremendous advantage over the Six—more than one hundred thousand owners are singing its praises daily and hourly, while less than twenty thousand as yet know the Reo Six at first hand

BUT SHE'S GAINING—just as rapidly as we can make them.

OF COURSE WE DON'T try to make all the automobiles—only the best ones. So naturally there's always an over-demand for Reos, all Reos, trucks as well as pleasure cars.

BUT WE WILL make fully twice as many Sixes the coming year—so next show time Reo the Fifth, that "incomparable" Four, will have to look to her laurels!

BUT BLESS YOU, no other than a Reo could ever hope to match a Reo either in popularity or performance!

PAID YOUR RESPECTS YET?—you owe it to yourself to do so. See the Reos—compare—then get your Reo while the getting's good. There won't be—never has been—enough to go round.

PRESENT PRICES apply only to orders for immediate delivery—we reserve the right to increase them without notice—may be compelled to at any time.

SO DON'T DELAY. Order and get your Reo now—if you can. If you delay there will be too many ahead of you. Today won't be a minute too soon.

The question arises, why is it that a station doing the amount of business as this one and yet has to have a worn out shabby station that was worn out when placed here. Now is the time for the influentials to act.

This evening the Rev. F W. Moot will preach especially to the young people. All are most cordially invited. American Mineral Oil

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Use of Mineral Oil.

Dr Le Tanneur contributes to the Paris Medical some practical points in the use of mineral oil in constipation. The oil, he says, is in no way digested or even modified by the juices of the stomach and intestines It acts as a lubricant and nothing else, though it tends to heal abrasions of the intestinal wall caused by rough particles of food.

The New York Medical Journal says mineral oil should be taken either before breakfast or after dinner, two tablespoonfuls being a dose. Its use should be continued every day for at least a fortnight, when the bowels will continue to work naturally without it, for the mineral oil is in no sense a cathartic, but it will cure constipation.—Kingston Daily Freeman, February 17, 1917.

Get Experience, Young Man.

The young man entering life must not be impatient, writes Theodore Vail in American Magazine. He must accumulate experience, he must learn the duties of his position by the actual doing before he has any value to his employer.

Had Considered the Matter.

"Now, my girl, don't rush hastily into marriage. Marriage is a serious matter." "I get you, grandma. It's no joke to go after a divorce and have to spend six months getting a residence in some faraway town."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Bright Idea.

"It would save us much-needed floor space and considerable money if more of our women customers would use the stairway when going up only one flight," said the department-store manager. "I wish I knew of some way to make 'em do it." "Why not take the mirrors out of the elevators and put 'em on the stairs?" suggested his bright assistant.—Buffalo Express.

The Gentle Cynic.

"Few men are reformed by marriage, although many are regulated," is the deliberate opinion of the Milwaukee Daily News.

MANN AMENDMENT IS STRICKEN OUT

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, March 2.—The senate showed its warlike spirit this afternoon by striking from the naval bill the Mann amendment providing, "It is hereby reaffirmed to be the policy of the United States to adjust and settle its international disputes through mediation or arbitration to the end that war may be honorably avoided."

The senate also agreed to a committee amendment making all appropriations in the naval bill immediately available. Senator Lodge made a plea for the amendment.

"The country is in a situation where it may be at war on short notice," he said. "Our first line of defense is the navy.

"There ought to be an extra session. The whole American government ought to be here in Washington. I favor it on the broad ground that it ought to be here in the present situation. No man can tell when we will need every dollar in this bill at a minute's notice."

Large D. A. R. Meeting.

There was an unusually large attendance at the March meeting of Wiltwyck Chapter, D. A. R., held at the Chapter House on Thursday afternoon. It was voted, during the business session to support the Red Cross in any work which it should in the future take up. Edward Stelle of the senior class of the high school was present and asked the support of the women of the D. A. R., for the coming lecture to be given at the high school by Mr. Crowthers on "Everybody Trying to be Everybody Else." The lecture will be given for the benefit of the senior class and it was voted that the chapter should give their support. The regent, Mrs. Philip Elting, spoke feelingly of the death of Mrs. Carrie C. Francis, (a chapter member), which occurred recently at Lake Helen, Florida. While Mrs. Francis was seldom able to be present at a chapter meeting, she had always been deeply interested in the chapter, and only a very short time ago a letter was received from her, in which she invited any member attended the D. A. R. conference to be held in Florida to visit her. Mrs. Elting also expressed the profound appreciation of the entire chapter, of the very generous legacy of $1,000 left to the chapter by one of their most devoted and loyal members, the late Mrs. Samuel Dimmick. The program for the afternoon was in charge of Mrs. Frank Kline and Miss Katharine O. Van Keuren and included two delightful vocal solos by Miss Esther Canfield, accompanied by Miss Minnie Johnston. Miss Canfield sang, "O Fair, O Sweet, O Holy," by Otto Cantor, and "A Winter Lullaby," by De Koven. A patriotic reading, "When the Moon Rose," was so realistically given by Mrs. C. L. Coles as to call forth most enthusiastic applause. Mrs. Coles then gave a short number, "Johnnie's Philosophy." Every number on the program was thoroughly enjoyed and at its close Miss Alice Van Gaasbeck and Mrs. E. G. Adams served light refreshments.

John C. Freund Coming to Kingston.

Through the instrumentality of Harry P. Dodge, supported by the Chamber of Commerce, the Rotary Club and the Federation of Women's Clubs, Kingston is to have a two days' visit from John C. Freund, the noted speaker and writer, who has been in so many of the largest American cities speaking on the subject of "American Musical Independence." Mr. Freund will be in Kingston on March 28 and 29, and while here will address the various bodies mentioned above, on this subject, "American Musical Independence." Perhaps no other person or group of persons has done as much for the promoting of musical progress in this country at this time, than has Mr. Freund, who is so well qualified to present this subject.

The Starvation Point.

To the question, "If there were a siege, how long do you think the soldiers and civilians could live after the food supplies gave out?" an English paper answers: Science tells us that if he can get drinking water an ordinary man can exist for thirty days without food. At the end of that time the machinery of the body will not be spoiled and can be brought back to its former strength by careful feeding.

About a quarter of our body weight is fat, and it is mostly this fat that is absorbed as food during the period of starvation. We can absorb and burn up our muscles until 40 per cent of their weight is gone. We can do the same with from 30 to 40 per cent of our livers and digestive organs and 20 per cent of our lungs. Our hearts can lose 10 per cent and our brains and nervous systems can lose 5 per cent.

It will be seen that the more vital organs—brain and heart—yield least of their valuable substance for the life of the body, while the less essential substances—fat, muscle fiber, etc.—are consumed first.

Don't Be Afraid of Work.

Charles M. Schwab, the well known master of Bethlehem steel works, has no more patience with the man who works by the time clock than has Adam Bede with his fellow workmen who dropped their tools at the sound of the whistle. In his book "Succeeding With What You Have" he writes: "I have yet to hear of one instance where misfortune hit a man because he worked overtime. Not long ago a man was promoted in our works. 'How did you happen to advance this fellow?' I asked his boss. 'Well,' he explained, 'I noticed that when the day shift went off duty this man stayed on the job until he had talked over the day's problems with his successor. That's why.' The man who fails to give fair service during the hours for which he is paid is dishonest. The man who is not willing to give more than this is foolish."

YARROWDALE FOUR SAFE IN DENMARK

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, March 2.—Dr. H. B. Snyder of Norfolk, Va.; Dr. John Davis of Columbus, Miss.; Richard Zabriskie of Englewood, N. J., and Orville McKim of Watertown, N. Y., the four Americans from the steamer Yarrowdale, who were released by the German government, reached Copenhagen today. They appealed to the United States legation for assistance in getting home.

Sharpness of Madmen.

In Sir William Butler's autobiography there is an amusing story about six insane soldiers who escaped while the corporal who had brought them on board the troopship left at Durban and who mingled with the 1,860 sane men on the decks. The problem of the voyage was to find who were the six madmen. By the time the boat reached Cape Town twenty-six men were officially under observation, and not one of the six was among them.

In the end the crazed half dozen were identified as those who had taken an especially eager part in the lunatic hunt.

Books and Apples.

A young lady in a library job got tired of fussing round in stuffy alcoves. So she chucked it all and went to raising apples. She never made money hand over fist, as she expected, but she always declared she had won out on the exchange. "I used to like an occasional apple with my books," she declared, "but the present plan of having a book now and then with my apples is a heap better." — Collier's Weekly.

COUNTESS CSAKY

WEALTHY AMERICAN WIFE SEEKS DIVORCE FROM COUNT CSAKY

New York, March 2.—The romance of Count Kalman I. Csaky and his wealthy American wife, countess Maud Howard Bryan-Inman-Csaky, [illegible] Count Csaky is a cousin of Count Szechenyi, husband of Gladys Vanderbilt. Countess Csaky has filed suit for an absolute divorce, naming "a woman unknown to the plaintiff."

BIRDLAND DANCE HALLS.

Playhouses and Gardens of the Australian Bower Birds.

There are several species of bower birds, chief among them the Satin and the Newton. The Satin bower bird is the best known. When the bowers were first discovered it was supposed that they were playhouses built by the native children, but as a matter of fact they are the dance halls of birdland.

The nests are built in the trees and have no connection with the playhouses. The male birds build these latter and gather every bright and shining object they can find to adorn the entrance to the bower. When it is completed, according to one who has watched them, little "at homes" are given daily, at which the males meet and pay their court to their ladyloves, now bowing and scraping, now playing hide and seek through the bower and now doing an absurdly dignified dance for their edification.

Newton's bower bird decorates his bower with fresh flowers every day and if a visiting male bird wants to fight all he has to do is to disturb one of these flowers. The master of the bower proceeds with the painful duty of teaching him how to behave in company, while the remainder of the party raise a great racket, but never interfere. A naturalist studying them disarranged one of their flowers, but each time he did it the bower master rearranged it with great care.—National Geographic Magazine.

Following Precedent.

"Where is that cuff I had on yesterday?" asked the hungry-looking poet. "I sent it to the laundry," said his wife. "Gracious, woman, I had a poem written on it!" "Oh, it will come back. You know your poems always do."—Yonkers Statesman.

ADVERTISEMENT WRITING.

UNWISE advertising economy is an acquired habit with many merchants, like olives and moving pictures, but when the habit is continued—curtain! They seem to believe that each time they blackjack a dollar and lay it away on ice, withdrawing it from their advertising expenditures, they have done wisely. Really, such business men are short-changing themselves. Well written advertisements are business getters. The other kind won't do at all. Let me write your ads, with "pep and punch." George M. Zellmer, care of Kingston Freeman.

SUPREME COURT IS TOLD TO SPEED UP

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, March 2.—Danger of a nation-wide railroad strike again threatens the United States. Unless a decision is handed down by the supreme court on the Adamson law by next Tuesday, "decisive action" will be taken by the railroad brotherhoods, according to statements made by leaders today. Only an international crisis can stop the program of the brotherhoods of the supreme court fails to act when it meets on Monday.

L. G. Griffing, assistant grand chief of the brotherhood of locomotive engineers, and Arthur J. Lovell, vice president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, declared today plans were agreed upon for "decisive action" on Tuesday if there is not a national crisis at that time. The plans were made at a conference in Chicago, but the leaders would not discuss their nature.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

George Terwilliger of Clintondale died Monday night, aged 77 years.

Frank Sahler, formerly of High Falls, who has been living at a hotel at Lawrenceville, died suddenly on Wednesday night. A coroner was notified who had the remains turned over to Undertaker Humiston of Kerhonkson and issued a death certificate.

Salmon J. Mott, for many years a resident of Jefferson Heights and known widely in Catskill as a building contractor, died at his home on Jefferson Heights Thursday morning from pneumonia after a week's illness with this disease. Mr. Mott sustained a serious accident about eight weeks ago when he was kicked by a spirited young horse. The animal was frightened when Mr. Mott threw open the barn door and struck out viciously with his heels. As a result of that accident Mr. Mott was never able to leave the house afterwards, but hopes for his ultimate recovery were held out until a week ago when he had a chill, resulting in pneumonia. He was a veteran of the Civil War and towards its close in the spring of 1865 took part in the pursuit and capture of John Wilkes Booth, who assassinated President Lincoln.

Mrs. Rachel Rodie Harrison, wife of Frank A. Harrison, and a former resident of Kingston, died this morning at her home in Ridgewood, N. J., after a long illness. Deceased was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Rodie, formerly residing on Abruyn street. Her girlhood was passed in this city and she had a host of friends here, being a woman of unusual talents and very popular with all who knew her. For the past twenty-one years she had resided in Ridgewood. Beside her husband she is survived by a daughter, Helen, three brothers, James, Robert S., and John D. Rodie, all of this city, and two sisters, Mr. F. R. Powley of Kingston, and Mrs. W. J. Nickerson of Tarrytown. Arrangements for funeral have not yet been completed, but it is expected interment will be made in Montrepose cemetery next Monday.

Edgar Terpening died at his home in Ulster Park on Thursday. The funeral will be held on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Reformed Church at Ulster Park and the interment will be in the St. Remy cemetery. Until stricken with paralysis several years ago Mr. Terpening was actively engaged in the growing of fruit and as salesman for nursery stock. In this last-named capacity he became widely known in Ulster and adjoining counties. His reputation for honesty and enterprise was of the highest, while his affable, kindly, true Christian character endeared him to his neighbors and associates, by whom his ever-ready helpfulness was highly valued and appreciated. Mr. Terpening was the kind of man who is an asset to any community and during the recent years of enforced inactivity he has been missed as few men ever are. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Grace DeGraff, widow of the Rev. G. D. L. DeGraff, with whom he resided, and Mrs. Leslie Herring of Ulster Park. Mr. Terpening was a member of Garfield Lodge, I. O. O. F., and Ulster Grange, P. of H., and other societies as well as of the Reformed Church.

John J. Dempsey died on Thursday morning at 8 o'clock at his home in New York city after an illness of over two years of pernicious anaemia. Mr. Dempsey spent the past two summers in this city as the guest of his sister, Mrs. Frank J. Cox, at her home on Clinton avenue and the sad news of his death has come as a shock to the friends and acquaintances which he made here by his quiet, unassuming and always courteous and kind bearing. Possessing the finest qualities of young manhood he made friends wherever he went and even though he knew that his disease was incurable he was a patient sufferer always hopeful to the time of his death. Mr. Dempsey who was thirty-seven years of age, was, up to the time of his illness a member of the brokerage firm of Moore and Schley of Wall street, New York city. There are left to mourn his loss, his wife, Mary Garry Dempsey, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Dempsey of New York York city, three sisters, Mary, wife of F. J. Cox of this city, Julia, wife of Adelbert Hutton, and Miss Sarah at home in New York; two brothers, William and Joseph, both of New York. The funeral services will take place at his late residence, No. 421 West 121st street, New York city, on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock and from St. Charles Boromeo Church, New York, at 11 o'clock.

State to Buy Rockaway Point.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, March 2.—Senator Sage today introduced a bill authorizing the expenditure of $1,000,000 for the purchase of Rockaway Point. The measure is to be passed tomorrow at a session of the senate.

STRANGERS ACT SUSPICIOUSLY

Two well dressed strangers are said to be in Kingston trying to interest men in life insurance, but their method of procedure has excited some curiosity among some of the merchants they called upon. One merchant said that they have been to see him several times and said that by paying $250 down he would receive a policy for $5,000 and would have no further premiums to pay, but to date they have failed to interest him in the proposition. One merchant leans to the opinion that the insurance talk is just a case of bluff and may lead to losses in another quarter.

"WETS" HIT PIE COUNTER.

Bill For More Federal Judges is Killed.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, March 2.—The "wets" who opposed the gag rule under which the District prohibition bill went through the house two days ago had their first taste of revenge today when they were instrumental in defeating an administration bill relating to the retirement of Federal judges. Combining with the Republicans a score of Democrats from the city district, principally New York and Boston, voted down the bill, 200 to 192. The bill has already passed the senate and was much desired by the administration. It would have permitted the president to appoint about 16 additional Federal judges.

Would Help Some.

This would be a better country if we would quit enacting new laws and enforce old ones for about ten years.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

ASSERTS JAPAN'S PART IN MEXICO

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

St. Louis, Mo., March 2.—The St. Louis Republic today publishes a story asserting that it is in possession of startling proof that Mexico and Japan have been intriguing since before the opening of the Europea war and that the information unwittingly was revealed by General Carranza through Adolofo Carrillo, his former Los Angeles consular representative, in the expose of a stupendous plan by Dictator Huerta in 1914 to lease Lower California to Japan for use as a naval base.

Labor vs "Dry" Bill.

Arizona Hears of Sea Dash.

Look for Wilson Weather.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, March 2.—Overcast skies which for a week have made Washington figuratively and literally gloomy cleared off today and gave promise of providing real "Wilson weather" for the inaugural ceremonies on Monday.

Time for Self-Improvement.

The great thing to remember is that the day is not over at six o'clock if there is any smoldering ambition for self-improvement and advancement in your makeup. In fact the day is just beginning for you then. The best part of it is coming, and it should find you on the qui vive, ready and waiting to pursue those inner yearnings that are a part of every intelligent man and woman.

NO EXTRA SESSION LEADERS CLAIM

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, March 2.—With the end of the 44th congress by constitutional limitation only 48 hours away, administration leaders insisted at noon today that there will be no extra session for months, if at all. They were confident that both houses, speeding along under forced draft, would complete all of the essentials of their program before final adjournment.

"Congress will complete its work tomorrow and in my opinion there will be no extra session" was the prediction made today by Senator Kern of Indiana, majority leader of the senate.

The chief stumbling block remaining will be the problem of getting the senate and house to agree on the armed neutrality bill.

Creed of the Busy Man.

I believe in the stuff I am handing out, in the firm I am working for and in my ability to get results. I believe that honest stuff can be passed out to honest men by honest methods. I believe in working, not weeping; in boosting, not knocking, and in the pleasure of my job. I believe a man gets what he goes after, that one deed done today is worth two deeds tomorrow, and that no man is down and out until he has lost faith in himself. I believe in today and the work I am doing, in tomorrow and the work I hope to do and in the sure reward which the future holds.

I believe in courtesy, in kindness, in generosity, in good cheer, in friendship and in honest competition. I believe there is something doing, somewhere, for every man ready to do it. I believe I'm ready—right now!—Elbert Hubbard.

The Sadness of a Wedding.

There is something sad about a wedding. The young groom is leaving a home in which he always has had his way and is going into one in which he never will have his way. Although his parents do not go through the formality of giving him away at the altar, they know well enough that in a few minutes he will be a son-in-law to another woman, while to them he is nothing but a son. There he comes, with another man holding to his arm. It looks as if he might have made an attempt to escape and that the strong best man captured him and brought him back. He is as happy as he is nervous and so trustful that he has no fear for the future.—Claude Callan in Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

Life of a Battleship.

We are continually reading in the newspapers that various battleships have been completed, launched and for how long they have been commissioned. There are probably few people, however, who know how long a battleship lasts. The average life of a modern battleship is about fifteen years. In the old days a battleship was on active service nearly the whole time of its commission, which was about a hundred years.

The Victory was forty years old when she fought at Trafalgar, and the Royal William, which was built in 1670, was not "scrapped" until 1813.—London Mail.

Squabs.

A squab grows enormously the first twelve hours and still more rapidly after the third day. Squabs are at first sparsely covered with long filaments of down, the root of each filament indicating the point from which each future feather is to start. The down for awhile still hangs on the tips of some of the feathers during their growth and is thought by some to be finally absorbed into the shaft of the growing feather.

Making Assurance Doubly Sure.

The pupils in a certain class in hygiene were told to set down on paper the reasons why, in their opinion, cremation was superior to burial. "Cremation is good," wrote one little boy, "because the person might only be in a swoon, and if he is burned he cannot recover."

EAT PURE BREAD !

Now-a-days it is the height of wisdom to buy bread from a baker whose reputation guarantees the use of pure ingredients. The pure bread law which the majority of bakers in this state favored, and which was defeated by the bakers' trust in the Legislature not long ago, would have compelled the elimination of present-day unwholesomeness in the production of bread. You may depend upon being pure healthful, nutritious and unadulterated. It gives a satisfaction in flavor and eating qualities that avoids waste and makes each loaf delicious and tasteful down to the smallest morsel.

TEICHLER'S STEAMED BREAD

BEER contains about
92 per cent. water and about
5 per cent. of extract derived from hops and cereals principally Barley malt and only about
3 to 4 per cent. alcohol.

What is Beer?

Notwithstanding the fact that beer has become the most popular beverage of the United States, a vast number of well-meaning people, who are thoroughly versed in other subjects, have little or no knowledge of beer.

Ninety per cent. of beer consists of water. Pure potable water is the first requisite in every brewery. Beer contains just enough nutritious solids to give it a food value and just enough alcohol (3 to 4 per cent.) to give it snap and zest as a beverage.

Beer, used in moderation, is both a tonic and a strength builder. It is free from disease bearing germs and is one of the few products which pass from manufacturer to consumer without coming in contact with human hands.

Physicians prescribe beer for overworked businessmen, nervous women and others whose condition indicates the need of a tonic. Famous athletic trainers the world over allow their charges to partake of beer and unhesitatingly declare that it prevents athletes from going stale. In other words, it takes off the "wire" edge so frequently acquired after weeks of hard training for athletic events.

There is no substitute for beer.

ASHES BLEW ON MAYOR CANFIELD

So B. P. W. Decides to Try Out Covered Ash Cart—Getting Ready for Spring Work on Streets—Furnace Street Not to be Cut Through to St. James—Cracks in Viaduct.

The fact that recently while Mayor Canfield was hurrying to the railroad station his clothing was liberally sprinkled with dust and ashes when members of the street force uptilted an ash can dumping its contents into a wagon proved a blessing in disguise for thousands of residents of Kingston who have had a similar experience for it led to the board of public works at its regular monthly meeting Thursday afternoon to instruct Superintendent Van Keuren to equip one of the ash collecting wagons with a canvas top to eliminate this disagreeable feature of the necessary work of collecting the city's ashes. Among the important matters also taken up at the meeting was the decision not to cut Furnace street through to St. James street as had been petitioned; placing an order for 40,000 gallons more or less of Dustoline at 12 cents a gallon, and giving Superintendent Van Keuren full authority to go ahead as soon as the frost was out of the ground and clean up the city streets getting them in shape to lay the street oil. The attention of the U. & D. and the O. & W. will also be called to cracks in the Washington avenue viaduct.

Prices on Cement.

At the last meeting of the board it had instructed Clerk Linson to notify the dealers in cement in the city to submit bids for 2,200 bags of cement which it is estimated the board will need this year in street work. Only two dealers submitted bids, Richard Tappen and Walter S. Darling. They offered to supply the board with cement at $2.07 a barrel, each barrel containing four bags. The order will be divided equally between the two dealers.

Mr. Darling in Trouble.

A communication from Walter S. Darling was read in which he stated that there was three feet of water under his store house which ran in from the street and if his stock was damaged he would hold the city liable. The matter after some discussion was referred to superintendent and city engineer to investigate.

Darling is Daring.

During the discussion it was brought out that Mr. Darling uses the viaduct as a store house and that he had built one end of his new store house on city property as it was resting on the site of the old Washington avenue sidewalk before the viaduct was built, and that being so that board could not see where Mr. Darling had a right to raise objections to water.

City Engineer Codwise reported that the Darling building on city property was so close to the viaduct that if the building ever caught fire it would damage the concrete work of the viaduct.

This will also be taken up with Mr. Darling.

Cracks in Viaduct.

While Darling and the viaduct was under discussion the city engineer submitted a report on the cracks in the Washington avenue viaduct, which had been reported at a previous meeting. He was of the opinion that the cracks should be filled with pitch.

It was brought out that it was up to the city to keep the roadway in repair but it was up to the railroads to keep the supports in repair. After some discussion Clerk Linson was instructed to notify the U. & D. and the O. & W. of the cracks in the viaduct.

Dustoline Ordered.

Mayor Canfield reported for the committee that an order had been placed for 30,000 to 40,000 gallons of Dustoline at 12 cents a gallon to be used on the city streets this spring. The order was confirmed by the board.

Other Matters.

A communication from Calvin Tompkins offering to sell the city crushed stone at 60 cents a cubic yard delivered in boats was filed.

The question of whether it would be advisable to place a catch basin in front of the garage of Van Etten & Hogan on Pine street was referred to Superintendent Van Keuren with power.

Not to Extend Furnace St.

At a recent meeting of the board a petition was received from residents uptown in regard to extending Furnace street through to St. James street. This was referred to the city engineer who reported that an examination showed that Furnace street had been opened to the foundry lot of Hermance. If the street was continued to St. James street it would cut the present foundry lot in two and would require the removal of a brick building two stories high and 40 x 92 feet in size. This brick building is the building on St. James street occupied by the Denmark Metal Cap Company before that company went out of business.

The report was filed. It seemed to be the opinion of the board that the street would not be cut through at present at least as it would be too expensive a proposition.

Getting Ready for Street Work.

Superintendent Van Keuren called attention to the need of repairs to the street roller and the street sweeper and was authorized to have them placed in repair.

He was also given authority to go ahead when the frost is out of the ground and place the streets in condition to lay the street oil. He was also instructed to take whatever steps was necessary to make the Strand and John street in passable condition, and also to clean Broadway.

Garbage Collections.

At the last meeting of the board of health that body passed a resolution to the effect that it desired the board of public works to take charge of the matter of garbage collections in the city, and at the meeting Thursday the B. P. W. accepted complete jurisdiction of the garbage situation in the city.

City Engineer and Venus.

While Clerk Linson was reading a requisition from City Engineer Codwise he read an item regarding Venus which made the members of the board look interested and wonder what the city engineer wanted with Venus in his office until it developed that Venus in this case was the brand of a lead pencil desired by Mr. Wood the efficient draughtsman in the engineer's office.

Light on W. Chestnut St.

Commissioner Burgevin said that he thought an arc light should be installed on West Chestnut street near the residence of Mrs. G. L. McEntee and he offered a resolution that the Kingston Gas & Electric Company be authorized to install the arc. The resolution was carried.

Bought Auto Truck.

It was brought out that the board had held a special meeting the early part of February and at that time had bought an auto truck from the King concern on Prince street who had quoted a price at a previous meeting. It is said that this truck will be delivered in April.

Board Adjourns.

The superintendent and city engineer were instructed to get in touch with the Kingston Granite Tub Works whose bid to supply crushed stone to the city had been accepted some time ago, and notify the concern that the board would soon be ready to take stone.

Bills and claims against the board were also audited and several routine matters disposed of and an adjournment taken.

COCONUT LOAF CAKE

½ cupful of Baker's Fresh Grated Coconut; ½ cupful of butter; 1 cupful of granulated sugar; 2 eggs; ½ cupful of coconut milk; 2 cupfuls of flour; 2 level teaspoonfuls of baking powder.

Cream butter and sugar until light; add well-mixed yolks of eggs, coconut milk, half the sifted flour and baking powder, the coconut which has been pressed dry in fruit press or cheesecloth. Beat the whites of eggs until light; fold in and add the rest of flour. Place on bottom rack in moderate oven; bake 45 minutes. Try with darning needle, if smooth, cake is done; if not, bake five to eight minutes longer. It is hard to give exact time to bake, as there is a difference in ovens.

The cake will keep a week (if kept under lock and key); in fact, it is better in three or four days than when first baked.

BURHANS CLAIM HELD NOT VALID

A decision handed down by Judge Rudd, dismissing the complaint in the action brought by Willis M. Burhans against the city of New York to recover $900 under the provisions of the Water Supply Act, has been filed in the Ulster county clerk's office. The complaint is dismissed on the two grounds included in the city's motion—that Mr. Burhans was not employed for six months, prior to January 1st, 1906, in an "established business," and also that the claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Mr. Burhans's claim was tried before Judge Rudd at the trial term of the supreme court held in this city in December. Arthur C. Connelly represented Mr. Burhans; the city of New York was represented by William McM. Speer. The city offered no testimony.

The facts are contained in Judge Rudd's opinion, which in full is as follows:

Judge Rudd's Opinion.

The plaintiff brings this action to recover $900.00 under section 9 of chapter 314 of the laws of 1906, which amended section 42 of chapter 724 of the laws of 1905.

The obligation of the city of New York, if any exists, is purely statutory.

The plaintiff alleges that he was employed in an "established business" in the county of Ulster, which "established business" was injured as contemplated by the provisions of the act above cited; that he had been so employed continuously for six months prior to the first day of January, 1906; that his salary for the six months, just previous to January 1st, 1906, was $900.00, and that because of the "injury, destruction or acquisition" by the city of New York under the Water Supply Act, he suffered damages, for which provision is made in the statute, amounting to $900.00, and that in accordance with the provisions of the law he brings this action in the supreme court to recover the sum of $900.00.

The defendant offered no testimony.

At the close of the plaintiff's case the defendant moved to dismiss the complaint on the grounds:

1.—That the plaintiff failed to prove the facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action under the statute.

2.—That the alleged cause of action is barred by the statute of limitations.

The plaintiff's contention is not that he was employed in a manufacturing establishment, but that he was employed in an "established business" in the county of Ulster; that the "established business" consisted of the developing, manufacture, sale and distribution of electric current and electric power and the construction of the works, buildings, etc., for the same.

The plaintiff was in the employ of James H. Sands, who purhased an old mill property at Glenerie, Ulster county, intending to convert the mill into an electric power plant operated by water power.

After the purchase of the property by Mr. Sands the city of New York took the first steps toward the development and creation of the great water supply which the city of New York now has for its use from the Ashokan watershed.

What Mr. Sands did upon the property was work preliminary to the creation of an electric power plant. Surveys were made, estimates of the cost of electrical machinery were obtained and the plaintiff worked for Mr. Sands in building on the property along the water course a shelf upon which would rest a pipe for the transmission of water to be used for power.

Mr. Sands did some repairing to the old buildings which were upon the property, cleaned out the old Lead Mill machinery, all previous to September, 1905, and Mr. Sands, learning from his lawyer, County Judge Cantine, and from Charles Davis, who was at that time a member of the State Water Supply Commission, of the proposed building by the city of New York of the Ashokan reservoir and the diverting of the water up-stream to the reservoir for a supply to the city of New York, in September, 1905, suspended all work, and in January, 1906, definitely abandoned his contemplated creation.

Under chapter 314 of the laws of 1906, which became a law April 24, 1906, and upon the approval of the State Water Supply Commission May 14, 1906, the city of New York first had legal authority to do anything in the way of actually taking land or doing work necessary to create the water supply, except that it had had power theretofore to prepare and present a plan to the State Water Supply Commission.

Counsel for the plaintiff calls our attention to section 9 of chapter 314 of the laws of 1906, which provides for three distinct classes of claimants, namely:

First—A person employed in a manufacturing establishment.

Second—A person employed in an established business.

Third—A person who is employed upon lands, of which lands he is not an owner or part owner or otherwise interested and which lands are not taken or acquired by the city of New York.

And counsel says, that "plaintiff claims here under the second class of these provisions, that of having been employed in an established business."

If the plaintiff was not employed in an established business then there is no obligation against the city of New York arising under the statute.

While such a claim as the plaintiff here presents is derogatory of common law, still if the plaintiff's proof shows that he is included within the provisions of the law by reason of having been employed in an established business which was injured or destroyed by the acts of the city of New York under the law, providing his claim was presented in due time to the city of New York, then he has a cause of action, for it has been determined that a municipality which asks the legislature for a privilege which is granted subject to specific conditions, cannot accept the grant and reject the conditions, for such conditions, as Judge Werner said in People ex rel Burhans v. City of New York, 198 N. Y., 439, rests upon a fundamental consideration.

This issue was tried before the court without a jury and the court is therefore called upon in disposing of the motion made by the defendant for the dismissal of the complaint to determine the question of fact, was the plaintiff engaged in an established business. What was the established business?

The plaintiff's employer was working, with the plaintiff's aid to create a condition whereby in the future he might be able to utilize the waters of a creek as a power for the creation of electrical energy. If that had been accomplished and he had thus created power which he might have for sale, and if he had found a customer for the power, it seems as if he then would have had an established business.

The work that was actually being done prior to September, 1905, was the dismantling of an old Lead Mill, the building of a shelf along the water course upon which in the future a pipe might be laid and the cutting of timber from the wood land owned by the plaintiff's employer.

The dismantling of the Lead Mill was not an established business. The building of a shelf upon which to lay a pipe was not an established business, and the cutting of wood cannot be called an established business, for the reason that so far as that was concerned all the wood was cut off and sold and the city of New York in no way interfered with that part of the work, upon which the owner, Sands, realized.

The plaintiff's employer, Mr. Sands, has a claim against the city of New York for $1,500,000, damage which he sustained by reason of the city of New York taking the water from Esopus Creek.

The nearest the city of New York came to the property in question, so far as the taking of land was concerned, was about fifteen miles.

If the court remembers the testimony correctly, a transcript not having been furnished, it was to the effect that while at present the water of the creek in the vicinity of the premises in question has not been taken entirely, it will in the future be absorbed by the city of New York. It may be, therefore, that Mr. Sands has a claim for some amount of damages sustained by him against the city of New York for the taking of the water which he might have been able to utilize in the future in a power plant had the stream not been interfered with.

It does not seem that because Mr. Sands saw fit to abandon his project upon learning that in the future at some time the city would take steps to acquire the water of the Esopus Creek, considering the state and condition of the proposed power plant at the time he did abandon it, that it can be said that the plaintiff was for six months prior to January 1, 1906, employed in an established business. Unless he was so employed he cannot here recover.

It seems also as if the claim of the plaintiff was barred by the Statute of Limitations. The plaintiff contends that the statute does not run until after the rejection of the claim by the city of New York for ten years. Can it be said that a claimant can extend the provisions of all laws with reference to limitation by failing himself to file his claim within a reasonable time or within the time running of the statute, thereby making it impossible for the city on its part to reject a claim until long after the statute had run, and that by so doing the plaintiff is able to indefinitely extend the statutory limitation.

It hardly seems as if that was in accordance with the proper construction of the law.

The defendant's motion to dismiss the complaint is granted.

Judgment may be entered accordingly.

WATER BOARD TO EXPEND $30,000

New Filters, Filter House and Main Will Cost Approximately that Sum —Would Refund Bonds Due This Summer and Apply Earnings on Improvements.

At the meeting of the board of water commissioners Thursday afternoon in the city hall, a flag was hung from the window in honor of the return of Major Chandler, who is one of the members of the board, and later some of the commissioners went over to the West Shore station to greet him. Bills were audited and routine business passed upon, the matter of the new filter plant additions being the subject of a resolution. The board wants to pay for these out of earnings if possible.

President Hauck presided and Commissioners Roach, Canfield and Harrison were present with Superintendent Harrison and Assistant Secretary Abernethy.

In the resolution providing for the filters, offered by Commissioner Harrison, it is set forth that there are $24,000 in water bonds due June 1 and $6,000 due August 1 next. In order to increase the purity and wholesomeness of the water, the resolution states that it is necessary to install four sectional horizontal pressure filters, each eight feet in diameter by 20 feet in length, with a capacity of 2,000,000 gallons, to provide for buildings and extend a third main line pipe to Esopus creek, all at a cost of $30,000. The resolution then reads "that to avoid the issuance of new bonds by application to the legislature, in order to provide for said extensions and expenditures, and in order that this board may carry on such work from its earnings, the board petition and it does hereby petition the common council of the city of Kingston to pay up and retire said bonds above mentioned by the issuance of new bonds."

It is provided in the resolution that the new bonds be issued in denominations of $1,000 each and five of them payable on June 1st of each year from 1918 to 1922 inclusive. A certified copy of the resolution will now go to the common council and, if that body approves, the work will be advertised for bids at an early date.

Some discussion was held as to the freeze-ups around town which have been quite numerous in the service lines. Only one main, that in Marius street, was frozen. The electric thawing device of the Kingston Gas & Electric Company has been in almost constant use the last two weeks by plumbers with good results.

One of the board wanted to know where Marius street was located. Another volunteered the information that it used to be known as Lovers' Lane.

"But they don't need any Lovers' Lane now that they have automobiles," said a third member facetiously. Another member of the board also mentioned Steuben street, the numerous streets of the city being confusing evidently even to native sons.

QUARRYVILLE.

Quarryville, Mar. 1.—Mrs. Joshua Post spent Sunday with her sister at Catskill.

Miss Kathryn Perry and Mrs. Bridget O'Rourke and son, James, have returned to their home here from Schenectady.

James Young and wife of Alsen spent Thursday at Henry Hallenbeck's.

Rev. G. E. Robinson and wife spent last Thursday evening at Myron Fiero's.

A few of our local talent are laying plans for a play to be given in the future for the benefit of the M. E. Church. Watch these columns for more definite arrangements later.

A large crowd of people attended service at the M. E. Church Sunday afternoon and listened to an inspiring sermon on the Bible. The congregations are increasing and it is the desire of all that our pastor, Rev. G. E. Robinson, be returned to us for another year.

Mrs. John Heaness had the misfortune to fall Sunday evening and break her arm.

Leroy Cooke has accepted a position in Catskill.

John Schaff is confined to his home by illness.

William Humphrey enjoyed a vacation last week. Russell Teetsell took his place at S. W. Teetsell's.

Mrs. Albert Brant is visiting her daughter, Mrs. William Quick.

Fred Myer is suffering from the grip.

The services at the M. E. Church are well attended with the exception of the Sunday school and that seems to be forsaken by so many of our people. They seem to have no use for it. Still we pray for the future welfare of the church. But the Sunday school, which is the organization on which to a great extent the future of the church depends, let somebody keep it going—but excuse me appears to be the attitude of too many. These few words are not written in a spirit of fault finding. But the writer hopes that you who read this will find at least one hour on Sunday to give to the school in your own interest also your children and somebody else's children.

PLATTEKILL.

Plattekill, March 1.—The scholars of School District No. 9, will give an entertainment Friday afternoon under the management of the teacher, Miss E. M. Benedict. The exercises will be in honor of Washington's Birthday.

Word was received in this village of the birth of a son to Mr. and Mrs. William Horton of Brooklyn, Sunday, Feb. 24. Being a former resident of this place congratulations are extended from their Plattekill friends.

Miss May Dayton is visiting her sister, Mrs. Edward J. Birdsall.

Charles Fowler visited his wife at the State Asylum at Middletown last week.

Mr. and Mrs. David Lockwood, who reside at Bennington, Vt., expects to move to Tampa, Fla., in the near future. Mrs. Lockwood was formerly Miss Nellie Palmer of this place.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Harcourt and son Egbert spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Harry P. Gerow.

Dr. and Mrs. E. Danielson entertained a few of their friends and neighbors Thursday evening, Feb. 22, in honor of the twenty-ninth anniversary of their marriage. A chicken supper was served to the guests and cards and dancing were enjoyed. Victrola and piano furnished music and the guests departed expressing a very pleasant time.

Miss M. A. Gerow and J. B. Palmer attended the Fruit Growers' Association meeting held in Poughkeepsie last week.

Miss Irene Birdsall is visiting her sister, Mrs. Herbert Tremper at East Coldenham, Orange county.

Volney Waite, who recently attended Spencer's Business College at Newburgh, has accepted a position as accountant in the Highland National Bank of Newburgh.

Miss Alice Crowell is at Miss M. A. Gerow's, dressmaking this week.

Miss E. Brown and J. B. Palmer each had the misfortune to lose a cow by death, the past week.

The host of friends and relatives of Harry Gerow of this place are glad to hear of his rapid improvement, after being confined to his home with rheumatism the past three months. His recovery he owes to Dr. M. E. Stephens of Gardiner, pronounced by many as the most efficient doctor in this locality or any other.

Alder World's Oldest Dye.

For the purpose of making dyes the common alder appears to have been unnoticed by the pioneers of this country, who made use of so many barks and roots. However, it was well-known to the Indians, who used it to good effect. It dyes a reddish color, and down to a few years ago was employed by natives of the northwestern Pacific coast in coloring their fish nets. Alder dye, used for the same purpose, is said to be the oldest recorded dye in the world. It is mentioned in the Kalevala of Finland, supposed to date nearly 3,000 years ago.

"HUMPTY DUMPTY" HAD A BAD FALL

Tony Denier Suffered Fractured Arm While Walking Near City Home. —Removed to Hospital Later.

Tony Denier, the original Humpty Dumpty clown, who for years traveled with a circus and delighted thousands of people with his funny antics, is confined to the Kingston City Hospital with a broken arm.

In spite of his advanced age, Tony, who has been a resident of the City Home for some time, delights in taking walks through the country and on clear days may be found walking about the fields in the neighborhood of the City Home on Flatbush avenue. On Thursday afternoon while going along a path in the rear of the barns toward the railroad track, he fell on the ice, striking upon his left arm. A man coming along the path a short time later found Tony and helped him get back to the City Home. As soon as Superintendent Edmonston was notified of the accident he had Tony removed to the Kingston City Hospital where his arm was cared for. Until time of his arrival at the hospital, Tony did not know whether his arm had been broken or not

UNDER THE CAPITOL DOME.

(Chief William J. Flynn.)

Washington, March 2.—Are you a United States Senator or a member of the United States Supreme Court, or some other more or less unimportant public person? If you are and you are going to attend the inauguration of President Wilson on March 5, you will be grateful for the presence of William J. Flynn.

William J. Flynn is chief of the United States Secret Service, and one of the big jobs he runs up against every several years is to see that the president and the hundreds of distinguished persons who attend an inauguration are properly protected from attacks by cranks or anarchists.

For days before the inauguration Chief Flynn's men watch the arrivals at the Union Station with hawk eyes. They are familiar with the features of most of the dangerous anarchists, and the arrival of such a one would mean his almost instant apprehension Secret Service men also circulate through the crowds and keep their eyes open for suspicious persons and persons with suspicious packages or bundles.

All in all, Chief Flynn's job is no soft snap.

Leftover Sandwiches.

Sometimes after a party there are sandwiches left over. Here is an excellent way of using them up: Make a batter exactly like you use for pancakes and add to it either sugar or salt, according to whether the sandwiches are sweet or savory. Then each sandwich is dipped in the batter and fried till a golden brown in fat from which a faint bluish smoke is rising. No matter how dry they are they are delicious done in this way.

Telltale Tommy.

Tommy—Do you go to bed very early, Mrs. Peck?

Mrs. Peck—Yes, Tommy; sometimes—when I feel tired.

"You wouldn't go so early if you were married to my father, would you?"

"Oh, Tommy, you funny boy! Why not?"

"'Cause my father told mother that if he were your husband he'd make you sit up!"—Exchange.

Guard Your Habits.

We are creatures of habit. We succeed or fail as we acquire good habits or bad ones, and we acquire good habits as easily as bad ones. That is a fact. Most people don't believe this. Only those who find it out succeed in life.—Herbert Spencer.

Sound Advice.

"Is there no way of stopping these cyclones?" asked a man of the traveler who was recounting his experiences in far countries.

"No," replied the narrator. "The best way is to go right along with 'em."—Exchange.

A GREAT SOCIAL PROBLEM.

To Get Men Rightly to Adjust Themselves to All Other Men.

Our great social problem is how to make the man at the bottom loom so large and seem so important that all other men will cease to think of him as a thing and treat him as a person. The real social problem out of which other minor problems grow and of which they are really only aggravated symptoms is the world old problem of the right relation between persons.

This is a fundamental issue and to solve it would solve all these minor manifestations. The friendly relation of men is therefore not alone the gist of the race problem, but it is the gist of all social problems

The age long struggle has been how to get men rightly to adjust themselves to all other men.

Right adjustment to other men would mean in the economic realm that no capitalist would want to beat down below a living wage the laborer who made production possible. It would mean that no laborer would want more wages and shorter hours than the condition of production would stand.

Right adjustment between men would mean that no landlord would be willing to live easy off rents of houses which made health and happiness impossible to the occupant. It would mean in return that no tenant would demand more than that for which he gave a just return, and he would protect the interest of his landlord as he would protect his own interest.

Right adjustment would mean in all walks of life the rule of right, not the rule of might.—Southern Workman.

GOVERNOR STOPS DARCY RING BOUT

Briton Styled a "Runaway Afraid to Fight" for Country—Whitman Believes Citizens Will Support his Step.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, March 2.—Taking the ground that Les Darcy, brilliant Australian fighter, is a "slacker," Governor Whitman today announced that he will not permit the Darcy-Jack Dillon fight, which was to have ben held in Madison Square Garden, New York, next Monday night.

The governor branded Darcy as a "runaway from his own country," in a statement issued today. Governor Whitman had previously declared that lionizing the Australian after he had fled his country to avoid conscription would set a bad example to the youth of America at a time when this country is faced with a serious international crisis. His statement follows:

"I have directed the boxing commission to forbid the holding of the so-called boxing exhibition at Madison Square Garden on Monday night. I am credibly informed that one, Darcy, has planned, or that his managers have planned, that the fight, contemplated, shall be what is commonly known as a fight to a finish or a 'knock out.' Darcy, so I am informed, is a runaway from his own country. In disguise and under an alias, he left his native land because he was afraid to fight in the cause for which his fellow countrymen are sacrificing their lives. He prefers to give a brutal exhibition, at some personal risk, for a purse of $30,000.

"I believe that the citizens of this state will support the governor in his insistence that this thing shall not be permitted in New York."

LAST "WET" INAUGURATION.

President to Sign Bill—Breweries to Make Soft Drinks.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, March 2—All hope that Washington will remain wet fled today when the word was quietly passed around that President Wilson will sign the Sheppard Bill, which forbids the manufacture and sale of liquor in the District after Nov. 1.

Some of the more ardent wets will continue their efforts to prevent the "drouth" until the last moment, but their efforts are admittedly forlorn. The breweries here are planning either to abandon their works, or turn them into soft drink producers.

Washington will be the first important capital of the world to go dry in peace times. The president will probably sign the bill late tomorrow or on Sunday morning.

The Law's Delays.

The celebrated Bishop Demetra will case had a run of 122 years, and not long ago the Pulteney probate case, which began about 1709, was revived by an application to presume death. Recently a suit relating to market rights at Stowmarket, in Suffolk, which had been "adjourned" in Edward III.'s reign, was reopened. But the most satisfactory lawsuit for barristers was probably "Ashton versus Mumpesson," finally decided some years since by Mr. Justice Chitty after 150 years.—London Chronicle.

Mary Jones' House Party

By RICHARD MARKLEY

One morning when I had been to the store and was returning to the farm I met Mary Jones.

"Howdy, Helen," she said. "I've got an idea. I don't see why we country people shouldn't have house parties as well as city folk."

"What's a house party?" I asked.

"Why, a lot of people all go to somebody's house and stay there two or three days or a week or perhaps longer. They play games and dance, and, well, they don't do anything but amuse themselves. Father and mother are going over to spend a week with Aunt Jane pretty soon, and I'm going to have a house party. Will you come?"

"I suppose so."

"Jim Cunningham will be one of us."

Mary's house party came off, sure enough. We had the house all to ourselves, and there was every reason why we should expect a good time. The first evening we were together we had a candy pulling, and the next morning the auto was brought out, and all went for a ride, except myself. I didn't feel well and concluded to stay at home. At least, this is the reason I gave for not going, but the true reason was that Sarah Flint, one of the girls, had undertaken to appropriate Jim Cunningham to herself, and I didn't like it, because he didn't let her know she couldn't do it.

While they were gone there was a rap of the knocker on the front door. I went there and found a girl who asked for Mary. I told her that Mary had gone on a ride, and she looked very much disappointed. She said she was Mary's cousin and had come all the way from Hanover Court House to see her. I told her to come in and make herself at home. She did so, and I went back to my room.

When I went downstairs again she had gone. The auto party didn't come back till evening, and when they did I failed to get an opportunity to tell Mary about her cousin who had been to see her. We had supper and in the evening danced, I playing the piano for the others. I didn't want to dance with Jim, and I didn't want to refuse him. That's the reason I did the playing.

The next morning a change had come over the house party. Something had gone wrong. Then I noticed that the girls were giving me the cold shoulder. Later on I went to Mary and asked her what was the matter. She said that while they were gone on the ride the day before somebody had taken things from their rooms. I saw right away what it meant. I was the only one left to do the stealing, so I was the thief.

It was very stupid of me not to think of Mary's cousin, but I was so broken up by what had occurred that I was incapable of anything for awhile.

It was plain that Sarah Flint was doing all she could to fix the theft on me. I, supposing that she was turning Jim against me, didn't give him a chance to show his faith in and sympathy for me, but just turned away from him every time he approached me. I suppose this made him mad, for he kept making up to Sarah, and when he passed me he held his nose in the air.

The evening after the day of the theft I said to Mary:

"I forgot to tell you that your cousin came to see you all the way from Hanover Court House when you were out motoring."

"My cousin! I haven't any cousin at Hanover Court House."

Then I told her how the girl had gone away without saying that she was going or leaving any message.

"Why didn't you tell me that before?" said Mary. "The girl was the thief, of course."

"I never thought of that," I replied.

Mary went right away to the others and told about the girl who had pretended to be her cousin and who had had the run of the house as long as she wanted to. Of course this put a new face on the affair, and they came to me, all except Sarah Flint, and asked my pardon for suspecting me of theft, though some of them said they hadn't thought I was guilty at all. But I knew better.

Jim watched for his opportunity to speak to me, and I purposely went off by myself to give him a chance. When he came to me he seemed not to know what to say.

"Why have you treated me so shabbily?" he asked.

"I have simply treated you as you deserve. When I was wrongfully accused, instead of standing by me you sided with my bitterest enemy."

"I tried to tell you that I believed you innocent, but you wouldn't give me a chance."

"Not while you were listening to the poison of that snake."

"I was trying to get away from her, but you threw me back to her."

"If I threw you back I certainly didn't throw you back to her. You went to her of your own accord."

"And you won't make up?" he said ruefully.

"Any man who is engaged to a girl and won't stand by her when she is accused—at least till she is proved guilty—is no man for me."

He went away very much crestfallen. Soon after this interview I saw Sarah trying to coddle him. He listened to her till she had come to a stopping point, then turned and walked away from her. I noticed that he didn't join her again while we were at Mary Jones'.

Finally I forgave him.

Had Been Promoted.

Edward had just started in kindergarten. His mother took him the first morning, then an older boy a few doors away called for him. After a day or two of that Edward felt brave enough to call for the little girl across the street. One morning while his mother was getting him ready his father said: "Hurry up, here comes Frederick." Edward turned and disdainfully replied: "Ha, I don't have to go with Frederick. I'm a taker myself."

Good Health Waits on Digestion.

Cheerfulness and stoutness are generally found together. Fat is probably the result of good digestion, because food eaten is readily changed by the processes of the body into living tissues. The flesh of your body may be measured by the ability of the digestive structures to get the full measure of worth out of the food consumed.

JAPAN SAYS IDEA IS PREPOSTEROUS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Tokio, March 2.—The idea that Japan might desert the Entente and join Germany in waging war on the United States was characterized as "utterly preposterous" by a high government official today. It is reported that the foreign office is preparing a formal statement reaffirming Japan's allegiance to the Entente and assuring the United States of its friendly feeling.

Officials here at first refrained from all comment on the sensational charge of German plotting emanating from Washington because it was contained only in press dispatches. Later word reached Tokio that the administration had vouched for the authenticity of the story.

One prominent personage declared his belief that the Zimmerman note was "planted" by Germany. German diplomats he said, counted upon its discovery to create suspicion against Japan both in America and Entente countries and to frighten the American people into remaining out of the war. This view was not generally held.

"Germany may have planned such a move," said a well informed person, "but how foolish for Japan to ally herself with a waning power and brand herself a traitor in history."

BRITISH STEAMER SINKS SUBMARINE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New Orleans, La., March 2.—A German submarine which attacked the British steamship Knight Companion in the Atlantic was sunk in an exchange of shells, according to the commander of the vessel, which arrived here today.

The U-boat opened fire at a range of 7,500 yards and fired five shells at the Knight Companion, all of which went wild. The vessel's second shot hit the submarine which turned over and sank. The Knight Companion is under heavy guard at the docks here.

The Knight Companion is one of a fleet of vessels owned by the Knight Steamship Company and registered at Liverpool. She displaces 7,241 tons.

Radium Emanations.

The emanations from radium cannot be stopped, but as scarcely any question of the material is appreciable, despite the fact that a stream of energy is constantly passing off from it, this is of small consequence. Successful Plea.

Gunther was dragging Wolfgang around the garden in his little wagon. Finally, getting tired, he said: "Now, get out. I want to take my wounded soldiers to the hospital." "But I am a wounded soldier," said Wolfgang. This settled the matter, and for another hour the little wounded soldier had a lovely ride.

APPEAL FOR AID FOR FAMILIES OF CO. M

To the Citizens of Kingston and of Ulster County:

Nearly one week ago, I sent out an appeal through the city newspapers and by a letter with pledge cards to each member of the Soliciting Committee, for pledges for the relief of the dependents of Company M.

In that appeal I called attention to the fact that the Executive Committee had reported that it would need the sum of $150 per week or $600 per month for the proper relief of the families of our soldier "boys."

Some have responded quickly, willingly and generously. However, these who have disclosed a financial sympathy with the cause constitute a very small minority.

A fear has arisen in the minds of some that the amount would be oversubscribed, and for that reason their "mite" would not be needed. Fear not. If that fear is the string that keeps tied your pocketbook, cut the knot; because, as yet, there is no basis for any such fear. The amount thus far given and pledged is only about one-quarter of the total amount required each month. Those who give will receive a receipt from the treasurer in due time.

To those who have failed to sign a pledge card because they are not desirous of binding themselves for an indefinite period, kindly sign for a maximum period of one year or six months or three months. Everyone should show a disposition to take a thoughtful, but yet hopeful view of matters, and we all hope that Company M will be with us again by April.

The patriotism of this community is measured by its ability to meet this impelling duty. It is a service which has to be rendered and which should be met with a spontaneous response. It is not charity but the acceptance of a civic and patriotic trust. Some one is bound by a moral, natural and patriotic obligation to perform it. Are not you that "someone?"

AMERICAN WOMAN HAILED AS LACONIA DISASTER HEROINE.

Survivors of the Cunard liner Laconia, sunk by a German submarine off the Irish coast, were loud in their praises of Mrs. Frank E. Mrs. Harris was the last woman to leave the Laconia and was among the ship's officers in the last boat to push off.

PERKINS'S SMELTS DRUG ON MARKET

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, March 2.—Samuel Walawitch had the courage to open up his store in Williamsburg today and displayed for sale food articles under boycott. Scarcely had Sam removed the shutters when a flying squadron of Amazonian housewives swooped down and after a few minutes police extracted Samuel from the midst of a mass of produce and placed two of the riotous leaders under arrest.

The female mob then turned on the police and it was necessary to call out additional officers to quell the disturbance.

Twenty thousand tons of Columbia river smelts are a drug on the market here today. An attempt made by George W. Perkins, food commissioner, to dispose of the fish at cost and thereby alleviate the food situation in the East Side has met with rebuke. Housewives are leaving the fish entirely alone.

"We don't want charity, we want reduction in prices," a committee of the housewives told Perkins at a conference today. They demanded that the fish be distributed from wagons or community stores and not through dealers who make a profit on them.

Woodstock Woman's Club.

The annual parlor meeting of the Woman's Club of Woodstock was held last Tuesday evening at the M. E. Hall. About fifty people were in attendance. The business meeting was presided over by the president of the club, Mrs. Bruce Herrick. Reports from the secretary and treasurer were read. After the business meeting a social evening was spent, which was under the direction of Mrs. Oscar Mosier, Mrs. Norman Elwyn and Mrs. Charles Lasher. Much credit is due to these ladies who have worked so diligently to make the social part of the evening such a thorough success. Addresses were given by the Rev. Mr. Sherman, who spoke on the benevolent purpose of the club. An address was also given by the Rev. Mr. Kerr of the Methodist Church. Miss Alma Van Etten rendered two charming songs. A number of amusing and interesting games were also a feature of the evening. Mrs. George Riseley, Mrs. Henry Pepper and Mrs. Sarah Hicks who had the refreshments in charge served a bountiful repast. All were in good spirits and pronounced this one of the most enjoyable meetings of this kind that the club has had in many a day.

His First Golf Play.

H. Chandler Egan's first golf was played on a three hole course in a pasture back of his father's house, at Highland Park, Ill. The former champion and his brother laid out the links, then invited their cousin, Walter, to teach them the game. The latter teeing up a ball on the first, hit it straight down to the broomstick which served as a flag pole. The ball bounced along the uneven green and disappeared in the hole. Turning to his astonished gallery, he remarked:

"There, you see, it is very simple. That is the way you do it."

Chandler Egan tried, but didn't succeed, and although he won the amateur title twice, he claims he was never able to equal the wonderful drive his cousin made that day.—Golfers' Magazine.

Eyes of Rubber.

Artificial eyes of rubber are taking the place of the old style glass optic in Europe. The rubber eyes have the advantage of being unbreakable, and as they are of pneumatic construction they maintain an elastic contact between the eyelids and the back of the orbitary cavity.

To make the new rubber product a cast formed of liquid plaster is made of the orbitary cavity, and from this is constructed an eyeball, the face being of vulcanite. The front and back parts are made of soft rubber, there being a space between the two parts which is occupied by air, making the eyes pneumatic.—Popular Science Monthly.

A Motorcar Race in 1895.

In 1895 a few enthusiastic "horseless carriage" manufacturers decided that the time was ripe for a race. As we look back at it now the contest was a mechanical jest. The vehicles started bravely and then stopped lamely while their drivers made repairs. One inventor followed his mechanical wonder with a team of horses. The winner of the race had averaged the mad speed of seven and one-half miles an hour. His engine, carefully tested after the feverish contest was over, was found to develop an amazing four horsepower. —Waldemar Kaempffert in Harper's Magazine.

Football and Matrimony.

"Well, I wish him luck," said Mr. Jones after reading in the paper an account of the wedding of a popular member of a college football team. "But," he added in a ruminating tone, "marriage is very much like football."

"Don't talk so ridiculous!" snapped Mrs. Jones. "How can you compare football to marriage?"

SIMPLE LIFE RECOMMENDED BY JOHN L.

ONCE MIGHTY WORLD'S CHAMPION PUGILIST.

Can one imagine John L. Sullivan, the once mighty world's champion, pattering about his comfortable farm at North Abington, Mass., building pig pens, nailing up and repairing fences, painting his barn, putting electric wires in his house, milking cows, grooming and feeding his horses and being an all-around handy man on his snug, homelike estate? But that's just the way John L. amuses himself nowadays, and has been doing for the past two years, since he quit going on the road in the show business.

"These little jobs about the farm," said the old warhorse, "is the best exercise in the world. I never felt in better health in my life, and would be as happy as a clam at high tide if my good wife was only in as good condition as I am. Good, honest, outdoor work is the best medicine in the world and keeps a man in fine form all the year round."

MAY BAR MOLLA BJURSTEDT

Proposed Rule to Prohibit Clubs From Paying Traveling Expenses Will Keep Her Out.

The tennis officials have become so badly affected by the "amateur mania" that they probably will adopt a rule at their coming meeting which may bar Miss Molla Bjurstedt, the Scandinavian star and champion, from appearing in exhibition matches throughout the country.

The girl net wizard is comparatively poor. By profession she is a nurse.

Molla Bjurstedt.

Her income from that source is sufficient to meet her ordinary expenses of living, but not much more. Certainly it does not prove enough money to enable her to pay traveling expenses wherever she is asked to appear in an exhibition game. But that is just what the officials aim to force her to do.

Since she became a tennis sensation in America, Miss Bjurstedt has appeared in many cities in exhibition matches. In all such instances her expenses were paid. Being an amateur, she never received pay for her playing. She was glad to do that for the good of the sport, and there is no question but that the publicity gained for lawn tennis through her wonderful playing ability has brought a large increase in the number of women devotees of the game.

Figures of the Jockey Club of France show the earnings of the pari-mutuel system of betting for ten years prior to the European war were $1,107,117,929. Of this sum $11,000,000 was devoted to breeding interests, $23,000,000 to charity and $6,000,000 to the payment of water taxes.

POULTRY

WINTER TONIC FOR POULTRY

Beets, Silage and Alfalfa Produce Satisfactory Results—Cabbage Also Is Excellent.

Succulent feed should be given to chickens in winter, because of its value as a tonic, asserts R. M. Sherwood, acting head of the department of poultry husbandry in the Kansas state agricultural college.

"Beets, silage, and alfalfa may be obtained on most farms," said Mr. Sherwood. "Alfalfa leaves soaked in sour milk are of great value. The milk softens the leaves, and also furnishes valuable food nutrients. It is well for the farmer to plant winter wheat or rye near his chicken house."

Cabbage is excellent as a green feed, in the opinion of Mr. Sherwood. Some persons feed turnips, potatoes, and even apples. Sprouted oats are often used for succulence, but it is not desirable that the sprouting be done in the house because of the offensive odor given off. This necessitates the use of a special sprouter with heater, and adds materially to the cost of the feed.

REPAIRS FOR THE INCUBATOR

Time to Get Machine Into Working Order—Removable Parts Should Be Thoroughly Cleaned.

By C. E. BROWN, Poultryman, Northwest Experiment Station.

In a few days many incubators will be in operation. Whether the chicks are to be hatched early in March or not until the middle of April, it is time to look after repairs and to get the machine in shape. Repairs for the incubator may not be readily found.

If the incubator was neglected at the close of last season, it should be thoroughly cleaned. Removable parts should be taken out and washed and the entire machine should be aired and sunned. A 10 per cent solution of zenoleum should be used as a disinfectant in washing the interior of the machine.

PREPARE GEESE FOR MARKET

Use Slender-Bladed Sharp Knife, Making Cut Well Back in Order to Induce Free Bleeding.

When the birds are thoroughly fat and plump, geese may be killed in the following manner: Hang by the feet, back to the wall and insert a long slender-bladed, sharp knife into the roof of the mouth. The cut should be made well back in order to induce free bleeding. It is difficult to drypick a fat bird without tearing the skin. A better way is to loosen the feathers by scalding or steaming.

A good way is to make a small platform of laths and place it in the bottom of a barrel so that the platform will be about 7 inches above the water. Pour into the barrel boiling water until it comes within about an inch of the platform. Lay the goose on the platform, cover the barrel tightly with a heavy piece of carpet or cloth and allow it to steam for five or six minutes.

Before placing the bird in the barrel, tie a stout string to its feet, leaving one end hanging outside by which the bird may be drawn out and suspended at a convenient height for picking. Have a large bag or barrel near into which the feathers may be placed as they are picked. Care must be taken that the feathers are not soiled by blood or dirt as they will lose their value.

After the bird is thoroughly cleaned, dip in cold water and allow it to remain two or three minutes. Leave feathers on about half the neck next to the head and also on the wings above the first joint. Geese should be marketed with the heads on and undrawn. Do not lay one bird upon another when picked but wrap each in a clean cloth or paper, place it on its back and allow it to cool in that form. Never hang a bird up by the feet or head to cool as this destroys their plump appearance.

CRACKED CORN IS CHEAPEST

Fowls Get Enough Benefit From Picking Up Small Pieces to More Than Pay for Cracking.

Cracked corn is cheaper as a chicken feed than is whole corn. That is, the chickens will get enough benefit over whole corn, from the exercise required to fill their crops with an evening meal of cracked corn, to more than pay for the cracking. A sieve should be used to sift the fine portion of the corn for making mashes.

The poultry breeder should not try to save by limiting the amount of food, but by avoiding waste of food.

Kill off the rats and mice which destroy an enormous amount of grain.

Feed in clean litter. If there is any mash left after feeding, scrape it into a bucket for the next day's feed.

Record for Cake.

Often when my little cousin came to our house my mother had ginger cake, but one day she had an angel food cake and Johnnie said: "Gee, Aunty Anne, this is the cleanest cake you ever had."—Exchange.

Get Experience, Young Man.

The young man entering life must not be impatient, writes Theodore Vail in American Magazine. He must accumulate experience, he must learn the duties of his position by the actual doing before he has any value to his employer.

Had Considered the Matter.

"Now, my girl, don't rush hastily into marriage. Marriage is a serious matter." "I get you, grandma. It's no joke to go after a divorce and have to spend six months getting a residence in some faraway town."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Bright Idea.

"It would save us much-needed floor space and considerable money if more of our women customers would use the stairway when going up only one flight," said the department-store manager. "I wish I knew of some way to make 'em do it." "Why not take the mirrors out of the elevators and put 'em on the stairs?" suggested his bright assistant.—Buffalo Express.

The Gentle Cynic.

"Few men are reformed by marriage, although many are regulated." Is the deliberate opinion of the Milwaukee Daily News.

YARROWDALE FOUR SAFE IN DENMARK

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, March 2.—Dr. H. B. Snyder of Norfolk, Va.; Dr. John Davis of Columbus, Miss.; Richard Zabriskie of Englewood, N. J., and Orville McKim of Watertown, N. Y., the four Americans from the steamer Yarrowdale, who were released by the German government, reached Copenhagen today. They appealed to the United States legation for assistance in getting home.

Sharpness of Madmen.

In Sir William Butler's autobiography there is an amusing story about six insane soldiers who escaped while the corporal who had brought them on board the troopship left at Durban and who mingled with the 1,800 sane men on the decks. The problem of the voyage was to find who were the six madmen. By the time the boat reached Cape Town twenty-six men were officially under observation, and not one of the six was among them.

In the end the cruzed half dozen were identified as those who had taken an especially eager part in the lunatic hunt.

Books and Apples.

A young lady in a library job got tired of fussing round in stuffy alcoves. So she chucked it all and went to raising apples. She never made money hand over fist, as she expected, but she always declared she had won out on the exchange. "I used to like an occasional apple with my books," she declared, "but the present plan of having a book now and then with my apples is a heap better." — Collier's Weekly.

MANN AMENDMENT IS STRICKEN OUT

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, March 2.—The senate showed its warlike spirit this afternoon by striking from the naval bill the Mann amendment providing, "It is hereby reaffirmed to be the policy of the United States to adjust and settle its international disputes through mediation or arbitration to the end that war may be honorably avoided."

The senate also agreed to a committee amendment making all appropriations in the naval bill immediately available. Senator Lodge made a plea for the amendment.

"The country is in a situation where it may be at war on short notice," he said. "Our first line of defense is the navy.

"There ought to be an extra session. The whole American government ought to be here in Washington. I favor it on the broad ground that it ought to be here in the present situation. No man can tell when we will need every dollar in this bill at a minute's notice."

Large D. A. R. Meeting.

There was an unusually large attendance at the March meeting of Willwyck Chapter, D. A. R., held at the Chapter House on Thursday afternoon. It was voted, during the business session to support the Red Cross in any work which it should in the future take up. Edward Stelle of the senior class of the high school was present and asked the support of the women of the D. A. R., for the coming lecture to be given at the high school by Mr. Crowthers on "Everybody Trying to be Everybody Else." The lecture will be given for the benefit of the senior class and it was voted that the chapter should give their support. The regent, Mrs. Philip Elting, spoke feelingly of the death of Mrs. Carrie C. Francis, (a chapter member), which occurred recently at Lake Helen, Florida. While Mrs. Francis was seldom able to be present at a chapter meeting, she had always been deeply interested in the chapter, and only a very short time ago a letter was received from her, in which she invited any member attended the D. A. R. conference to be held in Florida to visit her. Mrs. Elting also expressed the profound appreciation of the entire chapter, of the very generous legacy of $1,000 left to the chapter by one of their most devoted and loyal members, the late Mrs. Samuel Dimmick. The program for the afternoon was in charge of Mrs. Frank Kline and Miss Katharine O. Van Keuren and included two delightful vocal solos by Miss Esther Canfield, accompanied by Miss Minnie Johnston. Miss Canfield sang, "O Fair, O Sweet, O Holy," by Otto Cantor, and "A Winter Lullaby," by De Koven. A patriotic reading, "When the Moon Rose," was so realistically given by Mrs. C. L. Coles as to call forth most enthusiastic applause. Mrs. Coles then gave a short number, "Johnnie's Philosophy." Every number on the program was thoroughly enjoyed and at its close Miss Alice Van Gaasbeck and Mrs. E. C. Adams served light refreshments.

John C. Freund Coming to Kingston.

Through the instrumentality of Harry P. Dodge, supported by the Chamber of Commerce, the Rotary Club and the Federation of Women's Clubs, Kingston is to have a two days' visit from John C. Freund, the noted speaker and writer, who has been in so many of the largest American cities speaking on the subject of "American Musical Independence." Mr. Freund will be in Kingston on March 28 and 29, and while here will address the various bodies mentioned above, on this subject, "American Musical Independence." Perhaps no other person or group of persons has done as much for the promoting of musical progress in this country at this time, than has Mr. Freund, who is so well qualified to present this subject.

The Starvation Point.

To the question, "If there were a siege, how long do you think the soldiers and civilians could live after the food supplies gave out?" an English paper answers: Science tells us that if he can get drinking water an ordinary man can exist for thirty days without food. At the end of that time the machinery of the body will not be spoiled and can be brought back to its former strength by careful feeding.

About a quarter of our body weight is fat, and it is mostly this fat that is absorbed as food during the period of starvation. We can absorb and burn up our muscles until 60 per cent of their weight is gone. We can do the same with from 30 to 40 per cent of our livers and digestive organs and 20 per cent of our lungs. Our hearts can lose 10 per cent and our brains and nervous systems can lose 5 per cent.

It will be seen that the more vital organs—brain and heart—yield least of their valuable substance for the life of the body, while the less essential substances—fat, muscle fiber, etc.—are consumed first.

Don't Be Afraid of Work.

Charles M. Schwab, the well known master of Bethlehem steel works, has no more patience with the man who works by the time clock than has Adam Bede with his fellow workmen who dropped their tools at the sound of the whistle. In his book "Succeeding With What You Have" he writes: "I have yet to hear of one instance where misfortune hit a man because he worked overtime. Not long ago a man was promoted in our works. 'How did you happen to advance this fellow?' I asked his boss. 'Well,' he explained, 'I noticed that when the day shift went off duty this man stayed on the job until he had talked over the day's problems with his successor. That's why.' The man who fails to give fair service during the hours for which he is paid is dishonest. The man who is not willing to give more than this is foolish."

COUNTESS CSAKY

WEALTHY AMERICAN WIFE SEEKS DIVORCE FROM COUNT CSAKY

New York, March 2.—The romance of Count Kalman I. Csaky and his wealthy American wife, countess Maud Howard Bryan-Inman-Csaky, [illegible] Count Csaky is a cousin of Count Szechenyi, husband of Gladys Vanderbilt. Countess Csaky has filed suit for an absolute divorce naming "a woman unknown to the plaintiff."

BIRDLAND DANCE HALLS.

Playhouses and Gardens of the Australian Bower Birds.

There are several species of bower birds, chief among them the Satin and the Newton. The Satin bower bird is the best known. When the bowers were first discovered it was supposed that they were playhouses built by the native children, but as a matter of fact they are the dance halls of birdland.

The nests are built in the trees and have no connection with the playhouses. The male birds build these latter and gather every bright and shining object they can find to adorn the entrance to the bower. When it is completed, according to one who has watched them, little "at homes" are given daily, at which the males meet and pay their court to their ladyloves, now bowing and scraping, now playing hide and seek through the bower and now doing an absurdly dignified dance for their edification.

Newton's bower bird decorates its bower with fresh flowers every day, and if a visiting male bird wants to fight all he has to do is to disturb one of these flowers. The master of the bower proceeds with the painful duty of teaching him how to behave in company, while the remainder of the party raise a great racket, but never interfere. A naturalist studying them rearranged one of their flowers, but each time he did it the bower master rearranged it with great care.—National Geographic Magazine.

Following Precedent.

"Where is that cuff I had on yesterday?" asked the hungry-looking person. "I sent it to the laundry," said his wife. "Gracious, woman, I had a poem written on it!" "Oh, it will come back. You know your poems always do."—Yonkers Statesman.

ADVERTISEMENT WRITING.

UNWISE advertising economy is an acquired habit with many merchants, like olives and moving pictures, but when the habit is continued—certain! They seem to believe that each time they blackjack a dollar and lay it away on ice, withdrawing it from their advertising expenditures, they have done wisely. Really, such business men are short-changing themselves. Well written advertisements are business getters. The other kind won't do at all. Let me write you ads. with "pep and punch." George M. Zeliner, care of Kingston Freeman.

SUPREME COURT IS TOLD TO SPEED UP

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, March 2.—Danger of a nation-wide railroad strike again threatens the United States. Unless a decision is handed down by the supreme court on the Adamson law by next Tuesday, "decisive action" will be taken by the railroad brotherhoods, according to statements made by leaders today. Only an international crisis can stop the program of the brotherhoods of the supreme court fails to act when it meets on Monday.

L. G. Griffing, assistant grand chief of the brotherhood of locomotive engineers, and Arthur J. Lovell, vice president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, declared today plans were agreed upon for "decisive action" on Tuesday if there is not a national crisis at that time. The plans were made at a conference in Chicago, but the leaders would not discuss their nature.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

George Terwilliger of Clintondale, died Monday night, aged 77 years.

Frank Sahler, formerly of High Falls, who has been living at a hotel at Lawrenceville, died suddenly on Wednesday night. A coroner was notified who had the remains turned over to Undertaker Humiston of Kerhonkson and issued a death certificate.

Salmon J. Mott, for many years a resident of Jefferson Heights and known widely in Catskill as a building contractor, died at his home on Jefferson Heights Thursday morning from pneumonia after a week's illness with this disease. Mr. Mott sustained a serious accident about eight weeks ago when he was kicked by a spirited young horse. The animal was frightened when Mr. Mott threw open the barn door and struck out viciously with his heels. As a result of that accident Mr. Mott was never able to leave the house afterwards, but hopes for his ultimate recovery were held out until a week ago when he had a chill, resulting in pneumonia. He was a veteran of the Civil War and towards its close in the spring of 1865 took part in the pursuit and capture of John Wilkes Booth, who assassinated President Lincoln.

Mrs Rachel Rodie Harrison, wife of Frank A. Harrison, and a former resident of Kingston, died this morning at her home in Ridgewood, N. J., after a long illness. Deceased was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Rodie, formerly residing on Abruyn street. Her girlhood was passed in this city and she had a host of friends here, being a woman of unusual talents and very popular with all who knew her. For the past twenty-one years she had resided in Ridgewood. Beside her husband she is survived by a daughter, Helen, three brothers, James, Robert S., and John D. Rodie, all of this city, and two sisters, Mrs. E. R. Powley of Kingston, and Mrs. W. J. Nickerson of Tarrytown. Arrangements for funeral have not yet been completed, but it is expected interment will be made in Montrepose cemetery next Monday.

Edgar Terpening died at his home in Ulster Park on Thursday. The funeral will be held on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Reformed Church at Ulster Park and the interment will be in the St. Remy cemetery. Until stricken with paralysis several years ago Mr. Terpening was actively engaged in the growing of fruit and as salesman for nursery stock. In this last-named capacity he became widely known in Ulster and adjoining counties. His reputation for honesty and enterprise was of the highest, while his affable, kindly, true Christian character endeared him to his neighbors and associates, by whom his ever-ready helpfulness was highly valued and appreciated. Mr. Terpening was the kind of man who is an asset to any community and during the recent years of enforced inactivity he has been missed as few men ever are. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Grace DeGraff, widow of the Rev. G. D. L. DeGraff, with whom he resided, and Mrs. Leslie Herring of Ulster Park. Mr. Terpening was a member of Garfield Lodge, I. O. O. F., and Ulster Grange, P. of H., and other societies as well as of the Reformed Church.

John J. Dempsey died on Thursday morning at 8 o'clock at his home in New York city after an illness of over two years of pernicious anaemia. Mr. Dempsey spent the past two summers in this city as the guest of his sister, Mrs. Frank J. Cox, at her home on Clinton avenue and the sad news of his death has come as a shock to the friends and acquaintances which he made here by his quiet, unassuming and always courteous and kind bearing. Possessing the finest qualities of young manhood he made friends wherever he went and even though he knew that his disease was incurable he was a patient sufferer always hopeful to the time of his death. Mr. Dempsey who was thirty-seven years of age, was, up to the time of his illness a member of the brokeage firm of Moore and Schley of Wall street, New York city. There are left to mourn his loss, his wife, Mary Garry Dempsey, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Dempsey of New York city, three sisters, Mary, wife of F. J. Cox of this city, Julia, wife of Adelbert Hutton, and Miss Sarah at home in New York; two brothers, William and Joseph, both of New York. The funeral services will take place at his late residence, No. 421 West 121st street, New York city, on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock and from St. Charles Boromeo Church, New York, at 11 o'clock.

State to Buy Rockaway Point.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, March 2.—Senator Sage today introduced a bill authorizing the expenditure of $1,000,000 for the purchase of Rockaway Point. The measure is to be passed tomorrow at a session of the senate.

STRANGERS ACT SUSPICIOUSLY

Two well dressed strangers are said to be in Kingston trying to interest men in life insurance, but their method of procedure has excited some curiosity among some of the merchants they called upon. One merchant said that they have been to see him several times and said that by paying $250 down he would receive a policy for $5,000 and would have no further premiums to pay, but to date they have failed to interest him in the proposition. One merchant leans to the opinion that the insurance talk is just a case of bluff and may lead to losses in another quarter.

"WETS" HIT PIE COUNTER.

Bill For More Federal Judges is Killed.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, March 2.—The "wets" who opposed the gag rule under which the District prohibition bill went through the house two days ago had their first taste of revenge today when they were instrumental in defeating an administration bill relating to the retirement of Federal judges. Combining with the Republicans a score of Democrats from the city district, principally New York and Boston, voted down the bill, 200 to 192. The bill has already passed the senate and was much desired by the administration. It would have permitted the president to appoint about 16 additional Federal judges.

Would Help Some.

This would be a better country if we would quit enacting new laws and enforce old ones for about ten years.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

ASSERTS JAPAN'S PART IN MEXICO

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

St. Louis, Mo., March 2.—The St. Louis Republic today publishes a story asserting that it is in possession of startling proof that Mexico and Japan have been intriguing since before the opening of the Europea war and that the information unwittingly was revealed by General Carranza through Adolofo Carrillo, his former Los Angeles consular representative, in the expose of a stupendous plan by Dictator Huerta in 1911 to lease Lower California to Japan for use as a naval base.

Time for Self-Improvement.

The great thing to remember is that the day is not over at six o'clock if there is any smoldering ambition for self-improvement and advancement in your makeup. In fact the day is just beginning for you then. The best part of it is coming, and it should find you on the qui vive, ready and waiting to pursue those inner yearnings that are a part of every intelligent man and woman.

NO EXTRA SESSION LEADERS CLAIM

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, March 2.—With the end of the 64th congress by constitutional limitation only 48 hours away, administration leaders insisted at noon today that there will be no extra session for months, if at all. They were confident that both houses, speeding along under forced draft, would complete all of the essentials of their program before final adjournment.

"Congress will complete its work tomorrow and in my opinion there will be no extra session" was the prediction made today by Senator Kern of Indiana, majority leader of the senate.

The chief stumbling block remaining will be the problem of getting the senate and house to agree on the armed neutrality bill.

Creed of the Busy Man.

I believe in the stuff I am handing out, in the firm I am working for and in my ability to get results. I believe that honest stuff can be passed out to honest men by honest methods. I believe in working, not weeping; in boosting, not knocking, and in the pleasure of my job. I believe a man gets what he goes after, that one deed done today is worth two deeds tomorrow, and that no man is down and out until he has lost faith in himself. I believe in today and the work I am doing, in tomorrow and the work I hope to do and in the sure reward which the future holds.

I believe in courtesy, in kindness, in generosity, in good cheer, in friendship and in honest competition. I believe there is something doing, somewhere, for every man ready to do it. I believe I'm ready—right now!—Elbert Hubbard.

The Sadness of a Wedding.

There is something sad about a wedding. The young groom is leaving a home in which he always has had his way and is going into one in which he never will have his way. Although his parents do not go through the formality of giving him away at the altar, they know well enough that in a few minutes he will be a son-in-law to another woman, while to them he is nothing but a son. There he comes, with another man holding to his arm. It looks as if he might have made an attempt to escape and that the strong best man captured him and brought him back. He is as happy as he is nervous and so trustful that he has no fear for the future.—Claude Callan in Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

Life of a Battleship.

We are continually reading in the newspapers that various battleships have been completed, launched and for how long they have been commissioned. There are probably few people, however, who know how long a battleship lasts. The average life of a modern battleship is about fifteen years. In the old days a battleship was on active service nearly the whole time of its commission, which was about a hundred years.

The Victory was forty years old when she fought at Trafalgar, and the Royal William, which was built in 1670, was not "scrapped" until 1813.—London Mail.

Squabs.

A squab grows enormously the first twelve hours and still more rapidly after the third day. Squabs are at first sparsely covered with long filaments of down, the root of each filament indicating the point from which each future feather is to start. The down for awhile still hangs on the tips of some of the feathers during their growth and is thought by some to be finally absorbed into the shaft of the growing feather.

Making Assurance Doubly Sure.

The pupils in a certain class in hygiene were told to set down on paper the reasons why, in their opinion, cremation was superior to burial. "Cremation is good," wrote one little boy, "because the person might only be in a swoon, and if he is burned he cannot recover."

BURHANS CLAIM HELD NOT VALID

A decision handed down by Judge Rudd dismissing the complaint in the action brought by Willis M Burhans against the city of New York to recover $900 under the provisions of the Water Supply Act has been filed in the Ulster county clerk's office The complaint is dismissed on the two grounds included in the city's motion—that Mr Burhans was not employed for six months prior to January 1st 1906 in an established business and also that the claim is barred by the statute of limitations

Mr Burhans's claim was tried before Judge Rudd at the trial term of the supreme court held in this city in December Arthur C Connelly represented Mr Burhans the city of New York was represented by William McM Speer The city offered no testimony

Judge Rudd's Opinion

The plaintiff brings this action to recover $900 00 under section 9 of chapter 714 of the laws of 1906 which amended section 42 of chapter 724 of the laws of 1905

The obligation of the city of New York if any exists is purely statutory

The plaintiff alleges that he was employed in an established business in the county of Ulster which established business was injured as contemplated by the provisions of the act above cited that he had been so employed continuously for six months prior to the first day of January 1906 that his salary for the six months just previous to January 1st 1906 was $900 00 and that because of the injury destruction or acquisition by the city of New York under the Water Supply Act he suffered damages for which provision is made in the statute amounting to $900 00 and that in accordance with the provisions of the law he brings this action in the supreme court to recover the sum of $900 00

The defendant offered no testimony

At the close of the plaintiff's case the defendant moved to dismiss the complaint on the grounds

1—That the plaintiff failed to prove the facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action under the statute

2—That the alleged cause of action is barred by the statute of limitations

The plaintiff's contention is not that he was employed in a manufacturing establishment but that he was employed in an established business in the county of Ulster that the established business consisted of the developing manufacture sale and distribution of electric current and electric power and the construction of the works buildings etc for the same

The plaintiff was in the employ of James H Sands who purchased an old mill property at Glenerie Ulster county intending to convert the mill into an electric power plant operated by water power

After the purchase of the property by Mr Sands the city of New York took the first step toward the development and creation of the great water supply which the city of New York now has for its use from the Ashokan watershed

What Mr Sands did upon the property was wholly preliminary to the creation of an electric power plant Surveys were made estimates of the cost of electrical machinery were obtained and the plaintiff worked for Mr Sands in building on the property along the water course a shelf upon which would rest a pipe for the transmission of water to be used for power

Mr Sands did some repairing to the old buildings which were upon the property cleaned out the old Lead Mill machinery all previous to September 1905 and Mr Sands learning from his lawyer County Judge Cantine and from Charles Davis who was at that time a member of the State Water Supply Commission of the proposed building by the city of New York of the Ashokan reservoir and the diverting of the water up stream to the reservoir for a supply to the city of New York in September 1905 suspended all work and in January 1906 definitely abandoned his contemplated creation

Under chapter 714 of the laws of 1906 which became a law April 21 1906 and upon the approval of the State Water Supply Commission May 14 1906 the city of New York first had legal authority to do anything in the way of actually taking land or doing work necessary to create the water supply except that it had had power theretofore to prepare and present a plan to the State Water Supply Commission

Counsel for the plaintiff calls our attention to section 9 of chapter 714 of the laws of 1906 which provides for three distinct classes of claimants namely

First—A person employed in a manufacturing establishment

Second—A person employed in an established business

Third—A person who is employed upon lands of which lands he is not an owner or part owner or otherwise interested and which lands are not taken or acquired by the city of New York

And counsel says that plaintiff claims here under the second class of those provisions that of having been employed in an established business

If the plaintiff was not employed in an established business then there is no obligation against the city of New York arising under the statute

While such a claim as the plaintiff here presents is derogatory of common law still if the plaintiff's proof shows that he is included within the provisions of the law by reason of having been employed in an established business which was injured or destroyed by the acts of the city of New York under the law providing his claim was presented in due time to the city of New York then he has a cause of action for it Has been determined that a municipality which asks the legislature for a privilege which is granted subject to specific conditions cannot accept the grant and reject the conditions for such conditions as Judge Werner said in People ex rel Burhans v City of New York 198 N Y 429 rests upon a fundamental consideration

This issue was tried before the court without a jury and the court is therefore called upon in disposing of the motion made by the defendant for the dismissal of the complaint to determine the question of fact was the plaintiff engaged in an established business What was the established business?

The plaintiff's employer was working with the plaintiff's and to create a condition whereby in the future he might be able to utilize the waters of a creek as a power for the creation of electrical energy If this had been accomplished and he had thus created power which he might have for sale and if he had found a customer for the power it seems as if he then would have had an established business

The work that was actually performed prior to September 1905 was the dismantling of an old Lead Mill the building of a shelf along the water course upon which in the future a pipe might be laid and the cutting of timber from the wood land owned by the plaintiff's employer

The dismantling of the Lead Mill was not an established business the building of a shelf upon which to lay pipe was not an established business and the cutting of wood cannot be called an established business for the reason that so far as that was concerned all the wood was cut down and sold and the city of New York in no way interfered with that part of the work upon which the owner made realized

The plaintiff's employer Mr Sands has a claim against the city of New York for $1 500 000 damage which he sustained by reason of the city of New York taking the water from Esopus Creek

The nearest the city of New York came to the property in question as far as the taking of land was concerned was about fifteen miles

If the court remembers the testimony correctly a transcript not having been furnished it was to the effect that while at present the water of the creek in the vicinity of the premises in question has not been taken entirely it will in the future be absorbed by the city of New York It may be therefore that Mr Sands has a claim for some amount of damages sustained by him against the city of New York for the taking of the water which he might have been able to utilize in the future in power plant but the stream has not been interfered with

It does not seem that because Mr Sands was not fit to abandon his project [illegible] the city would take steps to acquire the water of the Esopus Creek considering the state and condition of the proposed power plant at the time he did abandon it that it can be said that the plaintiff was for six months prior to January 1 1906 employed in an established business Unless he was so employed he cannot here recover

It seems also as if the claim of the plaintiff was barred by the Statute of Limitations The plaintiff contends that the statute does not run until after the rejection of the claim by the city of New York for it was then it be said that a claimant can extend the provisions of all laws with reference to limitation by failing himself to file his claim within a reasonable time or within the time running of the statute thereby making it impossible for the city on its part to reject a claim until long after the statute had run and that by so doing the plaintiff is able to indefinitely extend the statutory limitation

It hardly seems as if that was in accordance with the proper construction of the law

The defendant's motion to dismiss the complaint is granted

Judgment may be entered accordingly
